ADMIRALTY LOSES HOPE WHEN TAPS GET NO REPLIES

If Victims Were Suffocated by Chlorine Gas From Batteries Death Was Painless, Medical Authorities Declare.

STILL NO OFFICIAL VERSION OF ACCIDENT

Salvage Work Continues Under Tentative Plan to Raise Vessel by Tuesday, Then Tow It to Shallow Water.

BIRKENHEAD, England, June 3 (AP).—Hope vanished tonight for 98 men at the bottom of the Irish Sea in the sunken British submarine Thetis—the greatest number ever to perish in an underseas disaster.

The Admiralty gave the men up for dead nearly 15 hours after the air supply was calculated to have been exhausted behind the silent, thick steel walls of the Thetis. Admiralty officials acknowledged that slow seepage of water into the submarine's batteries probably had formed chlorine gas and that the fumes had suffocated the men.

A medical expert said that if they died from chlorine poisoning, the men probably met a painless death. "Chlorine fumes, in a confined space like the interior of a submerged submarine, would cause early asphyxiation, immediately preceded by loss of consciousness," he said.

Hawsers Put Under Thetis.

Salvage vessels succeeded today in placing hawsers under the Thetis, it was disclosed tonight. Experts said, however, that it would be impossible to raise it before Tuesday.

"Then we will make for shallow water, probably on the Anglesey coast, eight miles away," an official said.

At 1:40 a. m. (6:40 p. m., St. Louis time, Friday night) 36 hours—the deadline for the Thetis' sealed-up air—had passed since the new $1,500,000 submarine dived into Liverpool Bay in a trial run for acceptance by the British Navy.

For six hours after that divers tapped urgently at the sides of the submarine for a signal that life still flickered within. They got what they believed might have been their final, faint answer at 2 a. m. today (7 p. m., St. Louis time, Friday night) although some thought they might have heard only loose gear rattling against the swaying sides of the hulk.

Admiralty Gives Up Hope.

Then, at 4:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m., St. Louis time), after incessant rescue attempts spurred by the trapped men's ebbing chances had failed, the Admiralty issued a statement saying:

"There is now no longer justification for hope that any further lives can be saved from the Thetis."

Posted for grieving relatives of the entombed men to see, a telegram from the Admiralty was placed in the window of Cammell Laird, Ltd., builders of the Thetis. It read: "Regret that hope of saving victims in Thetis must now be abandoned."

The Thetis, its nose buried in 65 feet of mud in wreck-littered Liverpool Bay, carried 102 men below in its dive. Four men escaped with Davis "lungs." Three others were said to have died in vain attempts to escape by the same method. Members of a North Wales lifeboat crew which visited the scene said the three occupants of the Thetis had perished.

On Wedding Anniversary.

One of those said to have been lost in this attempt was Stoker Wilfred Thomas Hole. His wife was expecting a message from him today—the first anniversary of their wedding. Instead, she received a telegram from the Admiralty saying her husband "was believed to have died while endeavoring to escape from the submarine," and adding that "this will be confirmed when definite news is received."

J. A. Morgans, one of the seamen, left a widow not yet 21 years old.

ELLSBERG SAYS THETIS HAD TOO MANY ON BOARD

Overcrowding Cut Amount of Air Available to Each, He Thinks.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Commander Edward Ellsberg, United States Navy Reserve said, in a copyrighted article in the New York Post today, "The terrific death toll in the British submarine Thetis appears to be mainly a result of overcrowding."

He pointed out that the Thetis, 40 feet shorter than the United States submarine Squalus which sank off Portsmouth, N. H., carried a complement 60 per cent larger, thus decreasing the amount of air available for each man.

Permitting a few men to escape, Ellsberg wrote, meant reducing the ship's buoyancy since tons of water had to be admitted into the craft when men got away with their Davis lungs.

"I believe," Ellsberg wrote, "rather than sink his stern by allowing a few more men to escape, he (the commander) stopped using that method in the hope that a hole might be burned by the rescuers outside into the stern through which all the men left in the submarine might crawl to safety. But luck was against him."

By the time the tides swept over the exposed tail and forced it to the bottom, Ellsberg said, "semi-asphyxia from carbon dioxide apparently had them and it was now too late" to try to reach the surface with the Davis lungs.

LARGE ST. LOUIS BANKS TO CUT SAVINGS' INTEREST TO 1 PCT.

Reduction, Taking Effect Aug. 1, Said to Be Necessitated by Dearth of Profitable Investments.

A reduction in interest on savings deposits from 1½ per cent to 1 per cent annually will go into effect Aug. 1 in most of the larger St. Louis banks, it was learned yesterday. Depositors will receive official notice of the cut 30 days in advance.

An officer of a downtown bank told the Post-Dispatch the reduction had been necessitated by the large amounts in savings accounts, for which no profitable investment could be found by the banks.

"Every dollar placed in a savings account at the present interest rate means a loss to the bank," he asserted. Banks which have been paying a higher rate are expected to make corresponding reductions.

Several years ago the banks ceased paying interest on demand deposits subject to withdrawal by check.

ROOSEVELT'S FEVER IS GONE BUT HE STAYS IN-DOORS

President, Recovering From Sinus Trouble, to Receive King and Queen Thursday.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—Although his temperature was normal and his sinus trouble much improved, President Roosevelt remained in his White House study today to conserve his strength. He had been kept abed part of this week by a slight fever.

He will receive the King and Queen of England next Thursday and also be their host at Hyde Park, June 10 and 11. On June 12 he will address the West Point graduating class.

White House officials said he had no present intention of making any major pronouncement concerning world affairs in his address.

Only some new development abroad changing the comparatively tranquil situation existing at this time would cause him to consider a fresh discussion of international matters, it was said.

WOMAN GETS DOG'S $10,000

California Court Rules Against Animal in Trust Fund Case.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 3 (AP).—Mrs. Hattie A. Fletcher's dog, left $10,000 on her death in 1937, was just an object of charity today. Superior Judge Arthur L. Mundo had ruled in litigation over the estate "provisions for trusts in perpetuity cannot be fulfilled by a dog." He ordered the $10,000 turned over to Mazie Martin, residuary legatee.

Mr. Martin's attorney said she would place the shepherd-spaniel in a veterinarian home.

TRAGEDY CASTS SHADOW ON MANY HOMES IN BRITAIN

SURVIVORS EXPRESS CONCERN FOR MATES

Seaman Offers Explanation on Why Capt. Oram, Top-Ranking Officer Was First to Escape

BIRKENHEAD, England, June 3 (AP).—Mrs. R. D. Glenn, whose husband was engineer aboard the submarine Thetis, said today that she had not yet told her three children of their father's fate.

"I am going to wait until after my daughter dances at a children's concert," she said. "I want her to enjoy herself while she can."

Mrs. Belle Allen, widow of the wireless operator, collapsed under the strain. She had been waiting at the shipyard since Thursday evening. A sailor broke down on seeing Mrs. Allen faint, and he was taken into the company's offices by his colleagues.

Two Survivors in Bed.

Two of the four survivors who escaped Friday were expected to return to their homes tomorrow from the scene of the disaster, where they aided rescue efforts until hope for their companions was abandoned.

They were Capt. H. P. K. Oram, commander of the fifth submarine flotilla, for which the Thetis was intended, and Chief Stoker W. C. Arnold. Both men came through their harrowing experience without ill effects.

The other two survivors, Lieut. G. F. Woods and Frank Shaw, still were under medical care—Woods in the Southern Hospital in Liverpool and Shaw at his home in Birkenhead.

Both were suffering from shock and exhaustion.

All the survivors except Woods, who was in the most serious condition, expressed deep concern for their companions throughout the rescue efforts. The first thing Shaw said to his wife when he aroused for a moment was to ask "are the others all safe?"

Statement on Capt. Oram.

Capt. Oram, highest ranking officer on board the Thetis, was the first to leave, it was said, so that he could take charge of rescue operations. Rescue workers said he rose to the surface with his Davis "lung," or oxygen mask, without knowing whether any rescuers would be waiting for him. Until he escaped the rescue vessels had not made known their presence above the sunken vessel.

Arnold volunteered to remain at the scene as long as there was hope of saving the others. His wife said: "He's not the sort to leave the scene until there is definite hope one way or another about his pals.

"I am more glad than I can say that he is safe, but I cannot help feeling awful when I think of other relatives not so lucky as me."

Air Foul in Submarine.

"Capt. Oram," said a seaman today, "was most surprised to find the destroyer Brazen there and to be picked up immediately."

The Brazen had been about to give the service signal to the Thetis to abandon ship by detonating charges under the water.

"The signal was then given," the seaman continued, "and three more came to the surface, but no more. I was told that Capt. Oram had left instructions to abandon the ship when the signal was heard.

"It seems certain that after the last escape one of the doors of the escape chamber became jammed and no others could get out."

"Am alive and kicking," was the first message Mrs. W. C. Arnold received from her husband, a stoker, among the four rescued.

Oram was captain of the submarine L-12, which collided with the H-47 off the Pembrokeshire coast during July maneuvers in 1929. He was washed from the conning tower with other officers as his vessel went down, but the L-12 lost only one man. The H-47 lost 21 men.

MANAGERS BOOKED ON FELONY CHARGE

Gaming Equipment Seized, Subject to Claim by Owners—Wager Slips to Be Used as Evidence.

All the good it did the bookmaking Lee brothers, Irving, Edward and Patrick, to complain of a supposed sharp practice in which a short-wave radio apparatus was used by "smart money" bettors was to get their six establishments raided by the police yesterday afternoon. These raids, in which two of the Lee brothers and 27 others were arrested, were made with search warrants, and were the only ones made for the weekend.

One of the raids was made at 2802 North Grand boulevard, where Irving and Patrick Lee were arrested Friday afternoon on charges of smashing radio equipment in an automobile and attacking one of its occupants.

The manager of the establishment was arrested, booked for registering and accepting a bet, a felonl, and setting up a common gaming house, a Police Court offense. Five clerks were arrested, booked for setting up a common gaming house and suspected of gambling.

The manager at first gave his name as John Lane, but later said he was Daniel Kenney, and told police he had served a term in the Jefferson City Penitentiary for forgery.

Other Managers Charged.

At the five other places raided, the same charges were made respectively against the managers and the clerks. The managers were released on bonds of $1500 each, the clerks on bonds of $700 each.

At each place, quantities of tabs, bearing records of bets, form sheets, charts and racing papers were seized to be held as evidence. As many as 50 customers were in some of the places when the police called, several women being in each of the gatherings.

At 4505½ Delmar boulevard, Patrick Lee and six clerks were attending to 57 customers when proceedings were stopped by police. The other places visited, and those arrested, were:

3550 Washington boulevard, Edward Lee and three clerks.

417 North Ninth street, James Finley and two clerks.

After the raid at 4505½ Delmar, John Hopson, Negro, 4212 Page boulevard, complained to police that clerks in that shop had refused to

JEWISH REFUGEE SHIP IS REPORTED STILL NEAR CUBA

Possibility That Exiles May Be Permitted to Land Indicated by Developments.

VESSEL HAD STARTED BACK TO GERMANY

Stay Probably Would Be Limited—Dominican Offer of Haven at $500 a Person.

MIAMI, Fla., June 3 (AP).—A reliable source said tonight the German steamship St. Louis, with 907 refugee German Jews aboard, apparently had not changed its position today or tonight. This would indicate the vessel was somewhere outside the territorial waters of Cuba and not proceeding across the Atlantic to Hamburg. The reason for the belief that the ship was not under way was not stated.

HAVANA, June 3 (AP).—A possibility that 907 refugee German Jews on the homeward-bound German liner St. Louis may be permitted to land in Cuba, after once having been turned down, was disclosed semi-officially tonight.

Well-informed sources said the Treasury Department was considering a new regulation to modify Cuba's immigration law. The regulation, expected to be signed by President Frederico Laredo Bru within a few days, would permit the landing in Cuba of all foreigners desiring to remain not longer than three months.

They would be classed as passengers en route and, after the three-month period, would be required to place a $500 bond if they wished to remain. Many of those on board the St. Louis had planned to wait in Cuba for admission into the United States under quota restrictions.

Conferences With President.

(In New York Joseph C. Hyman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee also said there was a likelihood the refugees would be permitted to land in Cuba. He stated that Lawrence Berenson of New York, counsel for the National Co-ordination Committee for the Aid of Refugees, would continue a series of conferences with President Laredo Bru tomorrow, after which an announcement would be made.)

The exact location of the St. Louis, which sailed from here Friday under orders of Laredo Bru after being refused permission to land the refugees, was not known here tonight. Luis Clasing, Havana representative of the Hamburg-Amerika, said he did not know the ship's position and that it could be assumed she was headed for Hamburg.

Another refugee vessel, the steamer Flandre, received permission to remain temporarily at Vera Cruz, Mexico, when she was weighing anchor with 98 of 104 Jews who had been denied entry into Cuba. It was believed that 50 of the refugees would be permitted to disembark but that others, who were not able to furnish money for six months' residence, would have to leave when the vessel sails tomorrow.

Sailing for Hamburg.

The liner St. Louis which left Hamburg with the refugees May 15, sailed back for Hamburg at 11:30 a. m., yesterday under orders of Laredo Bru. Cuban authorities had held that the refugees did not have proper landing papers.

Today there came an offer of haven from the Dominican Republic's Government on condition that each refugee pay a $500 tax to reside permanently in the country.

It was understood that most of the refugees were penniless, and it was reported, although without confirmation, that no final answer was being given to this offer pending outcome of new negotiations with the Cuban Government.

The Dominican consul here, Nestor Pou, said he believed the St. Louis refugees were delaying their answer to the Dominican Government in hopes the Cuban Government would change its decision.

Cuban Secretary of State Enrique Alonso Pujol did not deny the possibility that Enrico Bru might change his decision. Pujol pointed out that the President had said he would not discuss the matter while the St. Louis was in Cuban waters.

Belgium to Aid 3000 Refugees in Concentration Camps.

BRUSSELS, June 3 (AP).—The Belgian Government decided today to provide for about 3000 Jewish refugees now living in concentration camps in Belgium. About 7000 others are in the care of regular Jewish residents and refugee aid societies.

FORMER FEDERAL JURIST CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY TO OBSTRUCT JUSTICE

Jury Returns Same Verdict Against George M. Spector Who Was Confidential Agent for Litigant in Several Suits.

MAXIMUM PENALTY TWO YEARS AND FINE

Assessment of $10,000 Each Possible—Bail Continued Pending Hearing June 20 on Motion for New Trial.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP). — Former Federal Circuit Court Judge Martin T. Manton was convicted by a United States District Court jury tonight of conspiracy to obstruct justice and to deprive the United States of his impartial services through bribes.

He faces a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Because of the importance of his district Manton was the highest ranking Federal Judge except the members of the United States Supreme Court.

George M. Spector, former confidential agent for the late promoter Archie M. Andrews, a party to several suits on which Manton ruled, was convicted of the same charges.

The jury, 10 men and two women, received the case at 6:15 p. m. after a trial of 11 days and returned their verdict about four hours later, after taking an hour out for dinner.

New Trial or Appeal to Be Sought.

Benjamin Golder, of Manton's counsel, asked that bail be continued for Manton pending the filing of a motion for a new trial or notification of intention to take an appeal to a higher court.

The continuance of bail was granted and a hearing on a motion for a new trial was set for June 20.

United States Judge W. Calvin Chesnut of Maryland, who presided at the trial, remarked that if the motion were denied, sentence would follow immediately.

Manton's bail is $10,000. His co-defendant Spector is held in $17,000 bail.

Manton's face was red when the jury's decision was announced. His eyes, which seemed dimmed, blinked rapidly several times and he leaned forward pressing two fingers against a fleshy cheek.

His co-defendant, Spector, remained impassive.

About 8:30 p. m. the jury asked for various trial records regarding Spector.

Judge's Charge.

A 90-minute charge was delivered by Judge W. Calvin Chesnut of Maryland, who declared the accusation against Manton was "unprecedented in the history of 150 years of the Federal judiciary."

"This calls," he said, "for the most dispassionate, discriminating and reasoned consideration that you are able to give in reaching your verdict. It is a case of supreme import to both the Government and the defendants.

"The public readily expects and demands that all its Federal judges shall be independent, impartial and above all scrupulously honest . . . and it is of vital importance in the functioning of our Government that the confidence of the public in the integrity of its courts be not impaired. It is equally important that the defendants in this case should not be convicted of these serious and unprecedented charges unless you are satisfied of their guilt, respectively, beyond a reasonable doubt."

Prosecutor John T. Cahill in his argument asked the jury of 10 men and two women to send Manton to prison because "justice was bartered

U. S. CHAMBER ASKS MEMBERS NOT TO SEEK U. S. PROJECTS

Plea Made to Those Roosevelt Accused of "Yelling" for Public Works.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—W. Gibson Carey, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, suggested today that the membership not ask for new public projects because there was "talk of a further spending epidemic."

"This threat makes it the more important that we do not lend ourselves to such proposals by urging new public projects," he said in a letter to all members. "I believe we are all generally agreed that we must work toward economy and a reduction of the level of Federal expenditures."

Two weeks ago President Roosevelt, in an address to the Retailers National Forum, accused local Chambers of Commerce members of "yelling their heads off" for projects while the chamber was demanding that "spending on public works should cease."

Carey also said the present system of relief had been "discredited" and proposed substitution of an "impartial agency" to determine relief needs of states, see that construction and other projects were let by competitive bidding "in order that unemployed persons may be restored to the normal channels of private industry" and "see that there is economy and efficiency at every point."

CLIPPER STARTS TO EUROPE, THEN RETURNS FOR REPAIRS

Yankee's Automatic Pilot at Fault—New Hop-Off on Second Round Trip Today.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP). — The Pan American Airways' Yankee Clipper, which took off at 1:12 p. m. St. Louis time today on its second mail flight to Europe, returned to Port Wsahington two hours later, circled the base, and then headed for its Baltimore port.

Officials said the flying boat had experienced a slight mechanical difficulty which could not be remedied in the air or at Port Washington. The company announced later the automatic pilot had not operated as it should. It said the plane would leave for Europe from Baltimore at 2 p. m. tomorrow with a 13-man crew headed by Captain C. A. Lorber and carrying 308 pounds of mail.

The Atlantic Clipper completed its round-trip mail flight to England when it landed at Port Washington at 7:42 a. m. St. Louis time today. It carried 123 pounds of mail and no passengers.

PLAYMATE SEES BOY DROWN IN MISSISSIPPI

Says Current Carried Away Edward Short, 13, Who Was Playing Near Bank.

Edward Barnes Short, 13 years old, was drowned yesterday morning in the Missisippi River at East Carrie avenue when a swift current carried him away from shallow water near the bank where he was playing with a log, a playmate reported to Edward's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Short, 2139 Eats College avenue.

The playmate, Fred Miller, 11, son of Mrs. Esther Miller, 2140 East College, said he and a young man sitting on the bank watched while Edward was swept away, sinking and coming to the surface several times before he finally disappeared.

The Miller boy related that he and Edward, who was accompanied by his pet dog, met at 8 o'clock in O'Fallon Park and walked to the river. Both waded in without removing their clothes and began to play with the log, which was jammed in the mud bank.

At first, he said, they stayed within five feet of shore, but Edward, trying to pull the log free, went farther out until the current seized him. Fred said the man on the bank made no effort to rescue his friend, explaining he couldn't swim.

After Edward disappeared, Fred took the dog an went home. Mrs. Short notified police. The body had not been recovered last night.

SIX FRIGHTENED BUCK DEER RUN WILD IN SHORE RESORTS

ALLENHURST, N. J., June 3 (AP).—Six spike buck deer, believed to have been frightened from the pine belt by wild dogs, caused excitement in this and neighboring shore resorts for almost five hours today by running through streets and backyards and across beaches.

One made its way to nearby Asbury Park by swimming 100 yards across Deal Lake and running into the ocean, attracting so much attention cries for help from two girl bathers hurled against a jetty by the surf almost went unheard.

The girls were rescued and two of the animals were corralled. The others made their way back to the woods.

G. O. P. OBJECTION TO HOUSE LIMIT ON TAX HEARINGS

Sharp Disagreement With Democrats on Holding Discussion to Corporate Levy Changes.

NEED FOR EARLY ACTION POINTED OUT

Passage Desired in Time to Re-enact So-called "Nuisance" Levies Which Expire on June 30.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—A sharp disagreement developed in the House Ways and Means Committee today over a decision to limit the current tax revision hearings to proposals to change corporate taxes.

Representative Treadway (Rep.), Massachusetts, senior minority member of the committee, asserted the inquiry should be thrown open for the fullest discussion of general tax revision. He protested that the limitation agreed upon yesterday did not have the approval of a quorum. It was imposed, he said, after he had been assured no further important issues would be decided and had left the committee room.

This brought a vigorous denial from Chairman Doughton (Dem.), North Carolina, coupled with the curt assertion that opening the inquiry to all phases of tax revision would "keep Congress here all summer and we still would not get a bill."

Doughton said it was imperative for the committee to restrict the hearing in order to insure passage of the tax bill in time to re-enact the so-called "nuisance" taxes which expire June 30.

Proposals by Trade Groups.

In the face of the committee's decision to exclude consideration of changes in anything but corporate taxes, spokesmen for the National Association of Manufacturers and the New York Board of Trade recommended today reduction of surtaxes on higher income brackets as a means of stimulating capital investment in private industry.

M. L. Seidman, chairman of the Board of Trade's Taxation Committee, also recommended broadening of the income tax base to "promote greater consciousness about Government spending."

"Too many people think they are completely exempt from Federal taxes," he said, "although, in fact, they pay such taxes concealed in the cost of things they buy."

Noel Sargent, secretary of the National Association of Manufacturers, recommended an eight-point program of tax revision which he said would "put idle men, idle machinery and idle funds to work."

In addition to reduction of surtax rates, both Sargent and Seidman recommended abolition of the undistributed profits tax, elimination of the capital stock and excess profits taxes, reinstatement of the right of affiliated corporations to file consolidated tax returns, elimination of the "duplication" of taxation on dividend income, and liberalization of the provision permitting losses to offset profits for taxation purposes.

Seidman also suggested that a single tax be substituted for all the present Federal corporate taxes.

Borrowing and Spending.

Asserting that Government spending will not "revive our industries or return any of our army of unemployed to private payrolls," Seidman declared he thought it was being "slowly though painfully discovered that Government borrowing and Government spending under any name and under any label cannot permanently produce a level of national income short of bankruptcy."

Doughton announced John W. Hanes, Undersecretary of the Treasury, would testify Monday and that there might be other witnesses. The chairman expressed hope, however, the hearings could be concluded that day and the task of drafting a bill turned over to the tax subcommittee.

'LUCK OF THE NAVY' MOVIE BARRED BY ADMIRALTY ORDER

BIRKENHEAD, England, June 3 (AP).—The motion picture "Luck of the Navy," scheduled for showing in Birkenhead next week, was withdrawn today at Admiralty orders as hope was abandoned for 98 men aboard the submarine Thetis. Advertising posters were blacked out.

"Luck of the Navy" is a British naval spy drama filmed by Associated British Pictures with the co-operation and assistance of British naval authorities.

Although submarines do not figure in the plot and the main action takes place aboard battleships, the Admiralty considered the showing of the picture inappropriate at the present.

In London, news reels showing the rescue of some members of the crew of the sunken United States submarine Squalus brought groans and stifled sobs last night from audiences.

98 ABOARD THETIS GIVEN UP FOR DEAD BY BRITISH ADMIRALTY

poration asked the public tonight for special prayers for the families of the entombed men.

Sufficient Davis "lungs" were aboard to equip each civilian as well as the seamen.

No Official Explanation.

The Thetis had several minor accidents in previous trials but there was still no official explanation of why it suddenly plunged into the mud.

Neither was there any explanation of why four men managed to get through the aft escape hatch within an hour Friday morning and then no more escaped.

Those four were Capt. H. P. K. Oram, Lieut. G. F. Woods, Chief Stoker W. C. Arnold and Frank Shaw but none of them was allowed for the present to make any official statement of what happened at the time of the accident or what was the plight of the others at the time they escaped.

An official, detailed investigation will be made into the cause of the accident and into the rescue attempts as well.

Seven salvage men who helped raise the German battle fleet scuttled at Scapa Flow were among those descending in the early morning after being flown here from the Orkneys. They were regarded as among the best divers in the profession.

A semi-official statement said there was no time to try to save the men by cutting a hole in the exposed tail of the vessel. The tide allowed only two hours for the work, and this was not enough, the statement said.

"Air Was Getting Dreadful."

The time element also prevented the men from boring a hole for an air line through the tail. One of the four who escaped, Shaw, an employe of Cammell Laird, Ltd., said the air in the submarine at 10:30 a. m. yesterday was foul and "getting dreadful."

Around noon the Admiralty added seven additional names to the overnight list of 90 men entombed and later in the day still another. These eight were not at first known to be aboard.

Hoisting Cable Snapped.

Photographs of attempts to tow the Thetis out of the mud yesterday indicated that a broken cable may have cost the lives of the 98 men.

When the Thetis was found early yesterday about 18 feet of the stern was sticking out of the water. Officials then considered trying to cut the stern off but, apparently, decided first to try to pull the vessel loose.

A cable attached to the salvage ship Vigilant was fastened to the rudder of the Thetis. Another cable was attached from the Vigilant to a tug. The two ships gradually increased pressure on the cable until the great gray fin of the Thetis rose higher out of the water. When the Thetis had reached an almost vertical position, much of its 265-foot length jutting up above the 130 feet of water, the cable snapped. The submarine dropped back into the original position and slowly vanished below the surface.

Theories About Catastrophe.

There were several theories as to what caused the Thetis catastrophe.

One held by shipping circles was that in making a speed dive it might have encountered more than one current—flowing at different speeds—below the surface.

R. S. Johnson, managing director of Cammell Laird, said the submarine conceivably could have struck wreckage but acknowledged "we do not know."

He said the submarine was tilted at such an angle, however, and was so constructed that to cut a hole through the projecting aft part would have been of little advantage.

Women Wait in Vain.

In the dull dawn the wives and relatives of the men aboard the Thetis, stood waiting as they had been waiting for more than 24 hours. They could not realize what had happened. They just stood and looked at the door of the timekeeper's office at the Cammell Laird shipyard.

When Sydney Woodward, a shipyard officer, came out of the door shortly after midnight and announced there was no hope, a man in the crowd shouted, "What about your experts?" Women near him rushed indignantly at him. That was the only immediate reaction.

Then slowly the optimism that had started the watch yesterday afternoon, in a cheerful atmosphere with ice cream carts and pitch games, dissolved. Women started to cry.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—Dr. Ernest Cushing Richardson, 79 years old, native of Woburn, Mass., and honorary consultant in bibliography and research of the Library of Congress, died today after a brief illness.

He was a former president of the American Library Association and the American Library Institute and was director emeritus of Princeton University Library.

NLRB MEN SAY CRAFT UNONS ARE NOT IMPORTANT

Only 12 True Ones in A. F. L., With 10 Pct. of Federation Membership, Economists Report.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—Economists of the National Labor Relations Board, in a report made in the midst of the A. F. of L. effort to revise the Wagner Act to give more protection to non-industrial unions, have advised the board that craft unions no longer are important in modern industry.

The report was put on the desks of board members several weeks ago by David J. Saposs, chief economist of the NLRB and his aid, Sol Davison, but was not given general circulation.

After a study of the structure of the American Federation of Labor, the economists concluded that: Less than 10 per cent of the Federation's present membership belong to purely craft unions; industrial and semi-industrial unions are preponderant; only 12 unions with 25,800 members could be regarded as "pure craft unions" out of 85 member unions with an aggregate membership at the last annual A. F. of L. meeting of 3,030,100.

Both Forms Used, Green Says.

Asked about the analysis, William Green, A. F. of L. president, said:

"The American Federation of Labor has applied both forms—craft and industrial—wherever they were found to be suitable.

"We have attempted to preserve the integrity of the craft union as well as the industrial form of union."

He asserted that as early as 1890 the Federation experimented with the industrial form of union organization.

(The industrial union theory calls for organization of all workers in an industry into one union, irrespective of the nature of their work. A craft union, on the other hand, is one embracing workers with a particular skill, such as carpenters, who may be employed in varied industries. Which form unions should take is the basis of the quarrel between the CIO, exponent of industrial organization, and the A. F. of L.)

After studying the constitutions of 85 A. F. of L. unions, Saposs and Davison decided that "in modern industry the craft has ceased to be important and the structure of the A. F. of L. unions reflects this change."

Economists' Tabulation.

In segregating A. F. of L. unions into various classifications of craft and industrial union types, Saposs and Davison drew their own demarcation lines and evolved the following breakdown by classification and membership:

12 Craft	25,800
19 Multiple craft	458,300
13 Trade unions	814,800
27 Semi-industrial	611,000
10 Industrial	815,600
4 Miscellaneous	304,600

From the economists' three dominant groups—industrial, semi-industrial and trade unions aggregating 2,241,400 members—come 10 of the 15 vice-presidents of the A. F. of L. Executive Council who expelled John L. Lewis and his CIO followers in the labor split over the application of industrial unionism to mass production industries.

SENDER OF OBSCENE CARDS TO PRESIDENTS IN AGAIN

Sidney Worrell Gets Year; Says Prison Is Only Place He Can Get Proper Medical Care.

DANVILLE, Ill., June 3 (AP).—Sidney Worell, 59 years old, who has a mania for sending obscene post cards to presidents of the United States, was sentenced to another term of a year and a day by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today.

A diabetic, Worrell told Federal oficers that prison was the only place he could obtain proper medical care. Released last year with 144 days off his sentence for good behavior, he violated his parole and was returned to serve out his sentence.

In the meantime, he sent another obscene card to President Roosevelt and a grand jury indicted him for violating the postal laws. He will be returned to Leavenworth penitentiary.

Officers said obscene post cards were the only violations of the law charged against Worrell, who sent them to the presidents of the United States beginning with president Coolidge.

MUSSOLINI RECALLS 1230 ITALIAN FLYERS FROM SPAIN

ROME, June 3 (AP).—Premier Mussolini today ordered 1230 Italian aviators in Spanish territory to return home by June 16.

Fascist spokesmen said recall of these airmen from both the Spanish mainland and the island of Mallorca disproved reports Italy intended to keep an air base in the Balearic islands in return for aiding Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the civil war.

British Public Recalls Squalus, Asks Why Thetis Rescue Failed

'Look What the Yanks Did,' Is Typical Comment—Marine Observers Withhold Judgment, Pointing Out Technical Problems.

LIVERPOOL, England, June 3 (AP).—Britain's man-in-the-street, stunned by the Thetis disaster, was sharply critical today, along with some newspapers, of the futile rescue efforts.

It was predicted there would be repercussions in parliament and the possibility of a civil as well as an Admiralty inquiry was mentioned.

"Public opinion demands a prompt and full explanation from the Admiralty. Why could not we do what the United States did?"

The Sunday Pictorial headlined this demand: "Who Was to Blame?"

Marine circles withheld judgment. They pointed out that the layman has little knowledge of the extent of technical problems involved in submarine operation.

Typical of the immediate reaction was the comment of one man:

"Look what the Yanks did when the Squalus sank. Why should they they be any more efficient than we are? Their boat was deeper down than ours."

Thirty-three of the 59 trapped in the Squalus were saved; only four out of 102 were rescued from the Thetis. The Squalus was in 240 feet of water; the Thetis in only 130, with 18 feet of its stern above the surface for a time.

Plaint of Victim's Wife.

The wife of one victim said, "It certainly looks to me as if they could have done something with all the time they had." The Thetis was first found yesterday morning at which time those aboard were estimated to have had about 18 hours supply of oxygen left.

Balanced against perplexity and questioning was this assertion:

R. S. Johnston, managing director of Cammell Laird, Ltd., the submarine's builders, said that "whatever has been done in the rescue work, we were thinking only of the people in the ship and not of the ship itself."

Call for Stern Inquiry.

Among the demands voiced in the British press were one by the Daily Mail for a "stern inquiry and rigorous judgment."

The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post raised the question of a rescue by diving bell, after reviewing the rescue work on the United States submarine Squalus but concluded "its efficacy depends on conditions which are not present in Liverpool Bay."

The Daily Sketch asked whether a diving bell might have been used, and concluded, "But these are matters for experts who may decide that the circumstances were by no means parallel . . ."

The Daily Herald made much of the point that the Thetis should never have been allowed to make the trip alone.

"Submarines do not go on trials every day, and it should not therefore be difficult to have them attended by vessels able to render the most prompt and complete assistance in case of mishap," said the Herald.

FARLEY SAYS 1940 PLATFORM WILL HINGE ON ROOSEVELT

Party Will Go to Polls on Basis of New Deal's Accomplishments, He Declares.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., June 3 (AP).—Postmaster-General James A. Farley predicted today that the 1940 Democratic Party platform "will be written around the accomplishments of the Roosevelt Administration."

Prior to addressing a group of Arkansas postmasters, he told reporters, "I don't think the people will forget what that Administration has done."

He turned aside questions concerning potential 1940 candidates, saying "it is futile to talk about 1940 possibilities until the President expresses himself."

In his address Farley said "we want business to boom—but we want all America in on the business."

The President, Farley said, has been motivated by "a single objective—to bring about a balanced economy in which all shall have their just share, because no other kind of economy should be tolerated in this country."

HEARING IN IRELAND IN AUGUST ON CAMPBELL ESTATE CLAIMS

John J. Nangle, Special Master, to Take Testimony in Philadelphia First.

Hearing of claimants in Ireland as beneficiaries in the $1,800,000 trust estate released by the death in March, 1938, of Hazlett Kyle Campbell of St. Louis will begin about Aug. 1, it was stated yesterday. John J. Nangle, special master appointed by the Circuit Court to receive testimony of the various claimants, will conduct a session in Philadelphia before proceeding to Ireland. In Philadelphia evidence will be taken of a number of claimants living in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The testimony of the claimants will be filed in a suit instituted by Allen C. Orrick and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., trustees, to determine who are Campbell's heirs-at-law. Thus far 428 persons appear as defendants, represented by 140 answers on file. Judge Eugene J. Sartorius, in whose court the suit is pending, has authorized the trustees to employ attorneys in Belfast and other localities in the British Isles to represent them.

Harry Troll, attorney for a large group of claimants, said yesterday he expects to leave for Ireland about July 24 to participate in the sessions.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES CONFINED TO HIS BED

Suffering From Intestinal Ulcer at 77, He Must Have 'Complete Rest.'

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, ill for six weeks recently with the grip, now has a duodenal ulcer. The duodenum is the first portion of the small intestine below the stomach.

An official statement today said "there is no reason to doubt his full recovery." The Chief Justice is 77 years old.

The statement, issued by Nelson A. Potter, assistant clerk of the Supreme Court, said:

"The Chief Justice will be unable to attend court on Monday as he is suffering from a duodenal ulcer and it is necessary for him to have the immediate and usual treatment of complete rest and specific diet."

It added that the jurist will "be confined to his bed for a while" and "must have a complete rest for the time being."

In addition to missing the final session Monday of this term of court, Chief Justice Hughes will be unable to participate in festivities in connection with the visit of the King and Queen of England to Washington next week.

The illness also will postpone his departure on a customary summer motor trip into Canada.

The Chief Justice contracted the grip March 4 after delivering an address before a joint session of the Senate and House at the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the first meeting of Congress. He returned to the bench on April 17.

This was the first time he had been absent from his duties since he was appointed Chief Justice by President Hoover in 1930.

On his seventh-seventh birthday anniversary April 11 he said, through his secretary, that "I expect to go on with my work" and that he was "happy" to be able to resume activities.

After his return to the bench he continued his early morning walk near his home and appeared to be in good health. He presided over the court with his customary vigor.

Justice Pierce Butler officiated at today's conference of the court members and will preside at Monday's session, when the court adjourns until next October.

Any opinions the Chief Justice has written will be read by Justice Butler or another justice.

Sought $100,000 of General American Life, in April, 1935, Later Increasing His Demand.

W. W. HEAD FLATLY REFUSED PROPOSALS

Insurance Superintendent Wanted Him to Use Company's Assets to Make Payment.

Details of two bold but unsuccessful attempts by R. Emmet O'Malley when he was State Superintendent of Insurance to collect large sums of cash for Thomas J. Pendergast, the Kansas City political boss, from the General American Life Insurance Co. have been learned by the Post-Dispatch.

The first was in April, 1935, when O'Malley asked for $100,000; the second was a month later and at that time he had raised the demand to $200,000. The fact that O'Malley once tried to extort $200,000 from General American Life, a company peculiarly subject to his official power, and had otherwise harassed it, already have been published by the Post-Dispatch.

Setting the stage for the $100,000 demand, O'Malley telephoned Walter W. Head, president of General American, to meet him at the Coronado Hotel. There O'Malley told Head that "T. J.", as he always called the then powerful boss, wanted $100,000. Skillfully O'Malley stated the case, avoiding direct threats, but remarking that if he did not get the money there might be a new Insurance Superintendent—"some one not so friendly." He indicated that it was his opinion that payment of the sum be asked for would be a "good investment," and he thought Head could get the money "from Mr. Milton"—David M. Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., financial backer of General American.

Head Rejects Proposal.

The next month the energetic Insurance Superintendent, who had been a Pendergast ward worker in the rough and ready days of Kansas City politics, came right back with a more persuasive smile and vastly enlarged ideas about the dimensions of the graft. This time he had Head meet him by appointment at the Missouri Athletic Association.

Head took with him Sidney W. Souers, vice-president of the company, but this made no difference to O'Malley. The meeting was in the lobby, and O'Malley lost no time in getting to the point. He wanted $200,000; "T. J." had telephoned him to get the money, "and get it today." Just in case Head was not yet in the mood to pay it, O'Malley dropped the hint that if he lost his job—as he fully expected in case he failed to get the money—"the investments of a lot of people might turn sour."

Seemingly he had concluded that Milton and other stockholders were not willing to pay the tribute out of their own funds, so this time he suggested another source: just dip into the assets which belonged to the thousands of policyholders in the Missouri State Life; it could be done in compromising a claim the stockholders of the old International Life Insurance Co. had against Missouri State. Negotiations were under way for settlement of this claim, but estimates of the payment to be made ranged from $950,000 to $1,600,000.

Suggests Way to Get Money.

O'Malley thought the matter could be disposed of by paying $1,250,000 to the International stockholders, and then it would be easy to add $200,000 which would go to Pendergast but would be listed as a lawyer's fee. The total cost to Missouri State policyholders would have been $1,450,000.

This new demand was refused by Head, and in the following June the courts approved settlement of the International Life claim for $950,000, of which $50,000 was for bona fide legal fees. The charge against Missouri State assets was $500,000 less than O'Malley had proposed.

The first attempt of O'Malley to extort graft from the General American coincides with the negotiations by which Pendergast arranged to have O'Malley approve the notorious stock fire insurance rate compromise. Discovery by Federal agents that Pendergast received $330,000 and O'Malley $62,500 from the insurance companies for arranging this deal led to the penitentiary sentences which both are now serving for income tax frauds. The first payments to Pendergast in the insurance rate case were made early in May, 1935.

In a statement to the court when Pendergast appeared for sentencing United States District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan said the Government had learned that Pendergast suffered heavy losses in horse race betting in 1935 and was desperately in need of cash.

The power of O'Malley as Insurance Superintendent over the General American Life company was almost that of a dictator. O'Malley had placed the Missouri State Life in receivership for insolvency and had approved the arrangement for the General American, a new company, to acquire the assets, valued at nearly $150,000,000, and take over the insurance liabilities on approximately a billion dollars of policies. In his official capacity he became a trustee of the Missouri Life estate, with broad supervisory powers over the handling of that business.

Milton and his associates had stated publicly when they acquired the Missouri State business that they were making a permanent investment. But because of the O'Malley episodes and his general harassment of the company, Milton, who had extensive business interests in the East, decided to dispose of his General American interests.

Milton arranged for the sale of his stock to Texas investors, at a gross profit of approximately $1,000,000 to himself and associates, but gave O'Malley no intimation of the plan until the day before the stock was to be transferred. O'Malley's indignant and violent denunciation of this transaction, mainly criticising the reported profit (which incidentally was greatly reduced by interest charges and taxes), was thought in some quarters to have resulted from chagrin when he saw Milton slipping out of his power.

Ex-Judge Manton Guilty Of Selling His Decisions

and decisions bargained for and sold."

The United States Attorney emphasized that many of the transactions involved in the charges against Manton were in cash, and "cash," he said, "leaves few trails."

Manton Listens Unmoved.

Manton, white-haired and benign in appearance, listened with no show of displeasure as Cahill, speaking in conversational tones, reviewed the evidence submitted by both sides in the two weeks of the trial. His manner was the same as that when he listened to James Noonan, his chief counsel, plead he was innocent of wrongdoing in accepting loans. Noonan was stricken with a stomach ailment during the defense summation, which was continued by Golder.

Golder called William J. Fallon, business agent for Manton who was indicted with him and who pleaded guilty at the start of the trial, a "Judas." Cahill, during the trial, referred to Fallon as Manton's "bag man" who made deals for litigants to get them favorable decisions.

Defense Argument.

"This case should not be decided on suspicion," Golder said, "there is no such enemy to justice as suspicion. It weaves a hangman's noose. You should not decide this case on a circumstance."

He spoke of Manton's 23 years on the bench and to the character witnesses who testified for him, including Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York, and John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924.

Manton, as a Federal Judge, had passed on 2500 cases, he said, and the Government had accused him of bribery and influenced decisions in six.

Cause of Indictment.

Manton resigned in January after District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey accused him of accepting $400,000 in loans from persons interested in litigation in his court.

A Federal inquiry resulted in his indictment for bribery, and conspiracy to bribe, obstruct justice and defraud the Government of his impartial services in a series of patent infringement, receivership and other cases.

The several indictments were lumped in an "omnibus" indictment which omitted the direct bribery charge, which Cahill said appeared difficult to prove.

Four men were indicted with him. Of these, John L. Lotsch, former Brooklyn banker and politician, pleaded guilty before the trial started. Fallon and Forrest W. Davis, an accountant, pleaded guilty soon after a jury was selected on May 22.

Lotsch, testifying for the Government, swore he had paid $10,000 cash to Manton to buy an acquittal in a criminal case. He also testified Manton had received directly or indirectly loans totaling $50,000 from a now defunct Brooklyn bank of which he, Lotsch, was a director, and that the understanding was that there would be favorable decisions by Manton in cases in which Lotsch was interested.

Surprise Witness.

A surprise Government witness, Albert N. Chaperau, pseudo-diplomat and ex-convict who served some Hollywood stars as a jewel smuggler, testified Spector had boasted he "put over a deal" to fix an electric razor patent infringement case in Manton's court.

Another witness, Almon B. Hall, Wallingford, Conn., poultryman, testified he had paid $67,000 for a favorable decision in an incubator patent infringement suit appeal. He named Fallon as the man who received most of the money.

Manton himself took the stand after the defense called its character witnesses.

Manton denied Fallon had ever spoken to him of the cases involved. Manton also insisted that the money he got from Lotsch—the $10,000 Lotsch called a bribe—was a bank loan.

Cahill centered his cross-examination attack on Manton's own statement that whereas in June, 1934, he was $500,000 in debt, he was worth $750,000 in May, 1935.

Manton offered the explanation that he transacted several real estate deals, reorganizations and contracts to change his financial standing. His salary was $12,500 a year.

Cahill then went into numerous loans, cross loans, stock transfers and other business negotiations. Manton, however, maintained he was innocent of wrong-doing and insisted the loans were perfectly legal and in no way affected his opinions.

NEW YORK STATE JUDGE ACQUITTED

Kings County Court Judge George W. Martin was acquitted by a Supreme Court jury tonight of charges of accepting a $1000 bribe to dismiss a Brooklyn abortion case.

Spectators in the courtroom broke into shouts as the jury announced its verdict. The jury deliberated three hours before freeing the 63-year-old jurist.

The State had contended Judge Martin requested and received the bribe two years ago to dismiss an indictment charging abortion against Dr. Louis I. Duke, Brooklyn physician, and three nurses.

The $25,000-a-year judge was specifically charged with bribery, receiving an unlawful fee and conspiracy to obstruct justice involving a maximum penalty of 13 years in prison.

Martin was also acquitted of the charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and demanding an unlawful fee.

"Naturally, what can I say? I am a very happy man," Judge Martin told reporters.

Special Assistant Attorney-General John Harlan Amen said: "I told the jury to bring in a verdict that was in their hearts, a verdict that they thought was right and they did and I'm satisfied."

'BIG EIGHT' ACCUSED OF MOVIE MONOPOLY

Senate Committee Report Says Major Producers Keep Block Booking in Force.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP). — Eight corporations were said by a congressional report today to exercise a monopolistic control "for good or evil" over the pictures seen by the 88,000,000 persons in the weekly movie audience of this country.

Senator Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, included this statement in a lengthy report by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee recommending passage of his bill to outlaw "compulsory block booking and blind selling" of motion pictures.

Block booking was described as forcing theater operators to buy large blocks of a producer's film, "thus affording the exhibitors no choice but to take all of the pictures offered or none."

Leasing of Pictures.

Blind selling was termed leasing of pictures, sometimes before production, so that exhibitors have little or no knowledge of the stories or types involved.

Neely said the "prime purpose" of the reform legislation, which has had a stormy career of more than 10 years in Congress, was "to establish community freedom in the selection of motion picture films."

"A secondary purpose," the report added, "is to relieve independend interests in the motion picture industry — producers, distributors and exhibitors — of monopolistic and burdensome trade practices."

Leaders of Opposition.

Neely said chief opposition came from the "Big Eight" of the industry, identified in the report as "Paramount Pictures, Loew's (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer); RKO Radio Pictures, Warner Brothers Pictures, Universal Pictures Co., Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation, United Artists Corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation."

Asserting the "Big Eight" produced about 80 per cent of "the feature motion picture films each year," the report said block booking and blind selling "has led to three unhappy results:

"It has undermined the morals of part of a generation of American youth; it has resulted in a loss of independence and initiative on the part of local welfare groups; it has created a highly centralized propaganda power which at any time may be thrown into gear in order to emotionalize the American people."

$2,423,025 STATE INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS IN CITY

Total as of Thursday Last Day of Payment Without Penalty; $160,000 Delinquent.

Receipts of State income taxes from St. Louisans at the office of Collector William F. Baumann aggregated $2,423,025 as of last Thursday, the last day for payment without penalty, it was announced yesterday. The levy was $2,823,835.

About 1000 taxpayers took advantage of the law permitting payment in quarterly installments, which became effective last Wednesday. Their payments for the first installment totaled about $80,000. Only about $160,000 of the levy became delinquent.

There will be a 2 per cent Collector's commission and a penalty of 1 per cent a month on delinquent bills. Those remaining unpaid after July 2 will be certified to the State Auditor, who has authority to sue for collection. Delinquent bills may not be paid in instalments and delinquency on an instalment will make the entire balance payable at once.

BREAKS OFFICER'S NOSE WHEN ARRESTED AS DRUNKEN DRIVER

Motorist and Companion Finally Subdued in Fight With Belleville Police.

Two men who said they were Herman Neiter of Lemay, and Edward Seitz, 2500 Hartland avenue, Overland, were arrested in Belleville last night after fighting police who stopped their automobile on a traffic charge. Both said they are die-makers.

Neiter, the driver, struck Patrolman Ben A. Sharrock with his fist, breaking the policeman's nose, and Seitz grappled with Patrolman Andrew C. Kirkwood. Both were subdued. Warrants were issued charging Neiter with driving when intoxicated, resisting arrest and disturbing the peace, and his companion with interfering with officers. Arraigned before a Justice of the Peace, they pleaded not guilty, and a hearing was ordered for Thursday.

Succumbs to Skull Injury Suffered in Chasing Lad Who Climbed Fence to See Soccer Game.

Joseph F. Siegfried, 30 years old, who suffered a skull injury last Sunday when he fell in attempting to catch a boy who had climbed over the fence at the Public Schools Stadium to watch an all-star soccer game, died yesterday at St. Anthony's Hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Siegfried, who lives at 2521W St. Louis avenue, was a guard at the stadium. He was taken to City Hospital Sunday but was sent home after treatment for abrasions. Tuesday he suddenly became unconscious. A physician was called and on Wednesday he was taken to St. Anthony's.

Walter O. Wulle, a laborer, 23 years old, dived into shallow water in Spring Lake, near Fenton, on a Memorial day outing and bumped his head. His neck was a little stiff next day and by last night it had grown so uncomfortable that he went to City Hospital to find out what was wrong. An X-ray showed the neck was broken.

MAN TRYING TO WALK ACROSS EXPRESS HIGHWAY HIT BY AUTO

Fred Neusel Taken to Hospital With Broken Legs and Charged With Violating Ordinance.

Fred Neusel, a WPA watchman, 4931 Penrose avenue, suffered fractures of both legs last night when struck by an automobile while attempting to cross the express highway near Macklind avenue in Forest Park. Police who took him to City Hospital charged him with violation of an ordinance forbidding pedestrians to use the highway.

The driver, Ulysses G. Moore, Negro, 3106 Laclede avenue, swerved his machine in an effort to avoid hitting Neusel and sideswiped another automobile, which continued on without stopping.

William Armstrong, about 80 years old, 7925 Caroline avenue, Maplewood, suffered a skull injury and a fracture of the left wrist when struck by an automobile at Big Bend boulevard and Hazel avenue in Maplewood. The driver, James R. Jakle Jr., 1115 Louisville avenue, said Armstrong walked against the side of his machine.

Miss Phyllis Mercurio, 22, 1304 Howard street, was struck at Thirteenth and Monroe streets by an automobile swerving after collision with a Public Service Co. bus. She was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital with brain concussion.

EX-CONVICT WRECKS STOLEN CAR, IS HURT

Vincent Cloonan Injured in Chase by Motorcycle Police for Traffic Violation.

Vincent Cloonan, who was released from Missouri Penitentiary May 19 after serving six years for robbery, stole an automobile from a parking lot last night and was seriously injured a few minutes later when he wrecked it in trying to escape from a motorcycle patrolman.

At City Hospital he was found to be suffering from internal injuries and head lacerations. He told policemen he didn't know how a .45-caliber automatic pistol happened to be on his lap when he was arrested.

Cloonan drove away from a parking lot behind the University Club, Grand and Washington boulevards, in an automobile belonging to William C. Ferguson, who resides at the club.

Proceeding east on Washington, he neglected to stop at a major street sign at Compton avenue and was pursued by Motorcycle Patrolman Patrick O'Brien, who ordered him to pull to the curb.

Instead, Cloonan shot ahead at high speed, with O'Brien in pursuit, and crashed into an iron pole four blocks east at Leffingwell avenue when he tried to make a left turn. He was dazed when the officer pulled him from behind the wheel and took the pistol from his lap.

Cloonan, 30 years old, said he had been staying at a hotel at Gand and Page boulevards since release from the penitentiary.

His police record dates from 1918, when, at the age of 9, he was sent to Bellefontaine Farms Reformatory for petty larceny and truancy. In 1925 he was sent to the National Training School at Washington for Dyer Act violation. He escaped the following year and a short time later was sentenced to an Indiana reformatory for one to 14 years for burglary, serving 27 months.

Police began a search last night for an employe of the Marion Roe Hotel, 508 Pine street, after the management reported that about $250 was missing from a cash drawer at the registration desk and the employe, who was hired recently, had left.

Mary Recko, the hotel telephone operator, said the employe walked out early in the afternoon, telling her he would return in a few minutes. When he failed to come back she opened the drawer and noted the loss.

EX-SENATOR REED SUPPORTS RECALL AT KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 3 (AP).—Demands for a recall election today brought an assertion from Mayor Bryce B. Smith that he would welcome such an election as a test of public confidence in the present administration's efforts to clean up the city.

James A. Reed, former United States Senator, who himself has received support of the Kansas City Democratic machine in past campaigns, came out for the immediate recall of Mayor Smith and City Manager Eugene Zachman at a meeting of the Forward Kansas City Committee last night.

Despite a sharp difference of opinion as to the advisability of a recall election at this time, the committee voted to name a subcommittee to co-ordinate groups demanding a recall.

Opposition to Recall.

Some civic leaders have counseled against a recall movement now on the ground that no effective opposition precinct organization exists to offset the strong, although somewhat battered, Democratic organization.

The Democrats surely could win a recall election now, these leaders contend, despite the fact Boss Tom Pendergast is serving a prison sentence for income tax evasion and several of his lieutenants are in prison for vote frauds in the 1936 general election here.

Mayor Smith said he had not consulted the eight city councilmen, seven of whom are Democrats and one a Republican.

"I would like to know myself whether I have the confidence of the people in my effort to clean up the city and to bring its government inside the charter." The Mayor said. "We have done everything I believe humanly possible in the short space of six weeks to give the city the kind of government the charter contemplates."

The Mayor said the new administration, headed by Zachman, his former secretary, had revamped the city's purchasing department, removed the heads of five departments, reduced the payroll by approximately 1000 persons and was co-operating in a citywide audit now under way.

When Mayor Smith took control of the city government, simultaneously with the resignation of City Manager Henry F. McElroy, he declared he would end extravagant spending which had piled up a $1,850,000 deficit in the last year.

Subpena Recalled.

A new Jackson County grand jury backtracked today on plans to subpena bank and insurance records in a search for evaders of personal taxes.

Herley S. Daily, foreman of the jury, notified 22 banks and insurance companies to disregard the subpenas because their validity had been "seriously questioned."

The banks had been ordered to produce records of deposits of more than $1000 as of June 1, 1938, and the insurance companies to produce records of fire and theft insurance policies of more than $1500 on the same date.

The Kansas City Clearing House Association resisted the subpenas on the ground they were in violation of both the Federal and State constitutions as an invasion of the rights of all depositors."

The tax evasion hunt was initiated by W. W. Graves, Jackson County Prosecuting Attorney, who himself faces an ouster suit filed in the Supreme Court by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick and who faces charges of neglect of duty under indictment of a previous county grand jury.

Suits Ordered Filed.

The move to collect delinquent taxes, meanwhile, received impetus of the County Court which ordered the County Collector to file suits against all delinquent personal taxpayers in Kansas City. Suits previously had been filed against delinquents in the county outside of Kansas City.

The County Court agreed to hear the demands Monday of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and the Real Estate Board that it make arrangements to pay the cost of a county audit. The County Court already had asked a citizens' committee to supervise the audit.

The City Health Department was criticised in a report today as "riddled with political appointees and the waste which inevitably goes with the spoils system."

The report, based on a survey sponsored by the Kansas City Charities Fund, said, however, that Dr. E. H. Schorer, Director of Health, had made noteworthy improvements in the department despite severe handicaps. Most of the "dead wood" had been cut from the department's payrolls, the report said, since the new city administration had started pruning.

The illness of John J. Rathford caused a delay today in taking depositions in the city's suit to recover $356,000 paid by the City Water Department to the Rathford Engineering Co. for ferreting out water leaks from 1931 to 1938.

Rathford suffered a slight heart attack after he had appeared before the county grand jury yesterday.

An echo of an old county jury scandal was heard today when the Jackson County Parole Board paroled George (Frenchy) Andrea after he had been in jail since Dec. 18, 1937, on a plea of guilty to selling jury summonses. The Federal Government now plans to deport Andrea to Canada.

BUREAU SAYS BROKEN MAIN CAUSED SCHOOL EXPLOSION

Federal Investigators Report Gas Was Ignited by Burning of Papers in Ohio Building.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—The Bureau of Mines announced today that a broken underground gas line probably caused the school explosion at Barberton, O., May 31 which injured more than 50 children.

Bureau investigators reported a break in the service line five feet from the basement wall. The gas, they said, was ignited by the burning of waste paper in the school furnace.

"The pressure of the explosion," the report said, "was relieved by the lifting of the street floor and pushing out of two opposite walls of the old frame building temporarily used as a school.

"Prompt arrival of firemen and workmen resulted in almost immediate rescue of trapped victims and extinguishment of fire. This prompt action . . . undoubtedlly prevented a considerable number of fatalities."

RACING NEWS MONOPOLY SUIT ARGUMENTS IN SECOND DAY

Chicago Turf Bulletin's Attorney Reviews Testimony in Action Against Annenberg.

Attorney Joseph P. Savage spoke in behalf of the publishers of the Chicago Turf Bulletin who charged that M. L. Annenberg, publisher; the Cecelia Co., an Annenberg family concern; Illinois State Senator Daniel A. Serritella and others monopolized the dissemination of racing news and tried to drive the Turf Bulletin out of business.

Reviewing testimony by Edwin F. Burg, son of an officer of the Turf Bulletin, that he was slugged and shot five times at Houston, Tex., in 1936, Savage declared it showed "the parties to this conspiracy stopped at nothing to reach their goal of putting the plaintiff out of business."

Burg named two men connected at that time with Annenberg's Daily Racing Form. They were indicted but never prosecuted.

The incumbents, Judges Dick H. Mudge, Maurice V. Joyce and Alfred D. Riess, all Democrats, will be opposed by Arthur H. Felsen, Robert W. Tunnell and John D. Biggs, Republicans.

Polling places in the district, which embraces Bond, Washington, Monroe, Perry and Randolph counties as well as Madison and St. Clair, will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Judge Mudge was twice mayor of Edwardsville and has been on the circuit bench since June, 1933. Judge Joyce of East St. Louis and Judge Riess of Red Bud are also completing their first terms. Judge Joyce is a former city attorney of East St. Louis. Judge Riess served as city attorney of Red Bud, as State's attorney of Randolph County, as well as in the Illinois Legislature.

Felsen is a resident of East St. Louis, where he has been United States Commissioner since 1926. Tunnell, a native of Edwardsville, was formerly connected with the Edwardsville legal department. Judge Biggs of Greenville has served as City and State's Attorney as well as on the county bench.

Judges are to be elected also in other Illinois circuits tomorrow.

YOUR FORD V-8 HAS WHAT IT TAKES!

PROVED IN OPEN COMPETITION!

Through all the speed ranges from lowest to highest, the Ford V-8 gives you the economical, well-balanced performance of a soundly engineered car. You can see what it does on the roads you know. Now read what happened in the three great competitive tests of this year!

IT HAS THE SPEED

FLORIDA—March—In the tough going of the Daytona Beach Race, over 150 miles of sand and road, a Ford-built Mercury 8 finished first with a Ford V-8 only 200 yards behind it. Ford-built V-8 cylinder powered cars made a clean sweep of all prizes. The average speed of the winning car was 70.30 miles per hour.

IT HAS THE ENDURANCE

BUENOS AIRES—April—The Argentines held a race that was a race—the South American Grand Prize. 4515 miles, much of it over steep and tortuous Andean mountain roads. 69 cars were entered, including all leading low-price American makes. The race was won by a Ford V-8 and 10 of the 28 cars which finished were Fords.

IT HAS THE ECONOMY

CALIFORNIA—January—The annual Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run was conducted under the worst conditions in years. 314 miles over two mountain ranges (4000 and 6000 feet elevation) with rain all the way and snow the last 40 miles! Nearly half the entries, including the leading low-price cars, failed to finish within the time limit. But performance figures recorded by Motor Age show that the 85-hp. Ford V-8 delivered the best gasoline mileage in its class. The Mercury 8 was also best in its class.

The things that made these Fords winners, all Fords have. The Ford V-8 you buy from your dealer has the same quality of materials, the same precision workmanship, the same economy of operation which Henry Ford has always insisted upon. Add surpassing style, bigger hydraulic brakes, luxurious riding comfort, and you have the great new Ford of 1939.

MILITARY COMMENCEMENT FOR C. B. C. HIGH SCHOOL

Exercises for 94 Seniors Will Be Held at New Armory Wednesday Night.

Military commencement exercises for 94 seniors at Christian Brothers' College High School will be held at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday night at the New Armory, Spring avenue and Market street. The cadet corps of 425 members will participate.

Mgr. John P. Spencer will preside. An address will be made by Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley.

E. FERNANDEZ ARBOS, NOTED MUSICIAN, DIES

Guest Conductor of St. Louis Symphony for Three Seasons Succumbs in Spain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, June 3.—Enrique Fernandez Arbos, distinguished Spanish conductor and composer, died this morning at his summer home here, where he had been living since the outbreak of the revolution.

Arbos, who was guest conductor with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for three seasons from 1929 to 1931, was born in Madrid on Christmas day, 1863.

He was educated for the violin under the patronage of the Spanish royal family, and for many years toured Europe as a violin virtuoso. Later he became concertmaster of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra and of the Boston Symphony.

Returning to Spain, he became head of the violin department of the Madrid Conservatory. He was chiefly responsible for the organization of the Madrid Symphony Orchestra and remained its active head until its activities were suspended in 1936 as a result of the revolution.

pay him his winning on two $2.50 bets he had made shortly before the raid. He said he was told by a clerk that there was no record of the bets. Police arrested a clerk, identified by Hopson as the man who received the bets, and booked him on a charge of registering a bet.

Gaming Equipment Seized.

The search warrants were issued by Samuel H. Liberman, vice-president of the Police Board. Betting equipment seized in this manner is held by the Police Board subject to claim by the owners, who may have a hearing on the question of its return if they wish it. In the only recent case of such seizure, a few days ago, no claimant appeared at a hearing called by the Board. The articles seized are not of great money value. Police will try to use the tabs as evidence of the charge of registering a bet.

Irving and Patrick Lee are under peace disturbance charges as a result of the fight outside the North Grand establishment Friday. The Lees had become suspicious of a group of last-minute bettors who, they said, had won $3000 to $5000 recently, and had come to suspect that this luck was due to use of short-wave radio apparatus. Use of such apparatus, for a clean-up through information obtained a minute or two ahead of the bookmakers, was reported a few days ago in Lansing, Mich.

When Ellsworth T. Caverly, 76 years old, went into the place yesterday afternoon, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Hazel Cheatham, the Lees drove them out, inflicting several bruises on the elderly man, and followed them to their automobile, where the Lees tore out the two-way short-wave radio equipment.

The Lees explained to the police the way in which, as they believed, they had been the victims of unfair practice in a series of bets placed by Caverly and his daughter. They said the woman wore a silk beret which covered one ear, and they believed that a radio receiver might also be concealed there. Police were doubtful as to this.

The woman's husband, George W. Cheatham, a radio engineer, said they were experimenting with an apparatus for locating oil. The Cheathams, who are from San Diego, Cal., and Guy L. Stark, also a radio engineer of San Diego, were detained for investigation. They were living in a hotel at 2330 Olive street.

Beating a bookmaker to a race result is not an offense against the law, even if proved. In this case, the police acted on the Lees' statement that they had six establishments, and visited all of them in operation.

Error Discovered When Lawyer Appears to Drop Suit.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 3 (AP).—An attorney for Mrs. Nellie House, 31 years old, went into Circuit Court to ask for dismissal of her divorce suit. To his surprise the divorce already had been granted

Court officials found Mrs. House's case number was entered by mistake on divorce papers filed by an attorney for Mrs. Bessie House, 23. Judge Thomas A. Ballantine corrected the error by annulling the divorce.

RALPH PULITZER APPEALS $347,503 GIFT TAX CLAIM

Disputes Internal Revenue Bureau's Assertion and Takes Case to Federal Board.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—Ralph Pulitzer, formerly president of the New York World, asked the Tax Appeals Board today to overrule the Internal Revenue Bureau's ruling he owed $347,503 in gift taxes.

Pulitzer told the board he had created an irrevocable trust for his wife and children in 1931 but the bureau held it was not irrevocable. Under this ruling it asked for $355 additional taxes for gifts in 1932, $2083 in 1933, $3084 in 1934 and $341,981 in 1935.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT AMENDMENTS READY FOR HOUSE

Changes Said to Offer Business and Workers Potential $1,710,000,000 Tax Savings in 3 Years.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP). — The House Ways and Means Committee, formally recommending a series of far-reaching changes in the Social Security Law, said today they offered business and workers potential tax savings of approximately $1,710,000,000 over the next three years.

Republican members of the committee supported the proposed amendments although they contended, in a supplemental report, that the changes "in no sense represent a complete or satisfactory solution of the problem of social security."

The changes for the most part, are in line with the suggestions advanced by Secretary Morgenthau early in the Congress session and include freezing the old-age pension tax temporarily at its present level, beginning old age pensions in 1940, and abandoning the present provision for establishing a huge reserve fund.

Administration leaders plan to bring the amendments to the House floor on Tuesday for three days of debate.

Reserve Plan Change.

In place of the huge reserve originally contemplated, the committee proposed creation of a relatively small trust fund to be administered by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Labor and the Chairman of the Social Security Board. The total of the fund would not be permitted to exceed three times the highest annual expenditure anticipated in the next five years.

The proposed amendments also would increase old-age insurance benefits in the early years of the Act's operation and provide benefit payments for aged wives, widows, children and dependent parents.

The committee estimated this would add about $1,200,000,000 to the cost of the program during the next five years but said the over-all cost for the next 45 years would be the same as under existing law.

Bank Employes Taken In.

About 1,110,000 additional persons, including seamen, bank employes and employed persons 65 years of age and older would be brought under the old-age insurance system and about 200,000, chiefly bank employes, under the unemployment system.

The monthly benefits to wives, children and dependent parents of workers replace the provision in the present law for lump sum payments to the estate of deceased covered workers.

An estate would receive, provided the worker left no one entitled to monthly benfits, six times the monthly benefit to which the worker would have been entitled on retirement.

Republican Criticism.

Criticising this, the Republican report said: "Whether the workers of the country will be satisfied with this new concept remains to be seen. It puts the Government in the position of changing the terms of a contract after it has been entered into."

The committee recommended that the maximum Federal contribution for old-age assistance be increased from $15 to $20 monthly on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis with the states. The additional cost to the Government, the committee said, would range between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually, depending on the number of states taking advantage of it. Many do not pay the present $15 maximum.

The committee also recommended extension of the act to permit grants to Puerto Rico for maternal and child welfare, vocational rehabilitation and public health work.

Funeral services for Charles L. Kraft, vice-president of Whitaker and Co., brokers, who died Friday of heart disease at Barnes hospital, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Wagner Mortuary, 3621 Olive street. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Born in St. Louis, Mr. Kraft, 78 years old, had been connected with the company for 35 years. A bachelor, in recent years he had lived at the home of a sister, Mrs. Louis H. Behrens, 4944 Lindell boulevard. Another sister and two brothers also survive.

TWO DENY MURDER OF CHICAGO SPINSTER

Her Ex-Chauffeur and Man She Befriended Questioned by Police.

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP).—A former employe and a man who had borrowed money from Miss Rose Neary were questioned today in the killing of the 50-year-old spinster, whose body was found in her West Side apartment last night by friends after she failed to attend a church celebration.

The skull had been fractured by heavy blows and an electric cord from a radio had been wound about the throat.

The body was clothed, even to a hat, indicating Miss Neary was preparing to depart or had just returned to the apartment when she was struck from behind and fell face downward.

Known for her work in the church and in social service, she lived alone in the six-room apartment with two wire-haired terriers. One stood guard over the body; the other was locked in a rear room. She received the income from a trust fund established by her stepfather, Andrew O'Rourke. Her attorney said its value had decreased in recent years from about $100,000 to approximately $50,000.

Edward Donovan, 38, a street car conductor, was questioned after police said he told them he had borrowed money from Miss Neary several times and that last Monday she lent him $500 with which to make a trip to Canada to visit relatives. He was given lie detector tests but police did not disclose the results. He is married and the father of two children.

Frederick Hayward, a former chauffeur for Miss Neary, was released after questioning.

Officers said the killing was apparently not linked to robbery because an expensive diamond ring remained on one finger. A pocketbook was missing, however.

REX BAR LOSES LICENSE HELD IN WOMAN'S NAME

Testimony Showed Place Operated by Man Whose Permit Twice Had Been Revoked.

A liquor license for the Rex Bar, 111½ North Sixth street, held in the name of Miss Stella Giebe, has been revoked by Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel. Testimony showed the place was owned and operated by George Blockburger. His liquor license twice before has been revoked.

McDaniel scheduled a hearing after Miss Giebe, appearing before him voluntarily, sought advice for her troubles which she said included failure of Blockburger to pay her $2 a day for use of her name on the permit. She was employed in the tavern.

FIRST IN VALUE

REGARDLESS of what make of car you are now driving . . . regardless of what make of car you may be thinking of buying . . . we urge you to drive a new Chevrolet with Exclusive Vacuum Gearshift and thus bring your motor car knowledge up to date.

You should know about this Vacuum Gearshift, which goes into action automatically and supplies 80 per cent of the shifting effort, the moment you touch it with your finger, thanks to an exclusive vacuum booster!

You should know that this Vacuum Gearshift is different from and superior to any other type of steering-wheel gearshift used on any other motor car, due to its advanced, self-actuating vacuum principle!

You should know that the difference between Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum Gearshift and the ordinary type of steering-wheel gearshift is as great, as easily demonstrated, and as quickly noticeable, as is the difference between hydraulic brakes and mechanical brakes!

You owe it to yourself to understand how much more easily and effortlessly and efficiently you can shift gears with Chevrolet's Exclusive Vacuum Gearshift than with any other type of steering-wheel gearshift built today.

So please accept this invitation to drive a new 1939 Chevrolet and learn all about its Exclusive Vacuum Gearshift, as well as its superior acceleration, hill-climbing ability and all-round performance, without any obligation whatsoever.

See your Chevrolet dealer today; take the wheel of the nation's largest selling motor car; and then shift with that Exclusive Vacuum Gearshift and watch Chevrolet out-sprint the field!

Technicality Holds Up Bigamy Warrant Against Him; Two Women Appear.

A bigamy warrant for Homer E. McCreary, arrested Friday night in a search begun by police May 21 when his bride of five days, Mrs. Amanda Giesler McCreary, attempted to end her life on learning he already had a wife, was refused by the Circuit Attorney's office yesterday.

Warrant Officer William D. O'Connor said the office was without jurisdiction as the place of the alleged act of bigamy was in Ralls County. The second wife said McCreary married her in New London, Ralls County, last May 16.

That was the day after his final separation from his first wife, McCreary told police. He admitted also, police reported, that he had deserted from Jefferson Barracks on Nov. 10, 1937, after serving two and a half years of a three-year enlistment in the Sixth Infantry.

McCreary, an insurance salesman, is 22 years old, as is his first wife, Mrs. Marcella Sherill McCreary, 2504 Wise avenue, Overland. She said she obtained a divorce here May 27. The second wife is 21. Both young women appeared at the warrant office yesterday.

McCreary met his second wife about five weeks before their marriage when he called at her home, 2105 North Fourteenth street, to collect an insurance premium. She was taken to City Hospital on May 21 after she had inhaled gas from a stove in a room at 1428 Wright street.

Dental Society Speakers.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Dental Society will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at Hotel Statler. Speakers will be Drs. Hamilton B. G. Robinson, L. R. Boling, Wendell H. Griffith and Edward G. Hampp, all local members of the International Association for Dental Research.

GOVERNMENT BUYING EGGS IN CHICAGO; PRICES RALLY

Relief Corporation Enters Midwestern Market for First Time Since April, 1938.

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP). — The Government entered the Chicago egg market today for the first time since April, 1938, purchasing a car of fresh graded firsts at 15½ cents per dozen and rallying prices ½ cent from the lowest levels in five years.

The purchase was made for the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation for relief distribution. There are 12,000 dozen in a car.

The corporation has been buying eggs in the New York market for 10 days. Traders estimated Eastern purchases to date at 412,800 dozen.

Heavy receipts at midwestern markets have had a depressing effect on egg values recently. Primary markets last week received 219,647 cases, an increase of 25 per cent over a year ago.

UNMARRIED MOTHER CHARGED WITH POISONING HER CHILDREN

Six-Months-Old Girl Dead, Boy, 3, in Grave Condition in Cincinnati Hospital.

CINCINNATI, O., June 3 (AP). —An unmarried mother, Elsie Sullender, 24 years old, was charged today with fatally poisoning her six-month-old daughter. Police said she also confessed poisoning and beating a son, 3. He was in grave condition.

"I don't want to live any more," a hospital social service worker quoted her as saying. "I gave them all the poison I had. If I had more I would have given it to them.

"My brothers and sisters didn't want me because of the baby."

A detective, who announced her confession said she was in "fair" condition after taking a dose of household poison herself.

Nick Prives, Bottler, Charged With Intoxication, Carelessness; He Appeals.

Nick Prives, a bottler, 6023 Scanlan avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse and fined a total of $350 on charges of driving when intoxicated and careless driving by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday.

Mrs. Clarabelle Pierce, 4544 Cleveland avenue, testified she saw the automobile driven by Prives strike a parked car in front of 4465 Shaw boulevard the night of May 16. She and her husband had noticed Prives' erratic driving and followed him, she said. Prives, who denied being intoxicated but admitted having had some difficulty getting into his car after two glasses of beer, appealed.

MAN ACCUSED OF POSING AS OFFICER IN PARK, FINED

Roy Charles Wise, 4478 Delmar boulevard, a hamburger stand cook, was fined $200 and costs on charges of impersonating an officer and peace disturbance by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday.

He was arrested on Lindell drive in Forest Park Friday night by a park guard who had been stationed there following a complaint by Leon Shanks, 457 Westgate avenue, University City, that someone representing himself as an officer had "arrested" Shanks and a girl companion as they sat on a park bench Tuesday night. Friday night Shanks and Miss Gertrude Kincaid, 757 Syracuse avenue, University City, again sat on the bench and Wise was arrested after he approached them and engaged in a fight with Shanks.

Wise, who appealed, denied Shanks' identification of him as the man who accosted Shanks Tuesday night, and said that Friday night he was walking across the park after attending the opera when a park guard struck and arrested him. He appeared in court with one arm in a sling.

VOTE BY SAILORS THEMSELVES SETTLE SHIP LINE STRIKE

6000 Employes to Return to Jobs on 14 Vessels Tied Up a Week by Labor Dispute.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP). — The strike which had tied up for a week the 14 ships of the Eastern Steamship Co. was settled today by a vote of the sailors themselves. By the action, 6000 persons prepared to return to their jobs and the company planned to resume service tomorrow night.

Deploring the "severe loss to everyone involved," Alton B. Sharp, president of the company, said the "principal terms of the settlement are the terms offered by the company following long negotiations before the strike was called."

Sharp said wages would remain the same and only a "few minor adjustments" had been made in working conditions.

YUGOSLAVIA MAY SEEK BRITISH-FRENCH FRIENDSHIP

It Is Reported Minister Will Visit Paris and London After Berlin.

BELGRADE, June 3 (AP). — Yugoslavia will appeal to Britain and France for confidence in her neutrality, reliable sources said today. It is represented as anxious to maintain the friendship of all Europes great Powers—to avert domination by any one of them.

Following his return from conferences with Nazi leaders in Berlin, it is understood Foreign Minister Alexander Cinca-Markovich next will carry Yugoslavia's case to Paris and London.

Well-informed circles in Belgrade said the signing of a non-aggression pact with Germany was only a matter of time, although official comment was lacking.

Foreign Minister Cinca-Markovich now is in Berlin with Regent Prince Paul, who is the guest of Chancellor Hitler on a five-day state visit. It was understood that Prince Paul himself might visit the British and French capitals later this month.

BARNIDGE APPEAL ON RIVERFRONT TRACT

amily Decision Announced as Time for Plea to Supreme Court Expires.

There will be no recourse to the preme Court of the United States the litigation of the Barnidge mily interests over the Federal ndemnation of the riverfront morial site, it was announced terday by Francis H. Barnidge, sident of the Prunty Seed and Co. Yesterday was the last for applying to the Supreme urt for review of the decision which the United States Circuit urt of Appeals upheld the Gov- ment's right to acquire the site n. 27.

The Barnidge case was the first mpleted piece of litigation. Final dgment has been entered in Dis- ct Court as to two other tracts the site, but time for appeal in se cases has expired. Meanwhile Government is preparing to wind up the condemnation proceedings and seek early possession of the site, with the hope that wrecking of buildings may be started this month. However, the possibilities of future litigation are not closed.

The Barnidge family owns one of the other tracts on which final judgment has been entered and an additional tract on which final judgment has not been entered. On the latter piece of property they could, if they desired, carry on further opposition in the courts; other property owners in a corresponding position could do likewise.

Barnidge said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that many business men in the district would favor clearing a strip of land extending from the old Courthouse at Fourth street to the river, between Market and Chestnut streets, and another narrow strip between Eads Bridge and Washington avenue, from Third street to the river, if it should be found the entire 40-block site could not be obtained. This would furnish a mall east of the Courthouse and two wide approaches to the riverfront district, which would revive property values, he declared.

WHEAT FARMERS TURN OUT TO SEE KING AND QUEEN

SASKATOON, June 3 (AP).—Farm families from Saskatchewan's rolling wheatlands joined city cousins today in welcoming King George VI and Queen Elizabeth with the greatest demonstration ever witnessed in this agricultural center.

When the royal train arrived at 2:19 p. m. a crowd of 100,000—more than twice Saskatoon's population—thronged the city and sent up waves of cheers as the King and Queen rode slowly over an 11-mile route.

The two-hour royal visit was limited to the motor ride, the reading of an address by Mayor C. Niderost and inspection of a guard of honor by the King.

Night on the Prairie.

The royal train stood on a siding tonight, giving the King and Queen a night of rest undisturbed even by train movement.

Tomorrow at Portage La Prairie, 54 miles west of Winnipeg, the King and Queen will attend services at the United Church of Canada. Later their train will roll across Northern Ontario, arriving at Sudbury Junction in the evening for a 10-minute ride and a 50-minute stop at Sudbury.

While all day long today the blue and silver train clicked off miles of Canada's thousand-mile-wide wheat belt, the King and Queen in their observation car enjoyed the rare early summer beauty of the prairies. They saw a prairie mirage, wind whirlpools pick up dust and race across the fields, and tall wheat elevators.

They Heeded the Call.

In his speech Mayor Niderost told the King many people of this part of Canada came from European countries not under his rule but "have come to know and appreciate the blessings of freedom and liberty." He recalled that many men of the province "heeded the call of their country 20 years ago, and for which they would again should it be necessary."

The prairie city gave the King and Queen two features no other city had arranged. Sheltered from the sun under a red and gold canopy in the station plaza were 700 high school girls singing softly "Sing Along the Way." Then they formed a living Union Jack with small colored flags and finally burst into wild cheering for the King and Queen, who waved to the youngsters.

The other unusual feature was a county fair of exhibits, with the royal car moving slowly through lines of prize cattle, mostly shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus, horses, sheep, hogs, exhibits of wheat and flour, honey, lumber and wood products.

Greeted by Man Aged 104.

In the special stand near the station canopy the King and Queen were welcomed by Thomas Swain of North Battleford, 104 years old, who once opposed British rule. His father was an Englishman and his mother a Cree Indian. He fought in the Louis Reil Northwest Rebellion of 50 years ago.

BAR GROUP AGAINST CURBING PRESS COVERAGE OF SUITS

New Jersey Committee Says Courts Have Adequate Power to Control Proceedings.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 3 (AP).—The New Jersey Bar Association was advised by its Publicity Committee last night that it would be a mistake to pass laws restricting newspaper stories of court cases to "exact facts without editorial comment."

The committee was requested a year ago to study the propriety of restricting editorial comment on each lawsuit "until the case is actually closed by decision."

"Any attempt to restrict the heritage of the free press," said the committee's report, "would be greatly resented by the press and would disrupt the friendly relations which this committee had endeavored to establish. . . .

"Furthermore, the courts have sufficient power to control their proceedings and keep them within bounds of modesty and respectability without assistance from the Bar Association. We recommend that no action be taken on this matter."

Priest to Say First High Mass.

The Rev. George Rieffer, who was ordained March 19 in Rome, after completing his studies there at the North American College, will celebrate his first solemn high mass at 11 a. m. today at St. Peter's Catholic Church, 219 West Argonne drive, Kirkwood. Father Rieffer, 26 years old, has been assigned to the Archdiocese of Santa Fe. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rieffer Sr., 109 West Jefferson avenue, Kirkwood.

U. S. WHEAT DELEGATES TO RETURN TO LONDON

Will Carry Washington's Reply to Canadian Quota and Price Proposals.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—United States members of the preparatory committee of the World Wheat Conference will return to London late th month with instructions as to this nation's attitude toward a Canadian proposal for world export quotas and an international minimum price.

At meetings in April and May, the Canadian delegates suggested a minimum world price of 80 cents a bushel for No. 3 northern wheat on the basis of Fort Williams Canada.

The Canadians also proposed that the four major exporting nations—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—allocate export quotas on the basis of the average share of world trade during the last 16 years.

Expressing the view that a world wheat agreement should not necessarily contain a provision for minimum prices, the American delegates—headed by Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the Agriculture Department's marketing section, indicated they would accept it rather than see efforts to draft an agreement fail.

The preparatory committee will resume its study of the world wheat situation July 7.

Self-Employment Association.

A new organization known as the American Youth Self-Employment Association, designed to help unemployed young men and women create their own jobs, will be formed at a meeting in the Barr Branch Library, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, next Saturday evening.

Killed in Indiana Robber Hunt.

CHESTERTON, Ind., June 3 (AP).—Indiana State police looking for truck robbers near the Illinois line shot and killed a Negro early today and captured three others. The dead man was Ted Harris, 22 years old, Chicago. About $1000 worth of merchandise was recovered.

THE RIDE THAT NEVER WEARS OUT!

NO FRICTION—NO DIRT—NO WEAR TO MAR THE SMOOTHNESS OF THE RHYTHMIC RIDE!

WHY be satisfied with anything less than the most modern kind of ride, when you can travel in luxury in an Olds with modern coil springs all around?

There's no doubt about it—coil springs are the coming thing. They have so many advantages! They eliminate friction. They cannot squeak or rattle. They never require lubrication. They are not affected by temperature or weather. Above all, being friction-free, they never wear out! You get the same smooth, steady Rhythmic Ride, whether you've driven a hundred miles or a hundred thousand!

And what a ride it is! Level, gentle, perfectly stabilized! You see ruts, bumps and holes in the road—but you hardly feel them. Olds takes pitted country roads, rough cobblestones or worn-out concrete as smoothly as most cars take the boulevards.

There is literally no other ride in the world quite like Oldsmobile's Rhythmic Ride. That's a strong statement. Yet it is easy for you to prove. Just come in for a trial drive. Take the wheel of an Olds and put it through its paces. When you come back, you'll be convinced that no car is complete unless it has modern coil springs all around!

★ Delivered at Lansing, Michigan. Prices include safety glass, bumpers, bumper guards, spare tire and tube. State and local taxes, if any, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice. General Motors Instalment Plan. A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

SLOT MACHINE AGENT PUTS UP $500 BAIL

Denies Stench-Bombing of Tavern Where Owner Installed Own Phonograph.

William McConnell, business manager of the Phonograph Owners' Association, which installs coin-operated phonographs in nearby Illinois counties, furnished $500 bond yesterday at Belleville on an information charging him with the stench-bombing of a tavern operated by Joseph Agnes near Belleville.

Agnes, who had an agreement with the association, attributed the stench-bombing to his purchase of a phonograph for his tavern. The agreement, he said, provides that the tavern owner shall not rent machines except from the association, but he did not consider buying his own machine a violation of the agreement.

F. V. Payeur of Edgemont Station, named with McConnell in the information issued by the County Court, also surrendered and was released on bond. He is not connected with the association.

Both men denied throwing the stench-bombs, which were hurled through a plate glass window of the tavern last May 24, four days after Agnes had bought the phonograph. Agnes said he had been warned by members of the association not to operate it.

McConnell, who lives at 550 North Eighty-sixth street, East St. Louis, said he and Payeur were in Agnes' tavern the night the bombs were thrown, but had no discussion with Agnes, and left after having several drinks.

State's Attorney Louis P. Zerweck said he had received complaints from other tavern owners, who reported they were threatened because they installed their own phonographs. A phonograph, bought by the owner of a tavern near East St. Louis, and the interior of the place, were smeared with creosote recently, Zerweck said, by vandals who broke into the place at night.

The Phonograph Owners' Association is a corporation organized by former members of the Southern Illinois Electrical Phonograph Owners' Association, one of its officers said. Its phonographs are serviced by the Electrical Workers' Union of the A. F. of L.

JAPANESE ADMIRALTY SILENT ON NEW SHIPS FOR U. S. NAVY

TOKYO, June 3 (AP).—The Japanese Admiralty declined to comment today on the United States naval building program pending receipt of official information concerning the 24 ships, to cost $350,000,000, which the United States navy has ordered.

Naval sources were expected to reiterate, however, Japan's determination "to take all necessary steps" for control of the Western Pacific.

Only a month ago, on Navy Day, an official pamphlet was issued warning the people that "the United States has moved definitely toward invasion of the Pacific."

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1939.

M'QUINN HITS TWO HOMERS; GILL PITCHES EFFECTIVELY

By James M. Gould

The Browns' losing streak now has reached 11 straight and, unless they succumb to the law of averages and win a game from the Senators today, they will equal the all-time Brownie straight defeat mark of 13, made in 1936.

Having lost nine before yesterday's doubleheader, Manager Fred Haney's men dropped two more to the Athletics and they dropped both by the simple expedient of blowing skyhigh in the ninth. In the first game, the Mackmen scored two in the ninth to break a 3-3 tie and, in the nightcap, they counted five in the final frame to erase a St. Louis lead and win by a score of 8 to 6.

Gill's Best Showing.

George Gill, who made his best showing since becoming a Brownie, lost the decision in the opener to Bill Beckman, former Washington University star. Gill allowed only four hits in the first eight frames but was hammered for three safeties and the winning runs in the ninth. In this game George McQuinn hit his fifth and sixth homers of the season.

Early Scoring in Opener.

The second game started with Roxie Lawson and Lee Ross as the pitchers. Neither finished. Lawson went out after the sixth and a four-run rally, helped by a fluke, player-colliding triple by Berardino, put the Browns ahead in the sixth.

In the ninth, however, Gantenbein's homer started the inning. Then, a single. A low throw by Clift and another single set the stage for Chapman, the former coast football star, to hit his sixth homer of the season and hand Bill Trotter the defeat with Joyce, who pitched the last two innings for the Mackmen, being credited with the victory.

In the first game, both Gill and Beckman started unsteadily. McQuinn's first homer put the Browns in the lead in the first frame, but, in the second, a pair of passes, a triple by Chapman and a single by Beckman were welded into two Philadelphia runs. The Mackmen picked up another in the third on a pass to Johnson and Brucker's double and then, in the last half, McQuinn came through with his second four-bagger with Thompson on base.

After this inning, the pitchers took command. For the next five innings, not a Mackman saw first off Gill, and Beckman was only a step behind, permitting only two hits in the same time.

Gill got the first man up in the ninth. Then, Brucker singled and Newsome ran for him. Chapman doubled Newsome to third. Nagel, hitless to this point, singled two runs over. It was a sudden letdown for a pitcher who had retired 17 men in a row.

Beckman, on the other hand,

Futile Efforts by St. Louis Players in Two Losing Contests

George McQuinn (left) crossing the plate after a home run in the first game of the double-header with the Athletics yesterday. Despite McQuinn's feat the Browns lost the game. Then there is Stuart Martin with a rather pained expression on his face as he slides into third base in the contest with the Giants in New York. You can tell it was a hard effort for Stuart and totally unnecessary as the throw was wide. Oh yes, the Cardinals lost that game too.

Johnstown Wins Belmont Stakes by Five Lengths

$37,020 for Owner Brings Colt's Earnings for 2-Year Career to $156,065—Belay Is Second.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Tall, dark and handsome Johnstown just about cleared up any lingering doubt to his right as champion of the three-year-olds today by galloping home a five-lengths winner in the seventy-first running of the classic Belmont Stakes.

Adding this mile and half test of endurance and speed to his previous conquests in the Withers mile, the Kentucky Derby, the Wood Memorial and the Paumonok, William Woodward's whirlwind ran away from a field of five others.

Starting from the rail, he broke on top, and made every pole a winning one as he covered the long run in 2 minutes, 29 3-5 seconds, just one second off the track record, set by War Admiral in winning this stake two years ago.

Easy Going for Stout.

Without the hindrance of heavy going, such as that which proved him no mudder in the Preakness—his only defeat in seven three-year-old starts—"Big John" was the whole show. Jockey Jimmy

Johnstown, a very rapid breaker. He got away fast, was sent to the front and then the boy took a good hold of his head, allowing the colt to gallop at his leisure. He drew away in run down back stretch and all through final quarter-mile boy was looking back. Belay trailed far back for the first mile, began to close ground turning out of back stretch, came through on inside and was next best. Gilded Knight was hustled into a contending position and rated along to top of stretch, could not stall off Belay's rush for the place. Heather Broom was way back in early part, closed some ground. Hash was thoroughly through at end of a mile and a quarter. Knickerbocker ran well for six furlongs then quit.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Who Wants the Job?

NEW YORK referees may be looking out the window when asked if they are interested in handling the Galento-Louis championship fight next June 28. How to judge a battle that seems likely to be a long succession of one-sided fouls, under a "no-foul" rule, has them worried.

Two-ton Tony throws his blows and lets them fall where they will. He launches his gloves but as to their direction and destination all too frequently these are in the laps of the gods. Louis hasn't fouled since the memorable occasion when, dazed from Max Schmeling's rights, in their first bout, he hit low several times.

Unless Tony reverses himself, he will be landing in illegal territory many times. But perhaps that's all right, as concerns low blows. Many fighters themselves believe the official protectors used prevent any important hurt from below-the-belt punching.

But Tony's fouls are various. He hits while holding, he rabbit - punches on occasion, he is even likely to land on the sciatic nerve in a particularly wild flurry. Moreover, he has been known to butt—perhaps not intentionally; he'll backhand if the referee isn't watchful.

What's the referee to do about it? If he permits that no-foul rule to apply generally, he certainly will give Joe Louis a raw deal. If he permits Louis to retaliate by fouling like Tony, then the fight will be a lumberjack row. If one of Tony's fouls should incapacitate Louis, is it to be passed by with the loss of a mere round? Or must Louis sink to the floor, and, as champion, be counted out on a palpable foul?

The occasion may not arise—but it could, with a fighter of Tony's lack of control. And that's why New York referees may secretly be hoping that fame will pass them by, on the night of June 28.

It Won't Happen.

WHOEVER'S NAMED can hardly let the champion lose because of an opponent's low blow or foul tactics. That's out.

If there's any leniency shown in the matter of fouls it will be in favor of the champion. Jack Dempsey dealt out many fouls himself, in various fights. If a challenger had committed the fouls with which Champion Dempsey was charged in the Firpo fight the bout probably would have gone to the Argentine on disqualification.

One heavyweight won a title on a foul—Max Schmeling; and that resulted in the present no-foul regulation. But the loser was not the titleholder. Ad Wolgast, while lightweight champion, lost the title on a foul to Willie Ritchie, by way of exception.

New York has tried honestly to eliminate the foul as an unfair factor for either contestant and also to prevent one fighter from falsely claiming to have been fouled by a low blow. And yet the situation on June 28 will be such that fouls will play a major part in the result.

And of course that spells grief for the third man in the ring.

Nova Ready for Louis?

ALTHOUGH LOU NOVA decisively beat Max Baer, if it were left to a vote of disinterested, ringwise veterans he would not be sent against Joe Louis in a title fight next September, as planned. Reports show that experienced observers believe it would be sending Nova to certain defeat—he's too green.

The September fight is being

YANKEES WIN; DAHLGREN HITS HOMER, SINGLE

CLEVELAND, June 3 (AP). — The New York Yankees today squeezed out a 3 to 2 victory over the Cleveland Indians to sweep their three-game series.

Mel Harder, the Tribe's well-seasoned righthander, scattered ten hits but these proved enough for the world champions. Babe Dahlgren, who took over Lou Gehrig's first base job last month, got the third of three singles the Yanks bunched for a run in the second inning and his fourth homer of the season for a run in the fifth.

The deciding tally was punched across in the eighth on a single by Bill Dickey and a double by George Selkirk.

Bump Hadley, pitching five hit ball, joined two Yankee teammates who have won five games without losing, but he had to be helped in the ninth by Johnny Murphy.

Error on Steal of Home Gives White Sox Victory.

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP). — The Chicago White Sox won another uphill victory over Washington, 8 to 7, today. Gene Walker's attempted steal of home in the eighth inning resulted in the winning run as Catcher Angelo Giuliana dropped Pitcher Joe Krakauskas' throw. The triumph gave the Chicagoans the series, two games to one.

The Browns, But Not Ours, Win 3 Games in Day

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).

BASEBALL'S firemen Browns are doing all right even if baseball's St. Louis Browns aren't.

Clint Brown, Mace Brown and Walter Brown are three top-notch relief specialists — sometimes called "firemen" because they have to quench the opposition when it gets hot. All three answered alarms today and all were credited with victories.

Clint pitched the White Sox to an 8-7 triumph over the Washington Senators. Mace worked a seven-inning trick in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 10-7 victory over the Phillies, and Walter led the New York Giants to a 6-5 edge over the Cardinals.

Germany Leads England 2-0 in Davis Cup Play

BERLIN, June 3 (AP).—The German Davis Cup team took a commanding 2-0 lead over England in the opening singles matches of their European zone semifinal tennis series today.

After Charles Hare was forced to forfeit to Roderick Menzel because of a leg injury, with the Sudeten German leading, 6-0, 6-1, Heinrich Henkel took the measure of R. A. Shayes, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

Wins European Title.

MILAN, June 3 (AP). — Marcello Cerdan of France won the European welterweight boxing championship tonight when he outpointed the titleholder, Saverio Turiello of Italy, in a 15-round fight.

REDS LOSE FIRST GAME IN EIGHT TO BEES, 4 TO 3

BOSTON, June 3 (AP).—The seventh-place Boston Bees, beaten seven straight times by the Cincinnati Reds, turned the tables on the National League leaders today and whipped them, 4 to 3, but temporarily lost the services of Pitcher Jim Turner.

The Bees' hurler took a hard line drive from Ival Goodman full in the face in the sixth inning, suffering a broken nose and a badly-gashed right cheek.

Before being literally knocked out of the game, Turner did yeoman service on the mound and at bat, driving in Boston's first two runs. In the fourth, after Eddie Miller and Al Lopez singled, Turner doubled with two out and scored that pair.

The Reds also scored in the fourth when Frank McCormick doubled and came home on Ernie Lombardi's single.

Turner walked Wally Berger in the sixth. Berger was sacrificed to second and took third on Goodman's blow which felled Turner. Joe Sullivan then took the mound and McCormick singled to bring in Werber with the tying score.

Boston took the lead again in the sixth, however. Lefty Grissom, who was charged with the loss, was removed when Miller singled and scored on Lopez' third homer of the year.

The Reds counted their final score of the day in the eighth on an error by Lopez. Goodman, who had singled and had been advanced to third on McCormick's double, scored when Lopez dropped the third strike on Harry Craft and the ball went to the backstop.

Russell Leads Cubs to Victory Over Dodgers.

BROOKLYN, June 3 (AP). — Rookie Glen Russell led the Chicago Cubs to a 10 to 5 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today with a home run, a double and a single which were good for four runs.

The game was decided by a six-run rally in the eighth inning when the Cubs chased Tot Pressnell with four singles, two walks and two doubles, including Russell's. His homer had tied the score in the fifth.

The veteran Earl Whitehill pitched effectively and got credit for the victory although Ernie Koy homered off him in the eighth with two on and he was removed after walking the first batter in the ninth.

DRIVE OFF DAVIS TOPS 4-RUN RALLY IN SEVENTH

Warneke and Shoun Batted Out; Walter Brown Stars in Relief; Medwick Drives Across Two Runs.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Large Walter Brown did a fancy job of relief pitching this afternoon, Curt Davis' sinker failed to sink on one important pitch to Tony Lazzeri, Tony pushed a home run up into the upper deck of the left field stands and the Cardinals lost the odd game of their series to the Giants, 6 to 5. Fortunately the Boston Bees took the measure of the Reds, so the Redbirds of Raymond Francis Blades remained only three games behind the league-leading Cincinnati team of Deacon Will McKechnie.

Lon Warneke started the game for the Cardinals, but three members of the Giants, two of them former teammates of the Hummer, batted as though they owned the lean son of Arkansas, and after the Giants had overcome a two-run lead and were biting into a three-run margin the Redbirds gave Lon in the seventh, Manager Blades decided it was not Warneke's day.

Clyde Shoun was in the picture then long enough to pitch to one hitter, who singled, and then Davis, the hardest working of all the Cardinals, was called from the bullpen and though he yielded only one hit in two full innings, that safety made Curt the losing pitcher and he suffered his second defeat in as many days and his fifth of the season. He owns seven victories.

Brown in Brilliant Form.

Brown, in contrast, was in brilliant form. Relieving Harry Gumbert with Cardinals on first and second, three runs in and two out in the seventh, the portly righthander struck out Stuart Martin to end that rally and then struck out four other Cardinals as he finished the game with two and one-third hitless innings.

Stuart Martin singled with one out in the first inning, took third on Pepper Martin's single and on the throw for Stuart, Pepper raced to second. Joe Medwick, who had gone hitless on eight previous trips to the plate during the series, lashed a single to left and the two Martins scored.

Warneke protected the two-run margin until the fifth, when Bill Jurges singled for his second of three straight hits off Lon, and Harry (the Horse) Danning whacked a home run into the left field seats.

The score remained tied until the seventh when the Cardinals knocked Gumbert out and tallied three runs. Medwick drew a pass to start the frame and Mize singled to center, sending Joe to third. Slaughter bounced out to Bonura and Gutteridge's grounder gave Lazzeri an easy chance to nail Medwick at the plate, but Tony fumbled, Medwick scored, Mize reached third and Gutteridge first.

O'BRIEN VACATES 1938 TITLE; TO PLAY IN OPEN

By W. J. McGoogan

Chester O'Brien won't defend the St. Louis District Golf championship in the twenty-fourth annual tournament starting tomorrow at Bellerive Country Club, but a strong field including six former champions is scheduled to qualify over 18 holes. O'Brien is in Philadelphia to play in the United States Open, June 8-10.

Dick Bockenkamp, Algonquin; Jim Manion, Meadow Brook; Chris Kenney, Normandie; Tom Draper Jr., Normandie; Bob Cochran, Norwood Hills, and Elliott Whitbread, Westborough, are former titleholders who are included in the pairings of 123 announced yesterday.

Additional entries will be accepted at the first tee, preferably between 9 a. m. and noon.

The number of entrants thus far is greater than the number paired in advance last season and Clarence Wolff, secretary, said he thought the field would be larger than in the past several years.

Pitch and Run Paradise.

Good weather this spring has put the Bellerive course in tip top condition and it would not be surprising if it would take a really good score to qualify. Bellerive pays dividends for the golfer who is adept in the art of the pitch and run shot from close to the greens.

It has nine par four holes each shorter than 400 yards. The par for the course is 71 and its total yardage is 6450, but under tournament conditions the course, no doubt, will be lengthened a bit.

In practice rounds there the past few days Cochran has been getting around and, occasionally, under par, having had a 68 and a 69.

Joe Switzer, Draper, Jim Black, Bob Stamm and Jim Benson are other entrants who have been going so well in practice as to indicate they will have to be reckoned with for O'Brien's vacated title.

64 to Qualify.

One new departure this season is that 64 will qualify for match play in the championship as against 32 in former years. That was done to avoid as far as possible the exclusion of good players from match play just because they happened to have one bad round as has so frequently happened in the past.

Two rounds of match play in the title flight will be played Tuesday with the third round Wednesday, the fourth Thursday and the semifinals Friday. Saturday will be open with the finals set for Sunday.

All matches will be at 18 holes except the semifinals in the championship flight and the finals in all classes which will be 36 holes.

State Tournament, June 20.

The thirty-fifth annual Missouri State amateur tournament will be played at the Blue Hills Club, Kansas City, June 20 to 24. No St. Louis player has won the title for the past four years or since O'Brien won in 1933. Entries close Saturday, June 17 with Bonner Miller, secretary, 5939 Horton place. The fee is $3.

'Save a Place for Me'

George Sisler Jr. recently visited the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., and inspected the plaque of his illustrious father, former first baseman for the Browns. George Jr. is a student at Colgate and a pitcher on the baseball team. He pitched a few innings against Army recently in a program honoring Abner Doubleday, the father of baseball. Army won the game, 5 to 1.

Cards Lose to Giants, 6 to 5, On Lazzeri's Homer Off Davis

It was then that Walter Brown relieved Gumbert and it was then that the Cardinal attack died down to a swishing whisper.

Tony Becomes the Hero.

Not so with the Giants. Jurges opened the New York seventh with a tremendous triple to left-center, his third straight hit, and when Danning made it three straight safeties for himself with a single to left, scoring Judges, Mike Gonzeles carried Blades' message to the bull-pen and Shoun went to the mound. Ott greeted the southpaw with a single to right, sending Danning to third and Davis replaced Shoun. Bonura's sacrifice fly to Pepper Martin scored Danning, but Davis seemed to be on his way out of the jam with a one-run margin remaining when he fanned Demaree, the other three-time hitter against Warneke, and quickly put over two strikes on Lazzeri. Then it was, though, that the Davis sinker wouldn't sink. Tony swung his war club with all his American League strength and the ball sailed into the upper deck and on that drive rode the Giant victory.

The Cardinals threatened in the eighth when Pepper Martin walked, stole second after Medwick flied out and continued to third on an error by Jurges, but with the tying run only 90 feet from the plate Walter Brown struck out Mize and Slaughter to end that inning and then disposed of three Redbirds in order in the ninth, fanning Gutteridge and Pinch-Hitter Terry Moore.

Redbird Notes.

NEW YORK, June 3.

THE Cardinals open a four-game series with the Bees at Boston tomorrow, playing a Sunday doubleheader. Manager Ray Blades has named Morton Cooper and Clyde Shoun as the probable pitchers. Lou Fette and Bill Posedel are due for the Bees.

Reports from Boston said Fette was to be married before pitching against the Cards in one of the games of the doubleheader.

Bill Terry took over the management of the Giants seven years ago today. The team was in last place when the late John J. McGraw retired.

The final of the Card-Giants series attracted 12,873 cash customers.

Pepper Martin stole second in the eighth inning and continued to third when Jurges fumbled the throw from Danning. Pepper injured his left wrist sliding into third and retired for repairs, Lynn King taking his place. A sprained wrist seemed to be the extent of Pepper's injury.

SCULLINS SCORE 3346 AND WIN PIN TOURNEY

The Scullins won the 100 per cent handicap bowling tournament at the Saratoga Recreation with a score of 3346. The team had a scratch total of 3022. Second place went to the Sarah-Olive Boosters, with 3331, and third to the Houcks, with 3240. The low score to cash in the team event was 3032.

The doubles title went to L. A. Magee and L. M. Reilly with 1343 and the singles to Buzz Fieldson with 771. Low score in the money in the doubles was 1249 and 649 in the singles. Bud Rice won the all events scratch event, with 1971, and Fieldson took the handicap all events, with 2128.

COOPER TAKES LEAD IN GOODALL $5000 TOURNEY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Two men who together could fit into his shadow over-shadowed National Open Champion Ralph Guldahl today as one went flying by him and the other came nipping at his heels in the third day of the $5000 Goodall round-robin golf tournament.

Light-Horse Harry Cooper cut two points off Guldahl's lead by beating him and Tony Penna, 1 up apiece, in the morning round while Guldahl was finishing all even. In the afternoon, Cooper piled up nine more points against Craig Wood and Johnny Revolta. Guldahl, stacking up against the hottest scoring streak the tourney has had so far, finished four down to Denny Shute and 2 up on Paul Runyan for a net loss of two.

Shute Gains 23 Points.

That combination of events raised Cooper's point score to plus 26; lowered Guldahl's to 21, and lifted Shute into third place with a plus 17 score.

Shute made the most remarkable recovery. Starting the day far down the list of 15 contenders with a minus 6 rating, Denny carved out a three-under-par 67, one shot off the course record, to win 15 holes from Revolta and Jimmy Thomson. Then he came back after lunch to post a 68 and finish 4 up each on Guldahl and Runyan. Denny thus gained 23 points.

Snead, who won last year at Cincinnati, took a decided tumble. The West Virginian after losing four holes his first time out, fired a 71 for his fifth round. But even though he was only one over par, he lost four more points as Hines shot a 68 at him and Hogan posted a 69. That dropped Sam down to ninth with plus 5.

Today's scoring generally was the best of the tournament. In addition to Shute's two sub-par performances and the one each by Hines and Hogan, Wood cracked out a 69 in the morning and Penna a 68 in the afternoon. The little Dayton (O.) pro's round was the more remarkable for the fact that it included a 6 on the par-four eleventh.

Shute's Score Best.

Shute's 36-hole score of the 135 was the best for this course since Sarazen finished 70-66 to win the 1932 Open title. Cooper, the most consistent scorer of the entire field, barely missed his third straight 70 when he rimmed the cup from 3 feet on the eighteenth of his final round.

The leaders, after Cooper, Guldahl and Shute, are Hines, plus 15; Penna, plus 12 (all of them gained on his 68); Wood and Hogan, plus 7; Runyan, plus 6, and Snead, plus 5.

Pepper Martin Day.

Pepper Martin, veteran outfielder, who has sparked the Cardinals' attack this spring, will be honored with a "day" Sunday, June 18. Gifts probably will include something Pepper says he needs for his Oklahoma farm—a pair of brood mares. Henry W. Kiel, former Mayor, is treasurer of the committee and contributions may be sent to him at 1967 Railway Exchange Building.

soft-pedaled by Mike Jacobs. That's not because the idea has been abandoned. Mike doesn't believe in ballyhooing two fights at once—and just now the Galento battle is in the offing.

"Besides," comments the Tex Rickard of today, with a wink, "Galento might knock off Louis—and then we'd have to make over all our plans."

MOST OF US BELIEVE the wink and not the remark; but there are still some who think that Galento has an outside chance to prove another stunning surprise.

And, if they give Tony a cestus, we might agree with them.

We have before us the complete record of Galento. It is contained in a life history entitled "Tony the Great," by Joseph G. Donovan, and records 96 fights, of which Tony won 69, lost 22 and fought five draws.

Of his defeats 17 were decisions against him, three were technical knockouts and two were due to fouls.

He hasn't lost a fight since June 23, 1937 when Arturo Godoy beat him for the second time that year; but his opponents since that time have been made up of boxers who have been kayoed or beaten frequently.

The record, which extends over 11 years, is not impressive. And still his biographer says of his chances:

"I DON'T THINK TONY GALENTO will be such an easy mark to defeat. . . . He is well equipped to fight Joe Louis. He has had vast experience; he has courage, a terrific, chopping punch; he is awkwardly clever and tricky; he is a cruel fighter and not just a fat soft, jolly slugger. He is a sharp hitter with a left hook . . ."

The biographer compares Tony's powerful, squatty, tremendously strong physique with that of the Neanderthal Man as sculptured by Fredrick Blaschke.

"The Jersey Ogre's build," he continues, "is that of prehistoric man rather than a modern obese person. Galento once was flabby, fat hanging over the sides of his trunks. He lost that through athletic competition. Today his stomach does not protrude."

AND SO FORTH. But, after all, you can't escape the fact that Tony's age is 29, that he has lived well if not wisely and that his record against a field of very ordinary opponents contains 22 defeats.

Tony is tough—we'll grant that. We've seen him on the job. He probably will take more cruel punishment than any man who has faced Louis, before he goes down. But that he can whip Louis you just can't picture, from his ring history.

Louis' unfavorable reaction to hard blows to the face will, they think, supply Galento with a chance to pounce on his dazed foe and finish him, thereby winning undying fame and a place with Max Schmeling as furnishing the greatest upset in ring history.

A man with a wallop always has a chance, we're told. He has if he can land it first. As to punch, both men are heavily armed; but can you imagine the squat Italian beating the lightning Negro to the draw?

Yes, that's the "Neanderthal Man" Tony Galento at the right, as he appeared during his knockout of Nathan Mann. The Cave Man will try to cave in Joe Louis' ribs, June 28.

St. Louis High School Boys Attract Major League Scouts

MIKE FRILLMAN

Lawrence Schulte

Ralph Schaumburg

Mike Fillman of Cleveland Signs With Cardinals; Ralph Schaumburg of Roosevelt Gets Two Offers.

Major league baseball representatives, eager to uncover prospective Ray Bladeses, Walter Roettgers, Andy Highs have been very active among the high schools here this spring. At least that is the impression gained after talking to players, coaches and a major league scout who asked that his name be withheld from publication.

Mike Fillman, 18-year-old Cleveland High pitcher, has put his foot on the first rung of the ladder which leads to a major league career. He recently signed a contract with the Cardinals to play for their Union City (Tenn.) team in the Kitty League.

Fillman, who is scheduled to graduate next January, is six feet one inch tall and weighs about 165 pounds. He throws righthanded and when he is not pitching he plays in the outfield. He has been leading the league in batting with a .600 mark.

Last year Fillman played with the Thau-Nolde team which lost four games by one run. Fillman's record was five victories and three defeats but he was picked by the St. George team for the elimination series. He will report to the Cardinals at the close of school.

He is the son of Frank and Margaret Fillman, 5454 Lisette avenue.

Ralph Schaumburg of Roosevelt is a third baseman whom the majors are eyeing. He is six feet tall, well proportioned and his recent batting average was .571, based on eight hits out of 15 times at bat.

He is in his fifth semester at Roosevelt and consequently has another year of eligibility, so despite offers from the Cardinals and Giants, he has withheld signing a contract which would make him ineligible for high school play. This is his second year on the Roosevelt nine.

During the summer Schaumburg plays with the Maplewood DeMolay team in the Muny League. He is the son of Adolph Schaumburg, 6616 Hancock.

Lawrence Schulte, 17-yeaer-old South Side Catholic catcher, yesterday said he was on the verge of signing a contract, probably with the Cardinals, but that he was waiting to hear from the Browns before doing anything definite.

Schulte said Branch Rickey, general manager of the Cardinals, talked to him and his mother, Mrs. Mary Schulte, 3664 Osceola street, recently and promised the young catcher a job with a Class D club when he graduated this spring.

Schulte said he had been considering going to St. Louis University and playing football and baseball. He was a fullback on the South Side eleven.

Schulte, who said his batting average was better thain .350 this spring, also is a member of the St. John Nepomuk team in the Charley Barrett Intermediate League playing at the Public Schools Stadium.

BROWNS SUFFER TWO NINTH-INNING DEFEATS BY THE ATHLETICS

Manager Haney again changed his lineup for the second game, sending Chet Laabs to center field for his first start as a Brownie and demoting Clift from fifth to sixth place in the batting order.

Lawson yielded five singles to the Athletics in the first two innings, but they meant only one run, whereas a double and a single manufactured a tally for them in the third. In the same period the Browns failed to do anything with two hits and three passes, Laabs taking a third strike with the bases filled and two down in the third. The Browns managed a run in the fourth but, in the fifth, the Macks got it back on a pair of doubles.

A break gave the lead to the Browns in the sixth. A triple by Laabs and Clift's infield out earned a run and then, with the bases filled and two down, Berardino sent a short fly to right. Miles and Gantenbein collided, the ball got away from them both and it went for a triple, three runners scoring.

Trotter took up the Brownie pitching in the seventh. The Browns added a run in the eighth off Joyce, who relieved Ross. In the ninth, Gantenbein led off with a homer and Miles singled. Moses batted for Ambler and both runners were safe when Clift threw low to second for a force-out. After Etten fouled out, Johnson singled Miles across. Hayes lined out but Chapman hit a homer to score behind Moses and Johnson. And, that long blow was the well-known ball-game.

Brownie Notes.

FOR today's doubleheader, Kennedy and Kramer are the probable starting Brownie pitchers, with Deshong and Chase due for Washington.

Beckman, former Washington University star, sent a clean single to center in the second inning of the opener to score a runner from third.

Heffner made one of the finest fielding plays of the season when, in the third frame of No. 1, he went into deep short and, handling a mean bounder, threw out Ambler at first.

First two times up against Gill, Johnson walked. He scored both times. Third time up, Gill struck him out and repeated on his fourth trip.

George McQuinn will be hard to overlook for a place on the American League All-Star team. Not only a great hitter, he is fielding demon as well.

Billy Sullivan is getting so he moves around nicely in the outfield. He made several nicely-judged catches. Etten flied to Billy four times in the opener.

Race Drivers' Dinner.

A dinner for midget auto drivers who competed in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis will be held June 26 at Hotel Jefferson. The drivers are Jimmy Snyder, Harry MacQuinn, Tony Willman, Emil Andres and Ronney Householder. J. G. Taylor Spink is chairman of the committee making arrangements.

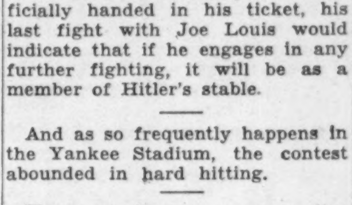
There Goes Another Max.

MAX BAER upon a summer's night,
With Louis Nova had a fight,
But failed to make it go.
Though Max was out upon his feet,
The birdies didn't sing "tweet tweet,"
It was a t. k. o.

The former champ was surely game;
Not even in the final frame
Did he back up or quail—
And so three Maxs—count 'em—three—
Max Schmeling, Rosenbloom and he,
Have reached the end of trail.



NEXT JULY YOUR NAME WILL BE MAX.

Hitler Happy.

While Max Schmeling hasn't officially handed in his ticket, his last fight with Joe Louis would indicate that if he engages in any further fighting, it will be as a member of Hitler's stable.

And as so frequently happens in the Yankee Stadium, the contest abounded in hard hitting.

You may change, you may alter

But the spirit of Ruth hovers

Looks as if the fans are waiting for the Browns to put in a lighting plant and start bank nites or begin giving away dishes and things. The movies have spoiled them.

Only 5070 cash customers saw the Cardinals beat the Giants Thursday afternoon, while 32,574 turned out in Brooklyn to see the night game between the Cubs and Dodgers. Looks like a definite trend toward after-supper baseball.

LOUIS, GALENTO SIGN; JACOBS GETS LICENSE

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—The champion didn't even show up; Tony Galento, the challenger, had only one wisecrack to offer, and so the expected fireworks at the formal signing for the Joe Louis-Galento heavyweight championship fight today fizzled completely.

With popping flashlights as the only fanfare, Galento, Brig.-Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, and Julian Black, co-manager of the champion, all signed the triplicates that bind the fight to New York's Yankee Stadium on June 28.

Tony's only contribution to the assembled newspapermen, was "Louis is afraid. He didn't show up."

The word along "Jacobs Beach" had been that plenty was going to happen before the fight would be formally ratified. In the first place, there was talk that it would be transferred to Philadelphia.

Secondly, the matter of issuing a second's license to Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager was to be aired and the two items were so entwined that a refusal to grant the license was to be the signal for an exodus of the battle to Philadelphia—or Chicago, depending on where you get your information.

But the commission, in a closed session, granted Jacobs his license. That left nothing for anyone to do but sign for the Yankee Stadium site—and that was attended to without incident—other than Galento's remark, which he probably will live to regret.

SCORES WITH MACAWLEE IN FEATURE RACE

By Dent McSkimming

Billy Joe Cassity, the young Oklahoma race rider who wields a heavy stick, stole the show at Fairmount Park yesterday by riding three winners, including the horses that took the "daily double" and the best race of the day, sixth on the program.

With Otto Grohs ready to move with his contract employers, L. W. [illegible], to Chicago to race at Lincoln Fields tomorrow, Cassity stands an excellent chance of taking the riding championship of the meeting in the final five days, starting Tuesday. He has a total of 28 victories as compared with [illegible] for Grohs.

Lady Alpha Close Second.

The chief threat to Cassity's victory in the sixth race developed in the sensational filly, Lady Alpha. Cassity broke fast with the mare Macawlee from the six-furlong gate, but Lady Alpha, winner of the first start of her career a few days ago, soon caught the older horse and then held sway around the turn. Cassity was forced to send Macawlee around on the outside and it was not until the closing 50 yards that Lady Alpha weakened just enough to permit Macawlee to win by a neck. Goshen was third in the field of seven.

The crowd of 10,000 had some luck in picking winners despite the changing track conditions. Early in the program the strip was heavy but toward the close it was slow and then good. Lady Alpha stepped the first quarter in :23 2-5, the second quarter in :23 4-5 and then slowed down to :26 in the last quarter, a very excellent performance over a damp track.

Prince Pad Wins.

Guy Shultz bred a colt on his Oklahoma farm six years ago. He turned out to be a useful winner but early last year he was claimed out of a race. Shultz couldn't stand losing the pet of his barn, so he claimed him back and Prince Pad returned the favor by winning the opening race of the program for Breeder-Owner-Trainer Shultz.

The Prince had to step a fast five-and-one-half furlongs to win, for Norman Sloat and Radio Charm turned up the track for half a mile—and then stopped.

Getting away free of interference at the start of the second race was Jockey Billy Cassity's chief problem in winning with Genie Jr. Put on top, he sailed to a four-length victory, too fast for John Shouse and Johnnie Dear in the first half mile and too far away for Jobiso and Bon Champ to catch in the last half.

Cassity's second straight winning mount was Elect Jessie, a 5 to 1 shot, in the third race. Popular Vote offered a lot of opposition and was beaten only half a length while Can-U-Tell, the favorite, wound up fourth.

Joyce K. Scores.

It was a couple of lads of the older school, Joe Dyer and Charley Hanauer, who showed Cassity how to ride in the fourth. While Waygood Lad, under Cassity, didn't make a move, Hanauer had Hiddenite out in front until 40 yards from home, when Dyer coaxed the winning effort out of Joyce K.

Every one of the seven that started in the fifth race had a chance at the purse. It was an even contest throughout the mile and 70 yards and at the finish Jockey Ray Camp had Ace of Spades in front of Arctic Star by half a length and the third horse, Muriellynn, was only a head farther back. Camp appeared to earn the winning margin when he squeezed Ace of Spades through a narrow crack after they turned into the stretch.

Grohs booted home the favorite in the seventh, Princess Verte catching Dolly E., the pace-maker, at the eighth pole after running second all the way around. Sis Royal, carried along as Grohs turned Princess Verte loose, finished second in a tight squeeze.

Two gray horses finished first and second in the closing race of the day. It was Miss Kiev that outran them all in the field of 10, and Open Hearth was second, after Reelaway, hot as a pistol for six furlongs, quit cold in the stretch. Miss Kiev refused to pull up after going the full mile and an eighth, and she completed the circuit of the track a second time before Outrider Mullaney collared her at the judges' stand. She had run two miles and one-eighth at full speed.

Chess Match Today.

Drawing 'Em Fine at Fairmount

JOHNSTOWN CAPTURES BELMONT STAKES BY FIVE LENGTHS

Coming into the stretch Stout even had time to turn his head to see what was doing behind him. It was plenty, for A. C. Bostwick's Belay and Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Gilded Knight, the latter Johnstown's entry mate, were battling it out head to head for the place position.

Belay, a consistent brown son of Display, finally won out by half a length, with the Knight third and the Earle Sande trained Heather Broom a length farther back in fourth place.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Hash which had run second most of the way up to a mile, tired and was fifth. Joseph E. Widener's Knickerbocker, previously undefeated in three outings, was last in a field which had been cut to six by earlier scratches of William Ziegler Jr.'s Time Sheet and Woodward's stable-mate of Johnstown, Challenge.

With a lightning fast track and bright, warm weather, there were few among the 20,000 spectators who could see anything but Johnstown. As a result, the three-year-old "Mr. Big" was backed far down in the betting, finishing at 1 to 8, and "out and out" for place and show. Belay was 7-1 for place.

The victory in this time-honored $25,000 added stake was worth $37,020 to Johnstown's owner, bringing the winnings for Jamestown's big boy to $156,065 for his two-season racing career.

All the colts carried 126 pounds in this stake, which has been run annually, with only one two-year break, since 1867. For Owner Woodward, it was the fifth Belmont Stake victory. His red-dotted white silks came home previously on Granville in 1936, Omaha in 1935, Faireno in 1932 and Gallant Fox in 1930.

It was also the third winner for Jockey Stout, who rode Granville in 1936 and Pasteurized for Mrs. W. P. Stewart a year ago.

In the supporting feature on Belmont's card, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Skin Deep won the national stallion stakes, five furlongs down the Widener course chute, in a blanket finish with three others.

The photo showed him just in front of John Hay Whitney's well-regarded Woof Woof, with Mrs. Payne Whitney's Piquet third.

Skin Deep, favored by a wind at his back, turned in the fastest five furlongs of the current meeting down the straightaway, in 57.2 seconds and collected $10,380. He returned 7-1 in the betting.

U. S. POLO FOUR IS FAVORED TO RETAIN TROPHY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Despite a last hour shift in the lineup that saw Stewart Iglehart replace Cecil Smith, the great Tommy Hitchcock Jr., will lead a favored United States polo team against the British tomorrow in defense of the international trophy at the Meadow Brook Club.

Smith, rated the country's greatest No. 2, was forced to withdraw from the lineup today when a brief workout showed he not fully recovered from injuries suffered in a test match earlier in the week. Hitchcock, for 17 years a 10-goal player, will take over the hard riding Texan's position with Stewart Iglehart replacing the United States Captain at No. 3.

Mike Phipps, handicapped with Hitchcock, Smith and Iglehart at 10 goals, will ride at No. 1 with Winston Guest, veteran seven-goal internationalist, at back. This combination is rated at 37 goals, three more than the strongest team the British have assembled since winning the famous $2000 trophy the last time in 1914.

The British themselves had a difficult time deciding on their lineup. After three months of preparation in this country, Lord Cowdray, non-playing Captain, announced today the invaders would take the field at 1:30 p. m. (St. Louis time) with Bob Skene, an Australian, at No. 1, Aidan Roark at No. 2, Gerold Balding at No. 3 and Eric Tyrrell-Martin at back. Roark is a brother of Pat Roark who was fatally injured during a test match on the west coast.

Exactly 25 years ago, on the same turf, as war clouds gathered over Europe, Britain won the cup. In 1921, when the series was resumed at Hurlingham, England, the Americans recaptured the old trophy with the then youthful Hitchcock playing for the first time. They successfully defended it in 1924, 1927, 1930 and 1936.

Since their last defeat, the Britons have focussed every effort on putting their best men, superbly mounted, on the field for this series, decided on the best two-out-three basis. The empire was combed for the hardest hitters and fastest ponies. Some of the ponies were purchased in Argentina, others were loaned by Indian potentates while Skene brought along a powerful string from Australia.

With room for 40,000 in Meadow Brook's famous robins'-egg-blue stands, the match is expected to draw one of the largest crowds in polo history. The second game will be played June 11 and the third the following Sunday.

100-to-1 Shot Wins at Chicago

King June won by a neck in a stretch drive with Sky Cloud. Dark Seeker finished third. The winner, owned by H. S. Swift, paid $99 to place and $25,60 to show.

Drury Lane, entry of Mrs. P. A. B. Widener of Philadelphia, raced through the mud to a three-length victory in the Joliet Handicap.

Centuple was second and Whim Wham third in the $2500 added five furlong race for two-year-olds. Drury Lane paid $16.60 to win and $7.20 to place. The small field of six horses resulted in no betting on show.

Manie O'Hara of Friedberg-Axton stables won the Steger Handicap at seven furlongs, beating King's Blue, the favorite, by a neck. Smart Crack was third. The winner paid $8.20, $3.40 and $2.40.

STARK URGES MOP-UP OF PENDERGASTISM

Calls on State to Make Clean Sweep of Boss Rule in Missouri.

HANNIBAL, Mo., June 3 (AP).—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark called upon Missourians tonight to eradicate the last vestige of "Pendergastism" from the State.

"Missouri needed the Federal Government's help in bringing the Pendergast ring to justice," Stark said in a speech at an American Legion rally here.

"But it is Missouri's job and Missouri's alone to rid its State and local governments of every trace of Boss Pendergast's political influence.

"I would remind you that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Our task is not complete when we have stamped out graft and political corruption. We must protect ourselves against its repitition with an aroused and vigilant civic conscience."

"It is a bitter paradox that these enemies of democracy, these disseminators of foreign 'isms' are working to destroy the very institutions of free speech and free assembly which allow them to carry on their nefarious task," he said.

"But the bitterest pill for us to swallow . . . is to see these anti-American movements assume the guise of patriotism; to see the picture of General Washington draped with swastikas; to see the picture of Abraham Lincoln topped by the hammer and sickle of Communism.

"The spreaders of foreign 'isms' are not finding much fertile soil for their propaganda.

"But consider this: If ever the American people lose faith in democracy because their own democratic institutions break down under the manipulation of political corruptionists, if ever that should happen, the time will be ripe for our enemies from abroad to stamp out popular government in America."

Stephen Chadwick of Seattle, national commander of the Legion and guest of honor, followed Stark's address with a citation of the Legion's campaign to "stamp out foreign 'isms'." Chadwick urged an "adequate" national defense and adoption of a policy of preparedness. Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann of St. Louis also spoke.

Prior to the addresses, 20 new legionnaires were initiated in the Mark Twain Cave. The meeting closed with drills and a fireworks display.

Carter Glass—His Stormy Career; Old-Line Democrat Who Always Has Distrusted Franklin D. Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, June 3.

WHAT manner of man is Carter Glass? Few persons really know, for the Virginian, while still alive, has been translated into the misty region of legend.

But now, at the age of 81, the "unreconstructed rebel" of President Roosevelt's phrase has decided that all can be told, and has permitted his life to be written—"Carter Glass: a Biography" (Longmans).

The volume proves that while a man may not be a hero to his valet, he can readily be one to his secretary. Of the two authors, Norman Beasley is a professional writer, and Rixey Smith has been the Senator's secretary for 17 years.

The texture is woven of sustained and unquestioning admiration. The result displays certain advantages. Many personal traits and incidents enliven the portrait, some trivial but others significant. It may be presumed that the narrative faithfully reflects the subject's own memories and attitudes. The book is perhaps most valuable for a moral that is unconsciously drawn. In the fleeting American panorama, it seems, only 20 years are required to transmute a radical bugaboo into a darling of the conservatives.

Recipient of Many Honors.

While few public names are more familiar than that of Carter Glass, many of us, if asked to give particulars, could go little further than to state that he is senior United States Senator from Virginia and a newspaper publisher; that he was active in creating the Federal Reserve System; that he has been a caustic and fearless enemy of the New Deal; and that he refused Franklin D. Roosevelt's tender of the Secretaryship of the Treasury, a post he had previously held in Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet.

The book reveals that while still in the flesh, Glass has enjoyed many honors usually accorded by posterity. There is a Carter Glass Hall at the School of Business of Harvard University. A bronze plaque in the Federal Reserve Building in Washington commemorates him as "Defender of the Federal Reserve System." A silver half-dollar has been minted with his features in profile. And in the shadow of the South Pole towers a range, the Carter Glass Mountains, which were so named by Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd Jr., brother of the statesman's junior colleague in the Senate, Harry Flood Byrd.

Pugnacious Early.

The Virginian's well-known pugnacity dates from early childhood, and would be explained by psychologists as compensation for his small stature. As a boy, he was constantly engaged in fighting, and thereby gained a lifelong nickname. Even today, we are told, he occasionally receives a letter beginning "Dear Pluck." As a child he picked up a vocabulary of oaths which was the marvel of masculine Lynchburg. One day, while cursing some older boys who were tormenting him, he reached down for a handy stone. His fingers closed upon a blacksnake. Since then his strongest expletive has been "Dad bum!" As he said long afterwards, "It scared 70 years of cuss words right out my mouth."

Accident, it appears, directed his career into finance rather than foreign affairs. As a first-term member of the House of Representatives, he cast a vote for John Sharpe Williams, Democratic candidate for Speaker. The Mississippian, though defeated, was grateful, and asked whether Glass was satisfied with his assignment to the Committee on Public Lands. The answer was that he would prefer the Foreign Affairs Committee. The only vacancy, Williams told him, was coveted by a deserving Democrat from Mississippi, but a place could be found on the Banking and Currency Committee. "I don't know anything about it," Glass replied, "but I can learn."

He is not above a certain rancor, it seems, against those who disputed his paternity of the Federal Reserve Act, particularly Col. Edward M. House and Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, who was chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. The former is described as President Wilson's "stealthy friend." Owen's Federal Reserve bill was never submitted to Congress, the book declares, and anyhow it was based on ideas furnished to him by Glass. After the measure was passed, we are told, President Wilson, referring to the Virginian's habit of talking from the left corner of his lips, remarked:

"Glass, using only one side of his mouth, talked that bill through Congress. I wonder what he could do if he were to use both sides."

The biographers deny an assertion made by Postmaster-General James A. Farley in his recent book, "Behind the Ballots," that he was commissioned by the President-elect in 1933 to consult with Glass regarding his proposed appointment as Secretary of the Treasury. Outside Roosevelt, it is affirmed, the sole White House negotiator was Raymond Moley, with whom Glass held several fruitless conferences. The latter had heard rumors that the new administration was planning to experiment with the currency, and "quizzed Moley at close range, firing questions at him." Moley, it is said, professed to have no knowledge of Roosevelt's plans, and kept to himself "whatever suspicions he may have had."

Glass and Roosevelt.

Although Glass liked Franklin Roosevelt personally, his distrust of the New Yorker, according to the book, antedated the New Deal by several years. We are told that he "often had wondered what lay behind that attractive personality," and that there had been "two experiences to which he reacted with distaste." After the World War, Glass, as Secretary of the Treasury, persuaded President Wilson to restore the Coast Guard from the jurisdiction of the Navy Department to that of the Treasury. Roosevelt, then Assistant Secretary of the Navy, is declared to have written "a fretful communication," accusing Glass of "taking advantage" of the "absence of the Secretary of the Navy from Washington," to recapture control of the Coast Guard. "To that false accusation," the book states, "Glass replied in clear language. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy made no response."

The other thing Glass disliked is described as "the practice of Roosevelt, when Governor of New York, in stopping over in Washington on his way to and from Warm Springs, Ga., and indulging in political pow-wows with Democratic Congressmen and Senators. All his life Glass has been opposed to men seeking public office—and, to him, the presidency, or a presidential nomination, was one honor that should always seek the man. He was often invited to these meetings. He never went."

1920 Convention Incident.

With what may be a touch of malice, there is related an incident of the National Democratic Convention at San Francisco in 1920. A giant American flag lifted to disclose a portrait of Woodrow Wilson. Shouting delegates marched up and down the aisles, waving state banners. Only one standard remained motionless—that of New York. "With a wild yell," a young man bounded from his seat to join the demonstration. It was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"He was participating," the authors comment with apparent relish, "in what many thought was a third-term stampede."

The book makes no secret of the

INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Analysis Indicates Mismanagement Ruined Many of Them

Idea, Imported From England, Basically Sound, but, Lacking Regulation, It Fell Into Hands of Those Looking for Quick and Easy Profits.

By RICHARD L. STOKES

WASHINGTON, June 3.

THE giddy rise and headlong fall of the investment trust, newest plaything of high financial adventure, is described with dramatic detail in a report now under consideration by Congress.

This report, submitted by Judge Robert E. Healy, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, deals primarily with abuses peculiar to management investment companies. It postpones to a later date treatment of the useful functions which such organizations, when honestly and competently conducted, may be able to perform for industry and the capital markets.

Many of the problems which have confronted the investment company field, it is stated, had their origin in the years 1920-1929, when the great majority of investment companies in operation today were organized, their structures largely determined, and many of their managers placed in power.

"During that period," the report states, "there were engendered the various deficiencies, inequitable structures and patterns of improper practices which have prevailed and still persist in many investment companies today, and which constitute a continuing threat to the safety and preservation of a large part of the public funds invested in these organizations."

Idea, From England, Based on Sound Principle.

The history of that period, even when reduced to bare statistics, forms an amazing financial melodrama. The investment trust, imported from England in 1920, was based on a sound principle—namely, that a large number of small investors, by pooling their resources, may obtain a diversity of portfolio, and a consequent abatement of risk, which are unavailable to a single individual. The idea spread slowly. By the end of 1926, there had been formed only 600 investment companies, with total assets not exceeding $700,000,000 and fewer than 300,000 investors.

The young industry was sent skyrocketing by the stock market boom of 1926-29, operating with the violence of a charge of dynamite. The number of investment companies grew to 1200, their stockholders to 1,500,000 and their assets to a peak of more than $8,000,000,000. Yearly sales of share issues bounded sharply within two years from less than $400,000,000 to more than $3,000,000,000. Two hundred and sixty-five new companies were created in 1929, virtually at the rate of one for each business day.

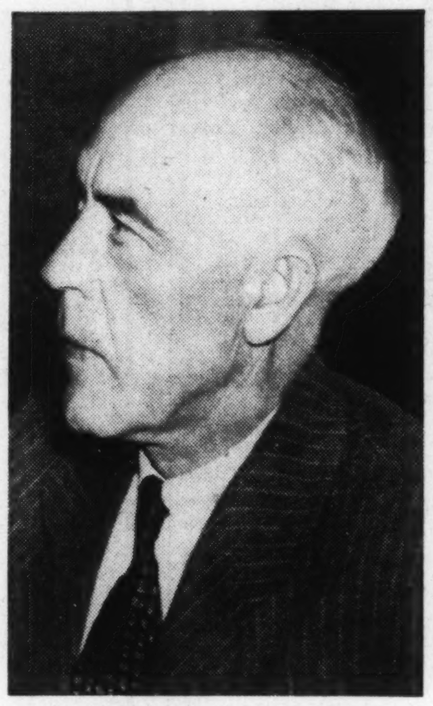
The youth of the industry divested it of two essential safeguards. Government regulation was absent. No professional class of experts in broad range investment, with its own system of ethics, had developed. The field was therefore open to amateur promoters, such as lawyers, professors, economists and accountants. It was open also to financial desperadoes. The record of the SEC narrates tale after tale of men penniless or even in debt, who, within a few months, by pyramiding company on company, ran up their strings from zero or less to millions of dollars.

Nemesis was swift to strike. In October, 1929, the stock market collapsed. Forthwith half of the investment companies in existence vanished into limbo, by the routes of bankruptcy or absorption. Their assets toppled from $8,000,000,000 to less than $2,000,000,000. When accounts were finally settled, the stockholders had lost upwards of $3,000,000,000, ranging from 32 to 44 per cent of their total cash purchases of shares. An analysis of ownership of common stock in a group of large investment companies reveals that more than half of the shareholders had invested $500 or less, and that nearly 70 per cent held stock worth $1000 or less.

The depression, it is admitted, was an influential factor in this disaster. But figures collected by statisticians of the SEC tend to show that in numerous cases malpractices of management bore even larger responsibility. In one instance, that of the Iroquois Share Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., it is estimated shareholders lost 60 per cent of the money invested in "interlocking" securities, and only 15 per cent of that invested in "unrelated" stocks.

REPORTS FOR SEC



JUDGE ROBERT E. HEALY

A tendency among management insiders to place their own interests before those of security holders was noted in many cases. A favorite device was to gain control of a small company, often with borrowed money, to use its assets as a stepping-stone towards control of a larger one, and to kick the first company aside into bankruptcy when its purpose was served. Too frequently investment companies were employed as dumping grounds for shares otherwise unmarketable, or as sources of loans to officers and directors with inadequate or worthless collateral.

At first, Wall Street looked without favor on the investment trust, terming it a "blind pool" and declaring that the purchase of $1000 of stock was equivalent to handing that amount over to a stranger with permission to gamble with it as he pleased. Later, the prospect of swift and easy profits induced many reputable banks and brokerage houses to sponsor investment companies.

Unmarketable Securities Often Used to Milk Trusts.

"In many cases," according to the SEC verdict, "substantial losses sustained by investment companies were the result of transactions which the sponsors, managers, officers, directors and other controlling interests effected for their own account with the investment companies which they dominated.

"During the period after the stock market collapse in 1929, many of these dominant persons, who were in financial straits, immediately turned for assistance to the large liquid resources of their investment companies. These insiders often sold unmarketable securities or other properties of doubtful value to their investment companies, or caused these companies to take over dubious and illiquid investments in which they were interested; compelled these organizations to assume large and onerous commitments on which they were obligated, such as participations in underwritings, trading accounts and loans; required these companies to relieve them of existing liabilities and obligations to their investment companies; caused these organizations to finance their clients and companies in which they were interested; and induced the making of direct loans to them, often without any collateral or upon inadequate security.

"These various transactions were permeated with conflicting interests and many were characterized by the absence of arm's length dealing and by opportunities for overreaching."

Investors' Holdings Shrink While Sponsors Make Profit.

The Iroquois Share Corporation, the survey relates, was organized in January, 1928, by the Buffalo brokerage firm of O'Brian, Potter & Stafford. The public, through purchases of stock, contributed a net capital of about $3,500,000, which shrank in 27 months to $1,500,000. But the sponsors, during that period, profited to the extent of $653,000. They sold to the investment company an unfinished and virtually unrented office building which the brokerage firm was constructing in Buffalo. The price was $313,616, the full amount the firm had expended on the structure. The entire investment in the building was lost. The investment company was also required to purchase $1,395,953 of shares which the sponsor had underwritten or in which it was interested, with a consequent loss of $663,315.

Investors Lost While Promoters Gained—SEC Cites Instances in Which Sponsors Made Such Companies Dumping Grounds for Bad Loans.

Through the organization of three investment trusts during 1929, the report proceeds, the banking firm of C. D. Parker & Co., Inc., of Boston, was able to sell $25,000,000 worth of stock to investors. In return, the investors received $2,300,000 in dividends and $1,700,000 through repurchases of stock. The account concludes: "Virtually the entire balance of $21,000,000 has been lost."

Four successive groups of promoters who controlled Oils & Industries, Inc., a Maryland investment company organized in 1928, were enabled to derive large profits, but the stockholders, who had invested $13,200,000, lost about $4,000,000, according to the report.

Then, proceeds the narrative, there was the Central-Illinois Securities Corporation, an investment trust organized in 1929 by the Central Trust Co., of Chicago, and its securities affiliate, the Central-Illinois Co. Common and preferred stock was sold to the public to the amount of $12,600,000. The investment company was compelled to take over millions of dollars in bad loans held by the sponsor bank, to buy $1,749,133 of the bank's stock on a collapsing market, and to devote $6,000,000 to supporting utility ventures in which the bank was interested. By 1935, the Central-Illinois Securities Corporation had suffered losses of $7,315,000, resulting, it is pronounced, "largely from its interrelationship with the sponsor companies, and the conflicts of interest thus created."

The most towering figure described in the report is that of Harrison Williams, known popularly as the husband of "the best-dressed woman in the world." When the story begins, in 1922, Williams is found in control of a $6,000,000 utility, the Central States Electric Corporation. At intervals of only a few months, there occurred the formation of four investment companies, each larger than the preceding one. By the end of 1929, Williams was in substantial control of the North American Co., a public utility holding company system with securities worth at that time on the market almost one billion dollars. It owns the Union Electric Co. of St. Louis.

Some of the largest activities in this field took place after 1929, when the landscape was heaped with wreckage and salvage crews began work. The most flourishing of the operators was Floyd B. Odlum. His Atlas Corporation, which began with a capital of $40,000, swept up shares at bargain prices with such effect that by 1936 it had taken over 18 investment companies with aggregate assets of $129,000,000.

How Borrowed $139,000 Came to Control $32,000,000.

Armed with $139,000 of borrowed money, Ernest B. Warriner, according to the SEC, within the year 1935 acquired successive control of four investment corporations with aggregate assets of $32,000,000. Two brothers named Henderson, radio salesmen in Boston, began with $80,000 of capital, and within three years "built up a pyramided investment company system controlling seven investment companies with combined assets of $25,000,000."

By using assets of one investment company to acquire successive larger ones, another group in five months gained control of four investment companies with assets of $12,500,000—and this without expenditure of any personal funds.

With no personal investment whatever, another group is described as annexing within three months three investment concerns, with total assets of $2,300,000.

The most spectacular figure depicted is that of Wallace Groves, a Baltimore bond salesman who descended on New York in 1931 with a small amount of borrowed money, and a year later, after juggling one investment company upon another, withdrew with a personal profit of $1,000,000. One of his creations was the Equity Corporation, which, under the subsequent guidance of David M. Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, towered into an investment company system having working control of 21 corporations with resources of $205,000,000.

The present installment constitutes Chapter I and a part of Chapter II of Part Three of the over-all report of the SEC to Congress on its study of investment trusts. Parts One and Two have already been submitted, and other sections are to follow, with recommendations as to legislation needed to remedy and forestall abuses.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 3.

CHANCELLOR ADOLF HITLER has denounced the Anglo-German naval agreement, which, when it was negotiated in 1935, was accepted as a manifest of Germany's decision not again to challenge Great Britain's supremacy on the high seas.

What does it all mean? Under this two-Power pact, German naval tonnage was limited to 35 per cent of Great Britain's. But today, except for a few relatively unimportant "qualitative limitations," the lid is off for a new spurt in German warship building within the limit of the capacities of the Third Reich—a very important qualification.

Has the new war lord of Germany resolved to repeat the attempt of his predecessor, Kaiser Wilhelm II, to overcome those "far-distant and storm-beaten ships" of the British fleet, which, as the late Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan, American naval officer, would have it, have stood for so long in the way of "world dominion" by a continental European power.

Kaiser's Demand for Navy.

Just at the turn of the century the Kaiser, impressed by Mahan's works on the "influence of sea power," approved a fleet law which began with the declaration:

"In order to protect German trade and commerce under existing conditions only one thing will suffice, namely, Germany must possess a battle fleet of such strength that, even for the most powerful naval adversary, a war would involve such risks as to make that power's own supremacy doubtful."

As Winston Churchill, Britain's "elder statesman," points out, "the determination of the greatest military power on the continent to become at the same time at least the second naval power was an event of first magnitude in world affairs."

The growing German threat in that earlier era to Britain's sea supremacy had much to do with this country's final decision at the beginning of August, 1914, to take its stand with France and Russia against the Central Powers. If Hitler, in fact, has thrown down a sea-power challenge, is the new threat real, as it was 30-odd years ago? Just what is the German navy today, and what might it be tomorrow?

Naval Parade for Horthy.

In those August days of last year, before the storm over Czecho-Slovakia had reached its height, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Regent of Hungary, made an official visit to the Reich. Hitler was eager to impress his guest, a war-time naval commander, not only with his might on land and in the air, but with his embryonic naval power, issuing from the straitjacket in which it had been confined under the Treaty of Versailles.

Thus, on Aug. 22 Der Fuehrer arranged off Kiel the biggest German naval review since the "last parade" of the exiled Kaiser's High Seas Fleet ended at Scapa Flow. From the bridge of the naval yacht Grille Hitler and Horthy took the salute on that day as 117 units, ranging from the 26,000-ton battleship Gneisenau to small coast defense submarines and swift, armed speedboats, passed by.

Since Kiel is a "reserved area," barred to members of foreign military and naval establishments, the naval attaches of foreign powers—except Italy, the ally—were not invited to witness this review. Untutored in naval affairs and thus not expected to be able to glean confidential naval information, foreign correspondents were better favored.

With other newspaper men, I saw the display from the deck of an obsolete German torpedoboat, the Pfeil. We boarded this small warship at a Kiel dock at noon. As we steamed down the Kiel fjord toward the open sea, we had bean soup, with pork, and good German beer in the crew's messroom.

A short distance out we passed the antiquated and anchored battleships Schlesien and the Schleswig-Holstein, now used as training vessels. Both fought at Jutland, that memorable naval battle of the World War which the Germans have always claimed as a victory on the ground that they sank more British tonnage than they lost.

In accordance with regulations for all German warships, the Pfeil dipped her flag as she came opposite the memorial at Laboe Point to the German sailors who lost their lives between 1914 and 1918. This memorial, the heroic image of a warship's prow, is visible at a great distance.

Off Laboe the Pfeil fell in line astern of the yacht which carried Hitler and Horthy. Occasional showers sent us to seek cover below deck as we issued from the mouth of the fjord and steamed on out to sea. The Danish islands to the northwest were already in view when we sighted the smoke which signaled the approach of the fleet of which Der Fuehrer is so proud.

Only One Big Ship.

Gradually out of the light mist the outline of the trim battleship Gneisenau, only a few months in commission, became discernible. It was the Gneisenau alone which had made this review possible. At that time she was the only unit in the fleet which displaced more than 10,000 tons.

Since then her sister ship, the Scharnhorst, has been added to double the German capital-ship tonnage. But together the Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst displace only 10,000 tons more than Britain's biggest capital unit, the 42,000-ton battle cruiser Hood.

In line, astern of the Gneisenau, were the three so-called "pocket battleships," Graf Spee, Admiral Scheer and Deutschland, which, when projected, caused a stir in naval circles throughout the world. Designed long before Hitler scrapped the naval clauses of the Versailles treaty, which limited new German warships to 10,000 tons, they were intended to provide the most powerful fighting unit possible on a hulk of that displacement.

Each of these vessels carries major armament of six 11-inch guns, although 8-inch guns are the maximum size weapons ordinarily mounted on 10,000-ton warships. Though at first the "pocket battleships" created much interest, it is now conceded, even by the Germans, that they manifest weaknesses such as usually appear in a hybrid type.

Vengeance Shelling.

The Deutschland in May, 1937, was bombed by an airplane — alleged to be Spanish loyalist—while lying at anchor off a harbor in the Balearic Islands. Hitler's jealous love for his embryonic navy is manifest in his reaction to this incident. With the Deutschland damaged and more than 20 of her crew dead, Der Fuehrer immediately ordered his warships to shell in vengeance the Spanish loyalist town of Almeria.

As the Gneisenau, leading the "pocket battleships," approached in the review off Kiel, the yacht carrying Hitler and Horthy and our torpedo boat slackened their pace to a few knots. The Gneisenau herself, it now appeared, was led by a division of 10 motor "speed boats," each armed with a one-pounder and two torpedo tubes. They suggested whippet tanks of the sea.

Immaculate in white, detachments of the Gneisenau's crew were lined up at attention on deck as this battleship steamed past the

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Private Debt and National Debt.

FOR many years, individuals have been encouraged to go into debt by borrowing money from building and loan associations for the purpose of acquiring a home. If a person had an annual income of say $2500, it was very good business for building associations to lend him up to $10,000 for this purpose, with the understanding that he would pay back $100 per month or $1200 per year to liquidate the obligation. In the course of 10 or 11 years, the transaction was completed and the borrower received clear title to his home.

You will notice that a transaction of this kind obligates a borrower to assume a debt of more than four times his annual income, and he was encouraged to do so. It worked out so well in Belleville that we have about 85 per cent of home ownership. Very few failed to meet their obligations. Building associations also prospered and today are considered exceptionally sound financial institutions. Here debt proved a blessing.

Our national debt today is around 40 billion dollars and national income about 65 billion dollars. In other words, we could pay off our national debt in full with less than eight months of our income, if it was all applied to that purpose. If we reserved the same proportion of our income to debt as we do in the individual case, namely two-fifths, to pay our national debt, this could be accomplished at the rate of 26 billion dollars a year, and the whole debt liquidated in less than a year and eight months.

When you take the vital statistics into consideration, you have a better case for the Government than for the individual. An individual may die, leaving no one of the family to carry on; he may become ill, thereby reducing his annual income, or he may lose his job, leaving no income at all. If any of these events happen, the whole transaction is wrecked, so far as the individual is concerned. This, of course, cannot happen to the Government. It may get sick, as it is now, but it will never die and stop functioning, as some alarmists would have us believe.

All of our national debt today is not represented by liability. Our Secretary of the Treasury has recently stated that 16 billion dollars-plus represented national assets and three billion dollars-plus recoverable money lent. This would bring the net debt down to about 20 billion dollars, not really an unbearable load when our wealth is taken into consideration. We must remember that we went in debt over 25 billion dollars during the World War for destructive purposes and lent billions more to other nations which will never pay us back. That war debt did not sink us, and this one will not, either.

Senator Doran's Mistake.

I AM a constituent of Senator Doran's district who has been disappointed because the Senator opposed in State Senate committee what I term an improvement in law enforcement. I am my own spokesman, and he no longer will represent me if my vote is required.

The Senator doesn't seem to realize that until there has been obtained a fair degree of permanency in the tenure of police administrators, the development of a science of police administration is going to lag far behind practical police methods. We need improvement in law enforcement, and Senator Doran will never convince the people of his district that the present conditions in Kansas City are needed or desirable.

A DEMOCRATIC VOTER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE British statesman who recently described Chamberlain as having "one foot in Berlin and the other in the seventeenth century" was only two-thirds right. He should have added, "and his umbrella is blinding his view."

It seems that what Russia is trying to tell England, and the whole world, is that it has no confidence in Chamberlain, but, aside from that obstacle, would like to associate itself in a protective bloc with Britain and France.

Aside from Chamberlain's record of constantly backing away, by nature he seems to be exactly the wrong man for the time. A meek man like Chamberlain makes even Britain's powerful armaments look soft.

If Britain were now able to put a strongly determined man in Chamberlain's post, a quick alliance with Russia would be effected, and it would still not be too late to cut off the aggressors. Perhaps that's the thing that would really save the millions of lives a war would take. Besides, if Hitler is able to remain ruthlessly powerful for another five years, it may take 50 years to de-educate 80,000,000 Germans into rational humanity.

BALANCER.

Is 30 Per Cent Profit Too Much?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN the letter column of May 31, "I'll Take My Stand," complaining of the corporation surplus and capital gains taxes, and his suffering under the New Deal, says: "I earn only about 10 per cent on my $8000 monthly payroll, where I used to earn about 30 per cent, which was modest, compared to that of some industries."

And, forsooth, be this not the very reason, or one of the reasons, why we have the corporation taxes about which the writer so bitterly complains? The President could hardly have stated it better.

ALBERT S. ENNIS.

Festus, Mo.

SCARLET SIN OF OMISSION.

In the harbor of Havana has occurred an incident which symbolizes a high crime of modern civilization. Nine hundred and seven Jews who had fled the Nazi scourge were refused permission to land in Cuba, and their boat was ordered to return them to the land where they can expect only inhuman cruelty and oppression. From the intensity of their despair, several attempted suicide.

It is idle to single out the Cuban Government for blame. Its action is typical of the treatment which this race is receiving throughout the world. Germany is denounced, and with overwhelming justification, for persecution of the Jews. But what of the responsibility of the other nations of the world which refuse a haven for this outraged people?

What man of decent instincts would refuse to open his door to someone who came, broken and beaten, asking for shelter? Are nations to be condoned for showing less of the Samaritan spirit to a racial segment cowering under the knout and the knuckle-duster?

What, in concrete terms, is this refugee problem? To hear it rolled on the tongues of dilatory statesmen, one would think that the number of persons seeking to flee Germany runs into many millions. Actually, the total number of Jews in all Germany, including what until yesterday were Austria and Czecho-Slovakia, is only about 1,000,000.

This is less than one-fifteenth of 1 per cent of the world's population. Yet nearly every nation bars them. They are fenced in from the outside to be tormented by the Gestapo and the Storm Troopers.

The Nazis' guilt is inescapably shared by the Powers which coldly refuse to provide a place of refuge. Germany's guilt lies in what she has done to the Jews. The guilt of other nations lies in what they have failed to do.

America has done better than most. If the other so-called democratic nations would accept German refugees in numbers corresponding to the total admitted into the United States since Hitler came into power, the refugee problem would be quickly solved.

The British Empire, comprising one-fourth of the land area of the world, could give refuge to every person of Jewish descent in "aggrandized" Germany and still have less than half the Jewish population of the United States. Or the relatively undeveloped continent of South America could absorb them all, finding in them a rich leavening for its cultural and economic life.

Certainly, it would be of questionable wisdom, under present economic conditions, to admit the whole Jewish population of Germany into any one country or into any one dominion of any country. But why, in the name of the humanitarian professions of this advanced day, cannot the nations—including the United States—which still possess broad expanses of unoccupied or sparsely settled territory come together and agree on quotas which would solve the refugee problem once and for all?

REUNION IN POPLAR BLUFF.

Love, so they say, will find a way. But with so many storybook maxims going wrong, even this romantic adage may welcome new proof of its validity.

Proof we found the other day, nestling modestly among stories of much more moment in the Poplar Bluff American Republic. It is in the form of a story of a romance which came to flower 52 years after the courtship began.

Along in the middle of the first Cleveland administration, 17-year-old Cornelia Harrison and young Tom Reed fell in love. But they quarreled, as lovers will, and failed to make up. At least, they failed temporarily. Now, 52 years after their quarrel, and after each has been married and widowed, they have met again, made up and married.

The path of true love may never be smooth, but luckily it does not often involve a detour around the whole cycle of man's romantic years.

DEATH OF A GREAT CONDUCTOR.

There died at San Sebastian yesterday one of the world's greatest conductors and composers, Enrique Fernandez Arbos. Probably no one felt more poignantly than that kindly old man did the full horror of the fratricidal strife that rent Spain. It is said of this pupil of Vieuxtemps, Richter, Levi and Joachim that there was not a village nor a hamlet in Spain where he could take off his hat without being acclaimed. That was because for years he had taken the Royal Madrid Orchestra on tours through the provinces. Village bands whose peasant members had never heard of Debussy, Strauss, Ravel and even Wagner began to play that music after Arbos introduced them to it.

For nearly 50 years Arbos also conducted in such important centers as London, Paris, Geneva, Amsterdam, Madrid, Milan, Rome, Boston, Los Angeles, New York and St. Louis, much of his success being due to the fact that he read Brahms like a German, Debussy like a Frenchman and Tschaikowsky like a Russian. But it was his innate sensitiveness to beauty and its opposite in music that distinguished him. And for that reason, in addition to the knowledge that he had so many friends among the loyalists and the rebels who were slaughtering each other, Arbos was in the deepest despair and sorrow over the civil war. It no doubt played a part in hastening his death.

His loss will be felt all over the world; right here in St. Louis there are many who remember the stimulating and purifying influence he had on the musical values of this community when he served as guest conductor with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for three seasons from 1929 to 1931.

STATION GYP BROADCASTING.

Radio is a marvelous discovery. Using waves that shoot along at the rate of 186,300 miles per second, it provides swing music for the jitterbugs, bedtime thrillers for the younger set and useful domestic hints for the housewife. But it is also a possible means of double-crossing Lady Luck, St. Louis police assert, and some of the local bookies are wishing Signor Marconi had never been born. At least, the Lee brothers assert their confidence was sadly imposed upon, to the tune of between $3000 and $5000 in the last three months, by the track and radio experts of Station GYP.

It reads like a farce comedy inspired by the success of "Three Men on a Horse." The motor car, with its short-wave sending and receiving apparatus, the woman bettor and her allegedly wired-for-sound millinery, the last-minute wagers that invariably hit the results right on the nose, the puzzled and discomfited and finally embattled bookies, the street brawl—everything about it has the earmarks of surefire stage hokum.

The ending of Act I is pretty tragic, however. The Lee brothers can't get their money back. They face charges of peace disturbance. And, in telling their troubles to the police, they confessed that they are in the illegal business of operating a handbook; and six establishments, said to be operated under the Lee trademark, have been raided. Well, boys, how about staying home tonight and listening to the radio?

THE FOURTH MAN.

The Post-Dispatch reprints today, on the fourth anniversary of its original publication, a cartoon which is both history and prophecy fulfilled.

On June 4, 1935, the fourth man was not known. Suspicion may have whispered his name. Practical politicians may have smiled knowingly among themselves. But the poor, inarticulate Mr. Policyholder was the goat, the sun was riding high in the skies of the Kansas City machine, and Tom Pendergast, arch-racketeer, had been promised his price. The steal had been signed, sealed and securely covered up.

Tom Pendergast was then at apogee. He was sitting on top of the world. He was counting the gains of the perfect crime.

Europe was beckoning. To his tower suite at the Waldorf, looking out upon the skyline intangibly emblematic of New York's infinite tangibles—to the eagle's eyrie they came in fluttering deference. Missouri's Federal Senators, Bennett Clark and Harry Truman, were there to make their bow. The press was there, bespeaking a farewell message as the distinguished traveler's shiny luggage was transferred to the Normandie's flower-filled suite. Missouri's Superintendent of Insurance was there to stroll the decks in unreported conversation and to wave at last a jaunty bon voyage.

WRITE YOUR SENATOR.

Miles P. Dyer,
Michael J. Kinney,
Percy Pepoon,
Clinton Watson.

Two St. Louis Senators will vote against the bill unless their constituents make them see the light. The Senators reported as having lined up with Senator Casey of Kansas City, who is leading the fight on the bill, are:

Joseph H. Brogan,
W. J. Doran.

Brogan and Doran are not representing their districts in trailing along with Casey. They are representing the discredited and all but shattered Pendergast machine.

Their districts should tell them, and tell them straight from the shoulder.

The Senator from St. Louis County is Raleigh McCormick of Webster Groves. He is for the bill. But letters of approval are often helpful, too.

THE STORY OF INTERVENTION.

The facts about German and Italian intervention in Spain are at last coming out, from official spokesmen in the two Fascist nations. It is a shocking story of international hypocrisy that is unfolded.

With the arrival in Germany of 5000 soldiers, the Condor Legion, after service in Spain, the Government releases to the press information hitherto concealed. The Spanish war began July 18, 1936, and Hitler decided near the end of that month, the new accounts assert, to help Gen. Franco. The first German contingent, disguised as tourists, sailed July 31, with a cargo of planes, bombs and anti-aircraft guns. Later, the Nazis sent more men, together with tanks, planes, huge supplies of munitions, and continued the process to the end of the war. Yet charges of such shipments were indignantly denied by Berlin, and the Nazis solemnly entered the non-intervention agreement.

Italy's case is similar. An article written by Foreign Minister Ciano now discloses that intervention began soon after July 25, 1936, when, on Franco's request, Italy sent nine planes to Spanish Morocco to bombard Government bases. Italy, too, denied that it was aiding the rebels, until the volume of its help made concealment no longer possible. And 12,000 Italians marched in Franco's victory parade.

Both countries committed outright violations of international law by these actions. Britain accepted their brazen denials, despite the facts that constantly came to light, and refused to help the struggling Republic. The result today is a Fascist Spain, a potential opponent of the anti-aggression bloc instead of an ally. The sacrifice of Spain, together with that of Czecho-Slovakia, has made vastly more difficult the task of standing off Fascism. Europe's peace would be far safer in 1939 had statesmanship not made its colossal errors in 1936.

EMPTY CRADLES.

The American birth rate has reached its lowest level, according to the head of the American Academy of Pediatrics, Dr. Henry F. Helmholz, who offers two explanations, neither of them satisfactory.

The career woman is with us, of course, who prefers her profession, vocation or even pleasure, as the doctor says, but she is not numerous enough to be reckoned a serious factor. She is hardly more than a shadow in the crowd.

Second, the young couples who are charged with postponing the everlasting miracle because of hospital and medical bills. Such immediate costs are doubtless deterrents in many instances, but it is the forbidding economic uncertainty of today that is defrauding the cradle. This reluctance of young people to launch offspring into the hazards of the unknown complies with one of the fundamental tenets of the high-intentioned birth-control movements. It may not be dismissed lightly by any thoughtful person.

With due respect for Dr. Helmholz and his fellow-academicians, the reported arraignment seems to us unfeelingly shallow. They might better turn their reproachful gaze from bewildered youth to the murderous folly of statesmanship. The world is spending a billion dollars a month for armaments, and, in the judgment of that fine American, John G. Winant, is condemning the lower income groups to starvation. Military madness is writing another list of casualties—the lost legion of the unborn.

A Legal View of Interstate Barriers

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Restrictions on trade from across borders, being imposed by many states, are plainly in violation of Constitution, bar publication says; traces history of provision, and harmful results of disregarding it; citizens injured by such statutes are urged to take court action.

From the American Bar Association Journal.

HISTORIANS and economists generally agree that one of the causes of war is the desire to interfere with the natural right of all to buy and sell everywhere on equal terms. Governments seek to extend their control over distant territory in order to acquire needed raw materials and to exercise a preferential and monopolistic control over commerce with the territory so acquired, and if this desire is resisted, those governments resort to force, for the accomplishment of their plans.

The idea that any lasting profit can come from that kind of interference with commerce is what Norman Angell called "The Great Illusion." Manifestations of that selfish spirit in Europe, yesterday and today, will not here be discussed. The American lawyer cannot, however, lack interest in a new manifestation of that ancient evil.

Some of our own states are attempting to limit the right of sister states to equality of opportunity in commerce within our national boundaries.

Sections 8 and 10, Article I, of our Constitution vest exclusive power in Congress to levy taxes and imposts on imports and exports and forbid the states to exercise that power. It seems timely to remind forgetful members of state Legislatures of the reasons which caused the Constitutional Convention to prohibit state interference with interstate commerce.

In Brown vs. Maryland (12 Wheat 419) Chief Justice Marshall in 1827 gave from personal knowledge a picture of the circumstances which produced those constitutional provisions. He said:

"From the vast inequality between the different states of the confederacy, as to commerce advantages, few subjects were viewed with deeper interest, or excited more irritation, than the manner in which the several states exercised, or seemed disposed to exercise, the power of laying duties on imports.

"From motives which were deemed sufficient by the statesmen of that day, the general power of taxation, indispensably necessary as it was, and jealous as the states were of any encroachment on it, was so far abridged as to forbid them to touch imports or exports, with the single exception which has been noticed."

From the very earliest days, those constitutional provisions were construed to forbid any interference with commerce between the states under any form or pretext. Within comparatively recent years, the supposed interests of some of the states have led to a renewal of those forbidden interferences.

So serious have been these efforts to circumvent the Constitution that the Council of State Governments promoted a "National Conference on Interstate Trade Barriers," to which were invited state Governors and other distinguished and competent persons. They met in Chicago in April and held a series of meetings at which the extent of the evils and possible remedies were discussed by men of ability and eminence.

At that congress, the Solicitor-General of the United States, Robert H. Jackson, was an invited guest. He declared that with the exception of matters involving the transportation of intoxicating liquors and prison-made goods, no state could impose any restrictions on commerce among the states. He declared it to be the position of the Government that all efforts of that sort to flout the Constitution would be challenged.

In 1937, a Florida statute imposed a tax, in the guise of an inspection fee, on the importation of foreign cement into Florida. A suit was instituted in a Federal District Court in that State to enjoin the enforcement of that act. Solicitor-General Jackson intervened in that litigation on behalf of the United States and challenged the validity of that statute. Under the title of Mason vs. Bimco Trading, Inc., it came duly to the Supreme Court. The opinion was written by Mr. Justice Frankfurter, and incidentally it was his first opinion. Speaking of that Florida statute, he said:

"But it would not be easy to imagine a statute more clearly designed than the present to circumvent what the commerce clause forbids."

While it is, of course, fully appreciated that the Florida statute dealt only with foreign commerce, there can be no doubt that the prohibitions of Section 10, Article I, of the Constitution are clearly applicable to interference with commerce among the states. The cases which are cited in Mr. Justice Frankfurter's opinion conclusively predict the result wherever one state, by any artifice, seeks to restrict the free and equal right of any other state to the free interchange of commerce.

The growing evil must be attacked on all fronts. The work of the Council of State Governments promises excellent results in bringing to the knowledge of legislative bodies the evils consequent on the pursuit of the unlawful course, in seeking to prevent further legislative action of that sort and in helping to bring about the repeal of those unconstitutional enactments.

The volume of research work already done, the mass of information already made available in reports, bulletins, investigations and the like are of great value and should go far to convince those who have acquiesced in such legislative measures of the serious errors committed.

But this line of attack, potent as it may be, is not enough. It should not be forgotten that without the repeal of those unconstitutional state statutes a prompt and certain remedy is available.

If proper application is made to the courts by any citizen injured through the effect of an unconstitutional statute or in proper cases by the Attorney-General of a state, the challenged evil will meet prompt and authoritative condemnation.

While the work of education and persuasion is going on, the lawyers and the courts can be relied upon to do their part in a common cause without waiting for legislative action.

NOW TO SETTLE IT HONESTLY.

From the Kansas City Times.

THE Missouri insurance controversy has been long and complicated. It will not be settled until it is settled justly—with a fair distribution of the contested funds and with proper punishment of all who have committed offenses against the State, the Federal court and the people.

If Plato Came Back

Books in the News

ON the hallowed theory that there are lessons to be learned from history, R. H. S. Crossman, young Oxford don and member of the staff of the New Statesman and Nation, asks us in "Plato Today" (Oxford University Press, New York) to re-examine the political writings of the most famous pupil of Socrates.

Like us, Plato lived in an age of flux. He was a witness to the decline of the Greek city-state and the end of the epoch of Hellenic expansion. After him came Philip and Alexander of Macedon, and after them the Roman legions. Are not the latter-day legions already on the march?

The Greek city-state was small enough to be a real laboratory for the political scientists. Daring experiments in government could be undertaken in Athens because so few persons were affected. There were not all the impedimenta of the modern nation. Yet the politics of Greece ended in failure.

Because he lived in the day when the cracks in the system yawned wide, rather than in its Golden Age, Plato was the most realistic critic of Hellenic ideals—and, paradoxically, their stoutest defender. Modern political theory is not so different that the "Republic" is not an excellent commentary on it, as well as a cogent explanation of our reactions to the tumult and the shouting of the troubled present.

Plato would have found much to admire in Moscow, for example. He would have approved of the "noble lie"—the dictatorship of the proletariat, the rule of the people—with which Stalin seeks to disguise rule by a minority. Plato was no democrat. He insisted on government by the few men of substance and birth fit to govern. His chief criticism of Stalin would be that it is too easy for the lowly to find a place in the Communist elite.

Likewise, Plato would have approved of Nazi propaganda and display, according to the author, but he would have been saddened to find that the German demagogues are not the tools of the Reich's intellectuals.

In short, Plato believed in dictatorship—more sophisticated than that of a Stalin, a Mussolini or a Hitler, but dictatorship nonetheless. He had no faith in the ordinary man, holding him utterly incapable of governing himself.

In the same way, Plato distrusted change and innovation. The old way was for him the good way, and it was to be imposed from on-high. Plato did not believe in human freedom. In his model state, he would have condemned a man who dared to differ with his philosopher-king.

There is no more tragic defense of the execution of Socrates, the master, than that implicit in the writing of his pupil, Plato, grown old. And it is the spirit of Socrates—open to new ideas, always seeking a bright new world—rather than the dogmatism of Plato that we need today.

Legislature Nears Session End; Spends $230,000,000, a New High, Refuses to Discard Spoils System

By CURTIS A. BETTS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 3. — The Sixtieth Missouri General Assembly on completion of a session of five and one-half months, will adjourn within the next two weeks with a record of having evaded the main governmental issue which confronted it at the beginning of the year. It did not enact legislation to wipe out the parasitic and expensive partisan political system of government and substitute one of business efficiency, having brushed aside without consideration every proposal for such legislation.

Its final record will show that it appropriated approximately $230,000,000, the highest amount ever dispensed by any Legislature in Missouri. Yet it was so niggardly in providing funds for the relief of suffering families of unemployed persons that Gov. Lloyd C. Stark told its members that a special session to increase taxes undoubtedly would be necessary before many months passed.

The appropriations will provide for the excessive costs of government occasioned by the numerous departments with overlapping duties, and for the salaries of the political jobholders, some of whom will receive increases in salaries. Political organizations of the several State officials and of the party in power, built largely on patronage, will remain intact. Cost of the expensive government will be borne by every individual in the State, principally through their payments of the 2 per cent sales tax.

An Antiquated System.

From the beginning of the session, the General Assembly displayed a disinclination to heed accumulated admonitions of many Governors, who have pointed out the expensiveness of the antiquated system of government, established in an early day when the State performed few services except routine administration of a simple government. Through many years there has been a gradual expansion of services, for each of which a new State department was created, or existing departments expanded, frequently to perform services in no way related to the original duties imposed on them.

The result has been that powerful patronage groups have been built up at an extravagant annual expenditure. The office of Secretary of State, created to keep the official records, is now found collecting State automobile license fees. The office of State Auditor, created to audit public accounts, is collecting the sales tax. The office of State Treasurer, created to guard the public funds, is collecting the inheritance tax. Numerous other departments are collecting numerous other taxes. The explanation is that when a new tax was created the Secretary of State, Auditor or Treasurer or other official wanted the extensive patronage which would ensue and had sufficient influence with legislators to have the collection duties placed in their departments.

Soon after the General Assembly convened, bills were introduced, or resolutions for proposed amendments to the Constitution when they were required to meet the situation, looking to a revision of the system of government, to place it on business and so far as possible non-political lines. Not one of these bills or resolutions has been passed, and none received even more than a pretended consideration by the legislative committees.

Inside Track for Lobbyists.

The suggested changes came from civic organizations, such as the League of Women Voters, from committees of the Bar Association, and from the Judicial Council. Such groups receive scant attention in the Legislature. A lobbyist representing a special interest has free, ready and frequent access to the office of almost every legislator, but the representative of a civic organization with a meritorious plan for improvement of government is generally looked upon as a public nuisance and a menace to the accepted order, treated with condescending politeness and gotten rid of as quickly as possible.

This, of course, is not true of all legislators, some of them, such as Senator Allen McReynolds of Carthage, having sponsored forward-looking legislation, but found themselves powerless to combat the sinister influences pervading the legislative halls and committee rooms.

Outstanding suggestions, dealing with the broad phases of government, included proposals for the creation of a commission to study and recommend consolidations of departments in the interest of good business and efficiency, for the institution of a civil service merit system in the selection of State employes to replace the political debt-paying system, for a system of appointment of Judges of the higher courts for long terms as a substitute for the present elective system under which Judges usually owe their election to political bosses, and for the creation of a Legislative Council to prepare studied legislative programs, aid legislators in the preparation of bills and supply them with accurate information.

What Happened to Them.

The survey commission bill did not get out of committee, and was not even accorded serious consideration. The civil service bill was kicked around in the committee, and action postponed notwithstanding a strong presentation in its favor by its sponsors, until it was killed by the operation of the Constitutional provision limiting legislative action to appropriation bills and certain other measures after 70 days of the session had expired. The appointment of judges bill still rests in committee. Of two Legislative Council bills, one was killed in a House committee and the other still rests in a Senate committee.

As a result of failure to give consideration, divorced from politics, to the Social Security program, provision has been made for only $5,000,000 for direct relief for a two-year period. More than half this amount has been expended, leaving less than $2,500,000 for the next 18 months. Only $3,250,000 was provided for aid to dependent children. But $19,500,000 was appropriated for old-age pensions.

In vain was an appeal for a reduction of the public school allotment from one-third of the general revenue to one-fourth. Equally in vain was the Governor's appeal that the State University appropriation of approximately $4,000,000 come from the school fund instead of the general revenue fund, thus increasing the amount available for relief.

The 25,000 school teachers, beneficiaries of the increased school fund, are a political force, as are the recipients of old-age pensions. Direct relief recipients have not yet made themselves felt in politics, nor have the recipients of aid to dependent children.

Some Salary Increases.

Legislative leaders have attempted to dodge the issue of the inadequancy of relief appropriations by the statement that the State simply did not have the funds for a greater allotment. Yet, in the face of statements to that effect, the General Assembly found the funds to continue existing salary rates for the political job holders, and even to increase some of them, to increase the salaries of Supreme and Court of Appeals Judges $2500 a year each, to increase the salaries of Circuit Judges in 31 counties $1300 each, and to increase the salaries of County Superintendents of Schools and Prosecuting Attorneys. Prosecuting Attorneys' salaries are paid from county funds and not by the State, but the taxpayers foot the bill just the same. The Governor vetoed the increase for County Superintendents of Schools and has yet to act on the increases for Circuit Judges and Prosecuting Attorneys.

In addition to the failures of action already cited, a check-over of the record of the General Assembly shows that it ignored the demand for a change in the State fiscal year, which would have corrected the unbusinesslike present system under which for the first six months of each biennium the State operates on a "cash item" basis without appropriations having been made.

It took no steps toward correcting the inequality of legislative representation, which denies the large cities their proper number of legislators.

Needed changes in the election laws and a bill providing for a secret ballot were defeated.

Some Work Undone.

So far nothing has been accomplished toward providing additional funds for the construction of farm-to-market roads and other highways, needed because of the exhaustion of bond issue money. It is probable before adjournment that a truck licensing bill will be passed, providing in some measure for these requirements.

A State wage and hour law, providing the same protection for workers in industries not engaged in interstate commerce that the Federal law gives to those in in-

SENATOR CARTER GLASS

Senator's conviction that in devaluing the dollar, Roosevelt betrayed not only the Democratic platform and the candidate's campaign pledges, but in particular Glass himself—and this after the latter had risen from a sick-bed, against his doctor's orders, to deliver an hour's radio address, on Nov. 1, 1932. It was hailed as the greatest oratorical effort of the campaign and was praised by Roosevelt himself as a "wonderful speech," a "magnificent philippic" and a "devastating challenge." The Senator had swung his legs out of bed and "called for his pants" on reading a speech in which Patrick Hurley, Secretary of War, declared that "should the Democratic party succeed at the November election, the United States will be driven off the gold standard."

"It is difficult to say precisely," we are told, "when Glass began to have doubts concerning the monetary policies of the incoming administration. Certainly he had none during the campaign. Up to January he continued to brand persistent rumors as 'malicious and inspired gossip.' But with each passing day of silence he began to wonder and then to worry."

Rejection of Cabinet Post.

It was at this moment, on Jan. 19, 1933, that the President-elect, stopping over in Washington on his way to Warm Springs, first tendered to Glass the post of Secretary of the Treasury. "This meeting lasted no more than 15 minutes," the book relates, "but during it Glass repeatedly asked Roosevelt for his views on currency matters, and received no satisfactory answers." There followed the series of meetings with Moley, and then a second session with Roosevelt.

"Once again," the account runs, "Glass sought assurances as to the questions he had asked regarding the currency, and again received no answers that to him were satisfactory." He then said: "My doctor strongly urges me to decline the honor, and I am just as strongly inclined to follow his advice." To which Roosevelt, "in a somewhat exasperated vein," retorted: "It's your duty to your country and your party. No other man, by training and experience, is so fitted for the position."

The last meeting with the President-elect was on a train between Washington and Baltimore. "The offer of the Treasury post was renewed," the book tells. "Glass tried for a third time to learn Roosevelt's views regarding currency matters," but "failed to elicit satisfactory responses." During the following three days, "all manner of pressure was put on Glass to accept." Then he telephoned a final "No," and the appointment of William H. Woodin was announced. Glass has described this refusal as "the wisest decision of my career."

Fought Monetary Plan.

Soon after the inauguration, it is related, Glass was summoned to the White House and informed by President Roosevelt that he proposed to capture the gold stocks of the Federal Reserve System and raise their value from $20.50 to $35 an ounce, thus giving the Treasury a "profit" of nearly three billion dollars. In 1916 Glass had been denounced by the United States Chamber of Commerce as a demagogue and booed at the New York Economic Club. But now he was profoundly shocked. For a moment, his biographers state, he said nothing, scarcely believing his ears. Then he protested:

"That isn't a profit, as you call it—but a bookkeeping mark-up. Furthermore, the gold you are proposing to confiscate belongs to the Federal Reserve banks, and the Treasury has never invested a penny in it. You are proposing to appropriate something that does not belong to the Government, and something that has never belonged to the Government."

The President rejoined, the narrative proceeds, that the Treasury would pay for the gold at its market value, and asked, with a smile, "What do you think of it?" The Virginian snapped angrily:

"I think it is worse than anything Ali Baba's thieves ever perpetrated!" Whereupon Roosevelt burst into laughter, we are told, and counseled Glass against losing his temper.

Glass' Early Life.

The man whom President Roosevelt wooed so persistently on this occasion was born Jan. 4, 1858, at Lynchburg, Va. His father was Robert Henry Glass, postmaster and publisher of the Lynchburg Daily Republican. The ancestry was Scotch-Irish. In the family library were the works of Plato, Shakespeare, Burke and Jefferson. These books were the lad's college. In the poverty following the Civil War, he was unable to complete even grammar school, though he is said to possess more honorary degrees than any member of Congress.

He went to work as a printer's devil at the age of 13 in his father's office. At 22, after a short period as clerk in a railroad office, he got a job as reporter on the Lynchburg News, of which he became editor and then owner. In the midst of incessant political controversies, the youthful publicist found time to champion Francis Bacon as the author of Shakespeare's plays, and to support Gladstone in his religious polemics with Ingersoll. As a delegate to the Democratic convention at Chicago in 1896, he heard William Jennings Bryan deliver his "cross of gold" oration, but recovered quickly, it is stated, from the intoxication of the commoner's eloquence.

Fought Telephone Monopoly.

He entered politics at the age of 40, as a speaker in behalf of J. Hoge Tyler, candidate for Governor of Virginia. In consequence, though too ill to vote and making no campaign, Glass was elected to the State Senate, and had a prominent part in devising the present constitution of Virginia. Becoming a member of the board of visitors at the University of Virginia, he took the lead in substituting a single executive for the faculty management which had prevailed since Jefferson. The post of first president of the university was offered to an alumnus, a native of Virginia and a Princeton professor, named Woodrow Wilson, who declined.

As State Senator Glass fought the telephone monopoly in Virginia to such purpose that the chief lobbyist was moved to ask:

"How many newspapers has this man Glass?"

"Two."

"Only two?" yelled the lobbyist. "I thought he had a hundred!"

Federal Reserve Proposal.

Glass was elected to the House of Representatives in 1902, remained silent on the floor out of principle for three years, and permitted 10 years to pass before making his first major speech, in behalf of the Federal Reserve bill. He had studied finance with such diligence that on a snowy night in December, 1912, he dismounted from a train at Princeton, N. Y., and submitted to Woodrow Wilson, President-elect, a few sheets of paper in the Virginian's own handwriting, which contained the essence of what was to become the Federal Reserve Act.

A year before, Glass had run for office as United States Senator and been roundly defeated, though Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, made a speech at Richmond in his behalf. After something more than a year as Secretary of the Treasury, Glass entered the Senate in 1920 by way of an appointment to fill a vacancy. He was Virginia's favorite son at the Democratic convention of 1924, which nominated John W. Davis.

Lively as it is, the biography can scarcely claim to be a definitive account of the Senator's career. It is silent, for example, regarding his strange role, almost that of counsel for Wall Street, during the Senate banking and currency investigation, and his singular attacks on Ferdinand Pecora, counsel to the committee, who has since become a Justice of the New York Supreme Court. It does not tell how Glass sought to use his position on the Senate Appropriations Committee to cut down an appropriation for a New Deal agency because it refused to establish a branch at Lynchburg. But the volume provides ample evidence on one point—that since 1933 the senior Senator from Virginia has lived in a chronic state of indignation.

HOUSE MOVE GAINS FOR FULL INQUIRY INTO LABOR BOARD

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt has been told by some of his closest congressional friends that unless Congress gets a chance to vote on Wagner Labor Act amendments at this session, a House investigation of the National Labor Relations Board is inevitable.

This became known today as influential House members started a quiet campaign to obtain support for an investigation resolution which Representative Cox (Dem.), Georgia, has introduced. Cox said he would ask the Rules Committee to approve his resolution unless the Labor Committee reports amendments "in time for action this session."

Some Democrats expressed the opinion privately that the House would certainly adopt, if called to the floor, a resolution to create a special committee to inquire into the board's activities during the summer and fall and report back Jan. 1.

Would Look Into Personnel.

The inquiry would look into qualifications of the three board members and all regional directors and trial examiners and the arguments that the law should be amended.

Representative C. Arthur Anderson (Dem.), Missouri, already has introduced legislation for such an investigation. Cox said it would be approved by the Rules Committee, of which he is a member, and he predicted the only floor opposition would come from New Dealers.

Advocates of changes in the law have complained that it appeared neither the Senate nor the House Labor Committee intended to report amendments at this session.

The House Labor Committee began hearings four weeks ago but has heard only five authors of amendments, Chairman J. Warren Madden of the NLRB and Charles Fahy, board counsel. Chairman Norton (Dem.), New Jersey, said the committee might hear other board representatives and CIO and A. F. of L. representatives before closing the hearings and starting a study of the amendments behind closed doors.

Only three or four of the 25 committeemen have attended the hearings, and one member said privately the reason for the absences was that "they simply don't expect anything to happen."

Business Pleas to Roosevelt.

The determination of some House members to press for amendments at this session was strengthened by reports that business men had strongly urged President Roosevelt to use his influence to obtain changes in the law. Business leaders who dined at the White House Thursday and discussed current economic problems with Mr. Roosevelt were said to have told him that amendment of the law was one of the foremost needs for recovery.

W. Gibson Carey Jr., president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to members today said business men "must be aggressive" in their efforts to see that everything possible was done "by Government and business to encourage a balanced recovery."

As to the Labor Relations Act, he said:

"There should be immediate amendments which will clarify definitely the rights of both employes and employers. The objective must be to have the Government a neutral, eager only to further industrial peace. Full judicial review of all findings and decisions should be provided.

"The only chance remaining for remedial legislation at this session lies in widespread and immediate demands of business men and their organizations."

GARNER CERTAIN TO RUN IN 1940, FRIEND ASSERTS

B. N. Timmons Says Even if Roosevelt Decides to Make Race Again, Texan Will Not Withdraw.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 3. — The first definite plans of the "Garner-for-President" pre-convention campaign were disclosed today by Bascom N. Timmons, a close friend of the Vice-President, in a lengthy dispatch to four Texas newspapers of which he is the Washington correspondent.

The name of John N. Garner will go before the 1940 Democratic National Convention regardless of what other names are placed before that group and Garner will accept the nomination if it is offered him, Timmons declared. If President Roosevelt should be a candidate for a third renomination, the Garner forces will not withdraw, he continued.

"Should the President allow his name to go before the convention," Timmons wrote, "it will create the historical precedent of the convention deciding between the man who has been President for eight years and the man who has been Vice-President for the same eight years."

Should this situation come about, Timmons said, the Garner forces will continue the efforts for their candidate with the "utmost good will."

Farm and Unemployment.

By carrying the pre-convention contest to the rank and file Democrats, the Garner forces, directed by E. B. Germany, Texas Democratic State Chairman, and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, Democratic National Committeewoman from Texas, will act on the assumption that President Roosevelt will not seek a third term, the correspondent said.

"Garner," Timmons said, "will not be presented to the country as a New Dealer nor a a middle-of-the-roader nor as a conservative. He will be presented as a Democrat without a prefix of any sort, a Democrat with a militantly liberal record over a period of 38 years in national government, as second to no man in the nation in his common sense knowledge of government and one whose service can be profitably continued in the highest office in the gift of the people, especially in continued effort to solve what Garner is known to regard as the two greatest problems of the next few years—the farm problem and unemployment."

The Garnerites, Timmons said, expect no statement from their candidate before the convention, but will go back to his statement nearly eight years ago that "no man could refuse a nomination for the presidency if his party tendered it." They will also emphasize his statement that no man should seek the nomination and that the people ought to know the character, training and record of any man proposed for President.

Timmons reported that only during the past week did the "militant organization" for Garner begin to function.

To Go Into Every State.

"Within the next few months," he added, "the Garner for President organization will carry its campaign into every state in the Union. Germany and Mrs. Driscoll have been in communication with a number of state and national leaders and will continue such communications but essentially the Garner campaign will be carried to the real owners of the Democratic party—the rank and file.

"The first shot to this group was fired when 30,000 letters were mailed to Democratic voters asking them to enlist in the Garner cause. Germany, in Dallas, said he was amazed at the response. So favorable was it that his organization was studying plans to enlarge this phase of the campaign."

As the spokesman for the Garner group, Timmons analyzed for his own purposes the forces talking about a third term for President Roosevelt. The first group, he said, is composed of sincere men and women who honestly feel that no other person fits the situation which may confront the country from 1941 to 1945; the second group, he said, is made up of office holders, particularly in the District of Columbia, and the third group of persons want to knock down the "top man," who in this instance happens to be Garner.

Roosevelt's Attitude.

Commenting on the third group, Timmons said:

"Another name for them is the 'manipulators.' Many of them are not for Roosevelt but it serves their purpose to confuse the situation and prevent, if they can, any candidate from taking a commanding lead prior to the convention. It is among this group that has been born and circulated the report that President Roosevelt might not support Garner if the latter is the presidential nominee.

"The Garnerites summarily dismiss any suggestion that President Roosevelt would decline to support the man who supplied the delegates to make possible the 1932 Roosevelt nomination. If Garner is nominated as the free expression of the Democratic National Convention—and the Garnerites want him to have the nomination in no other way—they confidently expect the support of President Roosevelt and the entire party."

Hitler's Chance, If Any, Lies in U-Boats, Planes

official yacht. Long, low in the water, with her deck-line rising in a graceful curve toward the prow, she was a majestic sight. Her superstructure, including a single funnel, was clustered roughly in a pyramid near center. Her nine 11-inch guns glistened in three streamlined turrets, two fore and one aft.

Chances in Combat.

The Gneisenau and the Scharnhorst are beautiful battleships, but the question arises as to what they would be able to do if confronted by the heavier battleships and battle-cruisers of the British fleet, with their much-heavier armament of 16, 15 and 14-inch guns. Yet, it must not be overlooked at Jutland the German warships, mounting nothing heavier than 12 and 11-inch guns, gave an excellent account of themselves in the face of the British capital units, which boasted a formidable array of 15, 14 and 13.5-inch guns,

In any case, Germany has now entered the race for bigger capital ships with bigger guns. Since the beginning of this year she has launched two 35,000-ton battleships, each to cary eight 15-inch guns. A third was laid down in 1938, and a fourth is believed to be projected. It is not yet clear whether the Reich intends to attempt to compete in the field of capital units of 40,000 tons or more.

At the Kiel parade the "pocket battleships" were followed in line by four 6000-ton cruisers. At that time none of the 10,000-ton cruisers had been put in commission. After the cruisers came in succession several divisions of destroyers and torpedo boats. There were also in line a number of auxiliary vessels, including a group of mine-sweepers painted black.

Forbidden Submarines Shown.

An impressive rear guard was provided by a flotilla of 37 submarines, all the underwater craft then in commission. The Versailles 'diktat,' as the Germans call it, barred the Reich from maintaining a single submarine. Thus each of these 37 successors of the dreaded U-boats, which played havoc with Allied and neutral shipping during the World War, was constructed after Hitler had begun to expand the naval force of his country in violation of the treaty.

The submarine column at the review was headed by two 740-ton units, which had joined in the force only a few weeks before. The remainder were of 500-ton displacement. Special interest was attracted by a submarine, the U-9, which carried on its conning tower a large iron cross. The cross was intended to recall to mind the U-9 of wartime, which in one day in 1914 sank three British warships, the Hogue, Cressy and Aboukir.

Behind Britain.

Since the Kiel review many additional underwater craft have gone into commission, and the total by the close of the current year is expected to be at least 71. Now that Germany has resumed a free hand, and is no longer prepared to provide the British Admiralty with full details of her construction program, there is uncertainty here as to her intentions in the underwater field. However, ocean-going craft of 1000 tons or more are believed to be in project.

Since the answer to the submarine is not submarines, the British Admiralty is concentrating on precautions outside the field of submarine construction. In fact, it is possible that in 1939 Germany will have a larger number of under-sea craft in commission than Britain. Yet, since the German units are far lighter on the average, the total tonnage of the Reich cannot approach that of Britain for a considerable period.

Comparative Strength.

Winston Churchill, who was First Lord of the Admiralty at the outbreak of the World War, said of the condition of the British navy:

"It is the only one of our defense services which is in high state of efficiency and which is far stronger relatively to Europe than it was in 1914."

The difference between the situation in 1914 and today is primarily the difference between a formidable German fleet and a pitifully weak one. The plain fact is that at the beginning of this year the total tonnage of the British fleet, 1,300,000 tons, was larger than the combined tonnage of the French, Italian and German fleets. Moreover, barring some unannounced increase in recent weeks in the German plans, the huge construction program of Britain outstrips in tonnage the combined construction programs of those three Powers.

Submarines and Planes.

When it is taken into consideration that the British fleet today boasts 15 capital ships and intends to add nine units, including four of 40,000 tons, by 1943, it is difficult to see how Hitler can expect to repeat in his life-time the Kaiser's threat—on the surface. With his immense air force and growing submarine strength, his chance, if any, of destroying Britain's age-long command of the sea seems to be in the spheres below and above the surface.

Though there are many anxious, doubting Thomases among British naval officers, the majority opinion in those quarters seems to be that the submarine menace can be defeated again, and more thoroughly even than in 1918.

Likewise, while it is conceded that the new air weapon provides a formidable danger, this same majority opinion holds that it can be held in sufficient check to permit the surface fleet of Britain to fulfill its traditional functions, even though on an appreciably revised basis.

RIVER PARKWAY BILL SIGNED BY GOV. STARK

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 3.—An act to enable Missouri to co-operate with the Federal Government in establishing a national scenic highway from the source of the Mississippi River to its mouth, was signed today by Gov. Stark.

The project, still in a formative stage, is proposed in a bill pending before Congress. It contemplates a tourist highway which will enter Missouri near Keokuk, Ia., or Hannibal, follow the river through St. Louis, and continue south through Ste. Genevieve and Cape Girardeau.

The State Highway Department is designated as the State agency to co-operate with the Federal Government in making preliminary surveys, if the Federal legislation is approved, and the department is given the right to acquire and convey land for the parkway to the Government.

Scenic Development.

On either side of the highway it is proposed to have a scenic area, with special development at historic sites along the route. The parkway area will be not less than 200 feet wide and equal to about 150 acres per mile. Plans call for a 1700-mile parkway extending from Itaska State Park in Minnesota to the mouth of the river below New Orleans under control of the National Park Service.

The Governor vetoed two House revision bills. One would have repealed a section of the 1933-1934 State liquor control act which provides that anyone violating provisions of the act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The Legislature approved the bill with the understanding that the penalty section was in conflict with a later enactment which provided that persons selling liquor in unstamped containers or without a license would be guilty of a felony.

Doubt As to Effect.

Gov. Stark said he vetoed the bill because there existed some doubt as to the effect of the measure on the penalty sections.

The other bill vetoed would have amended the law providing that a widower is entitled to a half interest in the real and personal estate of his wife at the time of her death. The bill, purporting to be in accordance with a court decision, proposed to change the law by providing that a widower was entitled only to a half interest in the personal estate. Gov. Stark declared the proposal was "unjust and unfair."

The Governor approved 33 other bills, most of which are revision measures designed to eliminate unconstitutional and conflicting laws from the statutes, and to make minor corrections in the form of existing laws.

3 CO-CHAIRMEN TO DIRECT UNITED CHARITIES CAMPAIGN

James L. Ford, William N. Sitton and John R. Longmire to Head Fall Drive.

Three co-chairmen, instead of a general chairman, will direct the eighth annual United Charities campaign next fall. They are James L. Ford, vice-president of the First National Bank; William N. Sitton, assistant treasurer of the International Shoe Co., and John R. Longmire, partner in I. M. Simon & Co., investment bankers.

They will direct several thousand volunteer solicitors in the drive for funds for 87 private welfare agencies. They will have general supervision over the four main divisions of the drive.

Divisions are: Special gifts, including all prospective donors of $250 or more; employes, workers in 1500 industries; general, which includes offices and residential districts, and the St. Louis County Division. The first duty of the co-chairmen will be to select division chairmen and campaign workers.

Wall Street Security Markets Pause After Rising Almost Steadily Since Middle of May

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—The stock market, after advancing almost steadily since the middle of May, took a "breather" this week and tilted backward. Net losses on the period, however, were small, and most traders termed the decline a "technical reaction" logically due.

Moreover, no broad selling developed when prices slid: Many holders clung to shares, indicating a desire to "sit tight" to see what the summer and fall might have in store for general business.

Merchandising issues were relatively strong all week, reflecting improved retail demand and expectations of expanding consumer purchasing.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .2 of a point lower for the week at 47.3, though .1 of a point was added on the last day. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks was .03 of a point lower at 45.91 for the week, but gained .08 on Saturday's trading.

While price changes were small throughout the brief session, steels, motors, mail orders, rubbers and specialties generally pointed upward. Many issues, however, closed virtually even or a shade in arrears.

Trading Volume Small.

With numerous traders deserting boardrooms for week-end holidays, the day's turnover was the smallest since May 13. Transfers totaled 175,740 shares against 382,360 last Saturday. The week's volume of 2,438,150 shares, due partly to the Memorial day shutdown, was the lowest in about a year. The total for the preceding week was 3,870,950.

The day's news budget was lacking in particularly stimulating qualities from either home or abroad.

Steels drew some support on announcement of the navy's big warship orders and indications next week's mill operating rate would register a further comeback. Motors, while continuing under the cloud of Detroit labor difficulties, edged upward as forecasts of better than anticipated second quarter earnings for the principal manufacturers were heard.

Although the start of a new series of Government-business conferences revived mild hopes of something constructive coming out of the meetings, speculative contingents recalled that past moves in this direction had not achieved a great deal.

Foreign Markets Closed.

Stocks emerging behind modest plus signs today included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Anaconda, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak and Zenith Radio.

Tending to restrain buyers in the short session, brokers said, were reports the President possibly would veto the huge farm bill because the Senate added $338,000,000 of unbudgeted benefit payments without voting new taxes to finance them. This, it was feared, might complicate business tax revision plans now before Congress.

Amsterdam joined other European markets today in Saturday closings and from now on will shut down over week ends through August. Consequently, clews from overseas price trends were lacking a a New York influence.

Motor Car Output Down.

Automobile and truck assemblies, according to trade estimates, were less than half the total for the previous week as result of the Memorial day suspension and the strike or the Briggs body plants. The industry's output was estimated at 32,445 units against 67,740 the previous week and 32,980 in the 1938 week, the first time this year it fell below the comparable 1938 figure.

Elsewhere, however, business seemed to be feeling its way cautiously forward. A wave of buying rolled into cotton textile markets, giving mills an opportunity to work off some of the large stocks they accumulated during the recent spells of slack buying. Flickers of revived buying interest also brightened copper and other raw materials markets.

Despite the holiday, steel makers stepped up operating schedules in the sharpest weekly upturn this year. The operating rate advanced 3.7 points to 52.2 per cent of capacity in a broadening of improvement since the resumption of soft coal mining assured industry ample fuel supply. Latest figures revealed improvement in rail loadings and consumption of power.

Offset Activity Elsewhere.

The wide fall in motor production offset gains in other components of the Associated Press index of industrial activity. After two weeks of advance, reversing the slow spring decline, it remained unchanged at 83.3.

The Government bond list rose under the pressure of a record-breaking supply of idle money. This unemployed capital and the steady decline in yields on high-grade bonds caused further cuts in bank payments on savings deposits and Toledo banks reduced the rate to 1 per cent from 2 on accounts up to $10,000. Above that figure the rate was dropped to one-half per cent, effective July 1.

Eastern railroads angled for more passenger traffic by announcing a reduction in round-trip fares. An interesting feature was the zoning of the lower rates, making the reduction deeper in proportion to the distance traveled.

Meanwhile, Wall Street continued to watch developments in Washington closely for confirmation of recent rumors another "spend-lend" campaign was in the making and for hints whether the administration policy would shift to the right in an effort to stimulate "venture" capital into action.

What Index Shows.

	Latest Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Yr. Ago
Composite index	— 83.3	83.3	65.8
Auto. prod. (L).	— 40.7	55.2	32.2

Residential Bldg.	— 90.8	90.8	54.8
Total carloadings	— 64.4	63.6	57.7

(L) means new 1939 low.

Warmer weather in many sections, trade reports said, sent perspiring customers into stores to buy summer wear, sporting goods and outing supplies. Retailers found this a help. Retail business, in fact, was described as generally better than manufacturing.

Analysts inferred industry was still working off inventories and that manufacturers could count on improvement in demand when the replenishment of sold-out shelves begins.

Russia's Action Causes Pause.

Soviet Russia's action on the anti-Hitler front dampened reawakening optimism, especially in foreign money centers, over European prospects. But Wall Street, for the moment, seemed to have put the European struggle for power in the background while pondering chances of a summer and autumn business revival at home and the trend of events in Washington. Business continued to urge changes in taxes, labor relations legislation and other New Deal policies as the way to resumption of private spending for industrial expansion.

COMMODITIES INDEX LOWER FOR WEEK

More Than 85,000,000 Yards of Gray Goods Sold and Price Is Advanced.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Most major commodities for immediate delivery tended lower this week.

The Associated Press index of 35 weighted wholesale spot staple prices, with 1926 as 100, declined to 66.95 from 67.26 in the preceding week and 64.16 a year ago.

Mark-ups in cotton cloth pushed the textile component of the index to a new 1939 high, however, despite easing of the price of silk which had been at an eight-year peak. A buying flurry in cotton cloth markets resulting in sale of an estimated more than 85,000,000 yards of gray goods in a little over a week led to the advancing quotations in Worth street.

Wheat, corn, oats and rye were all lower.

Among basic industrial raw materials, rubber was higher. Tilting downward, however, were tin, cotton, coal, turpentine and burlap.

Market basket items bearing higher price tags included coffee and butter, but less costly were cocoa and lard.

SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNT OF COPPER PURCHASED

NEW YOROK, June 3 (AP).—Independent fabricators bought substantial tonnages of copper this week, adding another facet to signs of revived interest in basic industrial commodities.

Demand in local markets coincided with a price boost in export copper to 10¼ cents a pound. Trade interests pointed out this price—¼ cent above the current domestic level—allowed domestic sellers a better profit abroad than in home markets.

Sales abroad also picked up and there were indications cartel sales during May exceeded output. The week's top price was shaded to 10.19 at the close.

Lead producers turned in another good week's sales reports. Turnover was well in excess of output. Prices were unchanged although traders kept an eye on London for some indication of future trends.

Zinc prices were also unchanged but a little broader demand appeared.

Steel orders—not considering business booked during the "cut-price" period—rolled in at about the same rate as in the previous week. Tin plate operations continued to hol daround 70 per cent of capacity.

NETHERLANDS GUILDER MOVES IN WIDE COURSE

Maintaining the zig-zag course in relation to the dollar that started early in the year—dotted with a few periods of calm—the guilder lost a trifle more than ¼ cent.

Movements in the local market appeared largely to mirror action of European money centers, where most of the business originated.

Bankers saw the latest drop as the result chiefly of three factors: Cabinet difficulties accompanied by unconfirmed rumors of resignations; transfer of money from Holland to Switzerland and appearance late in the week of speculative pressure.

Gold engagements for the week through Friday dropped to $17,234,000 from $18,794,000 in the similar period last week.

Another sinking spell left the Netherlands guilder .08 of a cent lower in terms of the dollar today.

Selling appeared to be started by Cabinet difficulties, foreign exchange men said, and was accentuated by speculative pressure later in the week.

Countering the trend in the guilder was continued strength in the Swiss franc, which advanced .02 of a cent. There has been substantial transfer of funds from Holland to Switzerland recently, bankers said.

Sterling advanced 1-16 of a cent while the French franc and belga were unchanged.

The Federal Reserve Bank today reported engagement of $4,100,000 gold in England and $800,000 in Holland for shipment here.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Foreign exchange closing rates follow: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents; Great Britain, 4.68 7-16; 60-day bills, 4.67 9-16; Canada, Montreal in New York, 99.85 15-16; Canada, New York in Montreal, 100.14-1-16; Belgium, 17.03; Denmark, 20.91; Finland, 2.07; France, 2.65; Germany, 40.13; benevolent 20.75, travel 23.50; Greece, .85⅞; Hungary, 19.70; Italy, 5.26¼; Netherlands, 53.38; Norway, 23.53; Poland, 18.86; Portugal, 4.27; Rumania, .72; Sweden, 24.13; Switzerland, 22.61; Argentina (official), 31.23; Argentina (free), 23.20; Brazil (official), 6.05; Brazil (free), 5.40; Mexico, 20.15; Japan, 27.32; Hongkong, 29.13; Shanghai, 16.15; Yugoslavia, 2.30. Rates in spot cables unless otherwise indicated.

LONDON, June 3 (AP).—The United States dollar was unaltered at 4.68⅜ to the pound in final foreign exchange dealings today and compared with a similar rate for sterling in New York late yesterday.

French francs held at 176.75 to the pound.

COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 3.—A brisk run-up in cotton was countered by wavering wheat prices in commodity futures trading today.

New York cotton snapped out of a morning calm to post closing gains of 30 to 50 cents a bale. High point of the advance was crossing of the 9-cent hurdle by the July delivery.

Chicago wheat wobbled back and forth to finally end unchanged to ½ cent a bushel lower. Selling was prompted by more favorable crop weather, offset in turn by purchasing credited to milling interests. Corn declined ¼ to ½ cent.

WASHINGTON BUSINESS NOTES

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP). — The Federal Reserve Board estimates department store sales in the week ended May 27 were 8 per cent larger than in the corresponding week last year. Sales for the four weeks ended on the same date also were estimated to have averaged 8 per cent over last year.

For the week, the gains ranged from 18 per cent in the Atlanta district and 17 per cent each in the Cleveland and Richmond districts to decreases of 6 per cent in the San Francisco and 11 per cent in the Minneapolis districts.

The National Coal Association estimated 6,150,000 tons of bituminous coal production last week, compared with 5,200,000 in the preceding week and 5,324,000 in the corresponding week last year.

SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNT OF COPPER PURCHASED

NEW YOROK, June 3 (AP).—Independent fabricators bought substantial tonnages of copper this week, adding another facet to signs of revived interest in basic industrial commodities.

Demand in local markets coincided with a price boost in export copper to 10¼ cents a pound. Trade interests pointed out this price—¼ cent above the current domestic level—allowed domestic sellers a better profit abroad than in home markets.

Sales abroad also picked up and there were indications cartel sales during May exceeded output. The week's top price was shaded to 10.19 at the close.

Lead producers turned in another good week's sales reports. Turnover was well in excess of output. Prices were unchanged although traders kept an eye on London for some indication of future trends.

Zinc prices were also unchanged but a little broader demand appeared.

Steel orders—not considering business booked during the "cut-price" period—rolled in at about the same rate as in the previous week. Tin plate operations continued to hol daround 70 per cent of capacity.

FURTHER MODEST RISE IN BONDS LAST WEEK

Low-Yield Liens, on Average, Push Up to New Highs for Two Years.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Consideration in Washington of steps to hasten business revival contributed to a further modest recovery in bond prices last week. Low-yield bonds on the average pushed up to new high marks for more than two years, but here the movement was associated mainly with the vast supply of idle bank funds and the general feeling among financiers that the era of exceptionally low interest rates was still far from its end.

U. S. Government issues, after a little hesitation which probably reflected dealers' profit-selling on the previous week's upthrust, resumed their climb with fresh vigor when the Treasury disclosed that the June quarterly financing would not involve an increase in the Government debt, but would be limited to a refunding of maturing issues.

Long-term Treasuries were up substantially on the week, and many in this group reached new all-time highs. Gains ran to fractions or more for some of the popular loans in the low-yield group. In the secondary division there were a number of fairly wide advances, although this part of the market was a bit uneven toward the end.

New financing cut little figure in the corporate field, but made a sizable total in the municipal realm. Topping the list was Pennsylvania's award of $100,000,000 two-year 1½ per cent tax anticipation notes at a good premium over par.

The market coasted through the two-hour session today with prices holding an even course, and changes generally limited to fractions.

United States Government issues continued to push upward in extremely light dealings. On the sale of one bond Treasury 3¼s '48-'46 advanced 10-32ds of a point and Home Owners Loan 2¾s of '49-'39 on turnover of six bonds rose 11-32ds.

Associated Press rail, industrial, utility and foreign bond averages were all unchanged, although the low yield bond average moved up another notch to the highest since Jan. 28, 1937.

Fractionally higher were Erie 5s of '75 at 10¾, Great Northern 4s of '46 "G" at 96¼, Nickel Plate 5½s at 58, International Hydro Electric 6s at 86½, Anaconda Copper 4½s at 107 and International Telephone 5s at 69.

Among foreigns, German 5½s of '65 were up ⅛ at 18⅜ and Japanese 5½s up ½ at 59½, while Italians 7s of '51 dropped ⅛ at 61½.

SMALL CHANGE IN WHEAT AFTER SLOW SESSION

Weather Continues to Dominate Trade With Good Rains Improving Outlook — Higher Temperatures in Prospect.

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP).—After fluctuating nervously through one of the dullest sessions since the bull market based on crop scare began six weeks ago, wheat prices today closed unchanged to ½ cent lower compared with the previous finish.

Quotations dipped ½c at the opening to around 77 cents a bushel for summer delivery contracts, lowest in more than a week, but then deevloped recovery power that rallied the market at times as much as ¾ cent. At the close July wheat was quoted at 77⅜@½, and September at 77⅛@77c.

Weather continued to dominate trade, with good rains improving recent more favorable conditions for crop development, but fair and warmer weather was in prospect for much of the grain belt.

Corn quotations closed at the day's lows. Other grains fluctuated with wheat and corn closed ¼@½ lower, July 50¾, September 52¼, oats unchanged to ¼ off, rye ½@⅝ down and lard 2 lower to 3 higher.

Good rains over much of the grain belt yesterday were confirmed and the morning weather map showed additional moisture in spring wheat territory both sides of the Canadian border. The corn and winter wheat belts also got moisture but fair and warmer weather was predicted for most of the grain territory over the week-end.

Traders expressed belief the offiical Government crop report to be issued next Friday may reflect recent improved wheat conditions more than did yesterday's private estimates which suggested a probable United States harvest of 700,000,000 bushels. Much data for the private reports was compiled prior to the recent good rains.

After an early dip of about ½ cent, wheat developed steadiness, however, and at times rallied to within ⅛ or ¼ cent of previous closing levels.

Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ½ lower, due to weakness in Chicago and cheaper Australian and Argentine offers. China bought a cargo of Australian flour, the third the past three days. Germany bought 240,000 bushels of Canadian wheat for Pacific Coast shipment the middle of this month.

Corn receipts, totaling 195 cars, continued to show an expansion of country marketings and a more liberal movement may occur, traders said, after June 7 when reduced freight rates to Chicago from Northeastern Illinois go into effect.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, June 3.—In the cash grain section of the market today wheat was steady and corn and oats unchanged.

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—The July cotton delivery crossed the 9-cent mark today, in a late buying rush. Last-minute profit-taking shaved high marks a little, but the closing range was still 6 to 10 points higher.

After a dawdling first hour, a flurry of trade-buying revealed that holders appeared unwilling to sell except at substantial mark-ups. Professional covering aided the advance.

Broad-scale mill demand flourished under the impetus of heavy Worth street sales of textiles during the last week. Textile buyers, prodded by reports that mills planned further substantial curtailment of output in an effort to prop low prices, were estimated to have taken 80,000,000 yards or more of cotton goods during the week.

Foreign interests were also on the buying side. Contracts were supplied by New Orleans dealers and spot interests making hedge placements.

Reports in the trade indicated a fair volume of the staple was being redeemed from loan stocks at the present Southern basis price.

Exports today, 3579 bales; season so far, 3,317,375. Port receipts, 1320; port stocks, 1,984,884.

MADISON BRIDGE DEAL STOCK, BOND PRICES DISCLOSED

Prices to be paid for the common stock of the Kingshighway Bridge Co., owner of the Chain of Rocks highway toll bridge, and to be asked for the revenue bonds of the village of Madison, Ill., which is taking over ownership of the structure, were disclosed last week.

For the 26,280 shares of common stock, $27 a share will be paid. As was told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday, promoters of the sale predicted that the price would be $27 to $29. The $27 figure was announced in a letter to stockholders from H. M. Byllesby Co. of Chicago, until recently owner of 52 per cent of the common stock. Yesterday, J. J. Shinners, vice-president of that concern and a director of the bridge company, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the price might eventually go as high as $30, depending on the outcome of negotiations over Federal income taxes on the deal.

Bonds Offereed at $3 Above Par.

Chicago brokerage houses offered the Madison revenue bonds last week at $103, or $3 above par. These bonds, bearing 4 per cent interest, will be payable solely out of earnings of the bridge, which has been profitable. Madison will receive par. A week ago the promoters were of the opinion the price to investors might be $2 or $2.50 above par. Profits of the promoters were expected to be derived chiefly from a share of the spread between par and sale price, which, at $3, will be $69,000.

Division of the proceeds of the revenue bonds, at par, will be as follows: Retirement of the bridge company's outstanding bonds at the $105 call price, $1,277,325; six months' accrued interest on the bonds, $79,072; retirement of the common stock at $27 a share, $709,560; retirement of the preferred stock at par, $5 a share, $22,280; set aside for bridge improvements, $29,000; available for expenses of the sale and liquidation of the company, $182,763.

Certain additional money will be available for the expenses, for a total which may approximate as much as $300,000. Any increase in the price to be paid for the common stock over $27 would be drawn from this fund.

Bonds of Parent Company.

A substantial contribution to the fund will come from bonds of the parent company held by a wholly owned subsidiary, the Riverview Corporation. At the call price, these will bring $59,325. The Riverview Corporation, Shinners said, was formed primarily to hold excess land not required for the bridge approaches. However, it has been used as a means of buying up some of the parent concern's bonds for retirement, at a profit accruing to the bridge company. The last annual statement, as of March 31, showed an investment of $19,720 by the subsidiary in bonds with par value of $56,500. Only two or three blocks of bonds were bought up by the subsidiary, said Shinners.

Other contributions to the expense fund would come from whatever cash balances the parent and subsidiary corporations may have. On the basis of the last annual statements, these will be comparatively small, but some additional income has accrued in the two months following the date of the statements.

Tax and Other Expenses.

From authoritative sources the Post-Dispatch learned yesterday that Federal income taxes on the sale were expected to exceed $100,000. Negotiations over the amount of the taxes have been going on for four months and are not concluded. Other expenses, it was added, would include the following, for an undisclosed total: Engineers' fees, cost of a 30-day traffic survey, certain tax refunds due from the company on outstanding bonds, auditors' fees, including the cost of the income tax controversy; fees for attorneys at Chicago, Washingtotn, Edwardsville and St. Louis and bond counsel at New York; printing the revenue bonds, and their certification by the trustee and his first annual fee; other printing and legal advertising, escrow fees, charges of a Chicago bank for holding the bond proceeds, traveling and other expenses in the deal, and miscellaneous costs of the corporate liquidation.

For holders of common stock not immediately accepting the invitation to turn in their shares, payment will be held in escrow. A spokesman for the promoters said to the reporter that any surplus left after payment of expenses would be distributed among common stockholders on a pro rata basis, but asserted that a deficiency was more likely than a surplus.

Final Steps Possibly This Week.

Final steps in transferring title to the village of Madison may be taken this week. A conference on details will be held in New York with bond counsel tomorrow. It was said at Chicago, where the arrangements have been made, that nothing was left which could interfere with the deal.

In response to inquiry, Shinners said that the Byllesby company, one of the original promoters of the bridge, which was opened in 1929 and later went through foreclosure, was not hopeful of coming out of the venture with any net profit. His company sold its common stock in the bridge to the Sarjem Corporation of Chicago, which handled the promotion, on condition that the same price would be paid all other holders. The Byllesby letter to stockholders said that the Byllesby company had no financial interest in the Sarjem Corporation. It announced that officers and directors of the Kingshighway Bridge Co. would resign on consummation of the sale.

Operating revenue of the bridge company for the last fiscal year, it was shown in the annual report, issued last week, was $216,935, compared with $221,015 for the preceding year, while operating expenses were $122,914, compared with $126,529 the year before. During the last year the company completed paying up arrears of the 6½ per cent interest on its income bonds and retired $68,000, face value, of the bonds. Cash tolls showed a slight decrease, but ticket tolls increased, indicating a growth of regular customers.

dustries in interstate commerce, was killed by a House committee, as was also a bill extending factory inspection to industries in towns of less than 3000 population.

Needed revision of the food and drug laws was ignored.

The proposed marriage health bill was killed.

No steps were taken to amend the Constitution to bring about consolidation of counties, and save rural taxpayers large amounts of money in the cost of operation of their local governments.

Criminal code reform was ignored.

Although this may appear a sorry and sordid record, there are a few entries on the other side of the ledger. The General Assembly did accomplish some things, a few for the general benefit of the State and many of purely local interest to particular communities. Legislators are elected in their home districts and for all time have given more attention to the local demands than to the State government, whose influence on the local citizen's affairs is more remote.

Some Things Accomplished.

The regular decennial revision of the statutes has been carried out in a more efficient manner than ever in the State's history. The Revision Commission's work was under the direction of Senator Phil M. Donnelly of Lebanon and was done expeditiously.

The old age pension laws were revised to put the granting of pensions on the basis of need, but this was done only under the strongest pressure from the National Social Security Board, which threatened to withdraw Federal aid from the State unless the bars were put up against pension raids by politicians and the undeserving with political influence.

There was a tightening of the liquor enforcement laws to bring about more effective prosecution of violators.

A Housing Authority for St. Louis was authorized, but the Legislature defeated the proposal for a Housing law applicable to the entire State.

Provision was made for setting up machinery for State co-operation in the creation of the proposed Mississippi River parkway.

Payment of State income taxes in four installments was authorized, relieving taxpayers of the requirement, in many cases burdensome, of paying the full tax at one time.

One of the earliest acts passed increased the legal interest rate which State-chartered small loan companies could charge on loans of less than $100. This was enacted under pressure from a powerful lobby which had pledged a majority of the legislators for it even before the session convened.

Measures on Calendar.

Not a great amount of work remains to be done before adjournment. The Governor's Kansas City police bill, taking control of the Police Department there out of the hands of the machine politicians, the main weapon in his anti-crime campaign, is expected to come to a vote Tuesday. Although it undoubtedly will be fought vigorously by Senator M. E. Casey, Pendergast Senator from Kansas City, its passage is considered certain.

Other principal bills on the calendar are:

Extension for two years of the sales tax law, which will expire Dec. 31.

Licensing and regulation of trucks using the State highways.

Completion of work on the appropriation bills.

There are many others of minor importance.

The expected State revenues will be over-appropriated by from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000, the amount being in dispute and dependent upon whose estimate of anticipated revenue is taken in the calculation. It will be the Governor's job to pare the appropriation bills to bri them within the revenue estimates. When the General Assembly adjourns it will have accomplished little. It probably will be back in session within four or five months with the job of finding funds for direct relief and thus meeting then the issue it evaded in the regular session.

LOOKS COUNT But You Want a STURDY FRAME Too!

Short-lived as they are, even in automobiles, you demand a sturdy frame. How much more, then, should you demand a stable, rigid frame in your home—an investment you make once in a lifetime.

But permanent stability is impossible if your home is built with green lumber. Shrinkage, which takes place after construction, causes plaster cracks, uneven floors, open joints and sticking windows.

Sure, when you're considering a new home, insist that its style and outward appearance please you. But look under the surface, too. Demand permanently rigid construction. A sturdy frame. Specify Goodfellow pre-shrunk stabilized lumber. Resent a substitute.

APARTMENTS IN CITY AND COUNTY ARE ACQUIRED

Negotiations were concluded last week for the purchase of several large apartment buildings in both the city and county, with deals scheduled to be closed following the examination of titles.

The three-story structure at 7507 Buckingham drive, Moorlands Addition, Clayton, has been acquired by interests represented by the Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Co. It was owned by Harry D. Semonim, who purchased it in 1938 from the Shenandoah Realty Co., a holding corporation, of Jesse P. Henry, insurance broker. It was previously owned by the Farm Home Savings & Loan Association, which had acquired it through a loan.

Of reinforced concrete construction, with hardwood floors laid over concrete, the building is one of the most substantial of its type in Moorlands Addition. It has six seven-room apartments, each with two baths finished in marble and tile. There is a six-car basement garage, with side entrance.

Bought as Investment.

A large amount was expended by the seller in the present transaction in remodeling and altering the building. The price paid was not disclosed. The purchase was made as an investment.

This is the second apartment recently purchased in Moorlands Addition. The other was a 12-unit semi-fireproof structure at 7530-32

Urban Mortgages of This Type Executed in First Four Months Totaled $1,087,822,000.

Home mortgages totaling 396,158 and amounting to $1,087,822,000 were recorded in American cities and towns during the first four months of 1939, the Division of Research and Statistics of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported yesterday.

Savings, building and loan association accounted for 30 per cent of the dollar volume. Banks and trust companies were second with 25 per cent and individuals third with 19 per cent. Insurance companies had about 9 per cent of the recordings, mutual savings banks about 3 per cent, and the group of miscellaneous other mortgages had about 14 yer cent.

April Gain Registered.

A gain of about 3 per cent from March to April was registered by savings and loan associations and the same amount for mutual savings banks. Banks and trust companies dropped about 8 per cent from March to April.

Savings and loan associations also showed a substantial increase in April commitments for mortgage loans. They made new home mortgage loans valued at $83,425,000, an increase of 13.7 per cent over March and a rise of 13.8 per cent over April, 1938. In the first four months, such new mortgage loans totaled $270,679,000, 13.9 per cent over the aggregate of $237,720,000 in the same period of 1938.

New Dwelling Units.

New family dwelling units constructed or projected in all cities of 10,000 population or more in the United States during the first four months numbered 87,202 and were valued at $309,597,100 as compared with 65,581 units aggregating $228,187,300 in the same period of 1938. April units built or projected were listed as 21,442 as compared with 14,779 in April, 1938. The board's statistical experts arrived at these figures after checking the building permits reported to the United States Department of Labor.

Building material prices stood at an index of 89.6 in April, a decline of 0.2 per cent from March and 1.8 per cent from April, 1938.

REAL ESTATE BOND PRICE AVERAGES HIGHER IN MAY

The Amott-Baker Realty Bond Price Averages for the month of May indicate rising prices in all cities except Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Of the 200 issues, 83 increased in price during the month, 60 remained unchanged, while 57 closed at lower levels. In April only 34 increased in price and 112 declined.

New York issues rose 6 per cent, but they are still 4.7 per cent below the 1938 close. Up 2.4 per cent, Buffalo showed the best increase. Boston increased .5 per cent, Philadelphia declined .7 per cent and Pittsburgh dropped 1.3 per cent.

By type of building, apartment hotels led during May with an increase of 3.5 per cent. Hotels and office buildings were each down .3 per cent and apartment buildings were unchanged. Theaters rose 2.1 per cent, the increase for the first five months also being 2.1 per cent. Only apartments and theaters are higher at the present time than they were at the end of 1938, the increase being 1.0 per cent and 2.1 per cent respectively. Surprising as it may seem hotels are 2 per cent lower at the present time than they were on Dec. 31, 1938 in spite of all the activity due to the New York World's Fair. —Amott-Baker.

LENT $83,425,000 FOR HOMES DURING APRIL

Building and Loan Associations Report Largest Volume of Loans Since June, 1937.

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP).—Loans advanced to home builders, buyers and owners in April by savings, building and loan associations totaled $83,425,000, the largest volume for any month since June, 1937, the United States Building & Loan League reported today.

Construction loans during the month by these institutions reached $23,727,000, making April the peak month in this activity since before the depression.

Total loans during April represented a gain of 13.6 per cent over March and 13.8 per cent over April a year ago.

Loans for purchase of existing homes totaled $29,903,000 and were the largest for any month since September, 1937, the league said. Modernization and repair loans totaled $4,974,000.

Refinancing loans, which predominated as late as three years ago, the league said, last month dropped to 18.44 per cent of the total volume, amounting to $15,384,000, and indicated further recovery in the real estate field.

Clarence T. Rice, Kansas City, Kan., president of the league, said increasing percentages of the lending are being done in the populous Atlantic seaboard states and the Middle West. The Cincinnati and Winston-Salem Federal Home Loan Bank districts accounted for 28.3 per cent of all the country's savings and loan lending in April. The Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago districts last month all were ahead of the Los Angeles district, which held third place for the two months previous. In construction financing, however, Los Angeles had the second largest dollar volume.

QUARTERS IN DOWNTOWN BUILDING ARE LEASED

Max Pollack & Co. Inc., manufacturer of cotton threads for industrial use, has taken a long-term lease on 8000 square feet on the second floor of the Drew Building at the southeast corner of Twelfth and St. Charles street. It has occupied quarters at 1206 Washington avenue for many years.

ATTORENY BUYS RESIDENCE AT 4719 WESTMINSTER PLACE

Lon Hocker Jr., attorney, has purchased the residence at 4719 Westminster place, from the Jane Goss Bray estate. There are three bedrooms and bath on the second floor and two rooms with bath on the third floor. There are the usual first floor quarters. The garage is in the rear of the premises. A. T. & Whitelaw Terry, realtors, made the sale.

PENNSYLVANIA LABOR BILL VETO IS URGED

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urged Gov. James of Pennsylvania in a telegram today to veto the labor bill just passed by the State Legislature.

He condemned the legislation as a vicious anti-labor measure and said it was "inconceivable that the great State of Pennsylvania should subscribe to a labor philosophy which harks back to the days of slavery." He said that in several respects the bill nullified the fundamental guarantees contained in the original State Labor Relations Act and seriously impaired the "rights of workers in self-organization and collective bargaining."

Green made public the following analysis he made of the measure:

"Section 6, Paragraph 2, of the bill provides for 'employee' unfair labor practices. All such practices are now covered by the general laws of Pennsylvania. To include them in the State Labor Relations Act is to destroy the equality of bargaining power between employer and employe which the original act established.

"Section 7 (C) amends the present law so as to provide for mandatory petitions and mandatory certifications by employers. This will permit employers to foster company unions and demand certification when legitimate labor organization has just started, thereby thwarting the efforts of organized labor to lawfully unionize employes.

Certification Required.

"The same section requires that representatives be certified for as long a term as is provided in a contract. Thus, an employer can make a contract with a company union for 10 years, and certification must be had for that same period. This, too, will have the effect of thwarting legitimate labor organization.

"Section 7 (D) accords the employer the right of appeal in representation cases. Since the employer has the right of appeal in complaint cases he is accorded full protection. The amendment will only serve to harass and annoy legitimate labor organizations which have been certified by subjecting them to unnecessary court proceedings.

"Section 8 (C) is a limitation on the right of the board to order reinstatement of employes when employers have engaged in unfair labor practices. It also permits the court to exercise independent discretion over the orders of the board in respect to reinstatements and to reserve such orders if in the independent opinion of the court it differs with the views of the board on questions of fact.

Must Hire Own Lawyers.

"Section 8 (F) requires labor unions to engage their own lawyers in the prosecution of charges and complaints against employers unless a Deputy Attorney-General is assigned to prosecute the case. This will entail considerable difficulties and expense for labor unions which are the victims of unfair labor practices of employers.

"Section 9 (D) virtually nullifies the Pennsylvania State Norris-LaGuardia Act passed in 1937, limiting the jurisdiction of courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes. The amendment takes away from labor the protection of this act in those disputes which come under the Labor Relations Act. This is a disastrous provision in that it will bring back 'government by injunction,' and labor unions will be subjected to numerous court injunctions, thus reviving the evil which the 1937 act was passed to overcome.

"Benefits Destroyed."

"Section 9 (E) destroys completely all benefits of the State Labor Relations Act. By this provision petitions or charges which relate to acts occurring more than six weeks prior to the filing of a petition or charge must be automatically dismissed. Labor unions frequently cannot discover unfair labor practices on the part of employers within so short a period of six weeks. This provision is designed to destroy any possible benefit which labor might derive from any other provision in the act.

"The foregoing section is supplemented with Section 10 (1) which declares a forfeiture of all rights of employes who have been found to have participated in alleged unfair labor practices. Thus an employer can perpetrate outrages upon employes, and the employes will be denied all rights whatsoever if they have in any minor manner committed an employe unfair labor practice."

BRANCH RICKEY TAKES SHOT AT KANSAS CITY

MONETT, Mo., June 3 (AP).—Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball club and an active Republican worker, addressed to residents of Kansas City today the observation: "If you had preferred a dangerous freedom to a peaceful servitude, a certain citadel in Kansas would have been decorated much sooner."

Rickey, speaking at a convention banquet of the Missouri Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, steered generally clear of the feud between Gov. Stark and the Kansas City Pendergast Democratic organization except for this remark, a reference to the recent sentencing of Tom Pendergast to Leavenworth Federal prison.

Rickey said that "democracy is greater than party," and that Americans should work for the good of the nation regardless of party affiliation.

He charged the New Deal had "forgotten" the Constitution and said: "I want the Republican party to be always a constitutional party."

Regarding the international situation, he said: "It is a dangerous thing now for us to be involved in European affairs and completely unmindful of domestic affairs."

Earlier, Barak T. Mattingly, State Republican chairman, said Republican legislators pushed the Kansas City police bill through the State House of Representatives and "their influence will vitally affect its passage in the Senate."

Mattingly said crime in Kansas City was a statewide problem because "the evil reflected from the alliance of politics and crime in Kansas City is reflected throughout the nation as from Missouri."

Wealthy California Mining Man Once Connected With U. S. Steel Corporation.

PASADENA, Cal., June 3 (AP).—Thomas F. Cole, 77 years old, wealthy mining and steel man, was found shot to death in the garden of his estate today. A police officer said Cole had been in ill health four years and apparently had taken his own life.

Cole was president of the Oliver Iron Mining Co. from 1901 to 1909, in charge of mining operations of the United States Steel Corporation.

In 1928 he was associated with Charles V. Bob of New York in organizing the Nevada Property Gold Mines at Tonopah with a capitalization of $6,000,000. A year ago he and his son, Fred, successfully pressed a $1,163,000 damage suit against the Manufacturers' Trust Co. of New York in courts here and in New York.

TWO KILLED, 9 HURT WHEN TEXAS TRAIN JUMPS TRACK

RANGER, Tex., June 3 (AP).—Two persons were killed and nine injured, most of them slightly, by the derailment today of a Texas & Pacific passenger train carrying 25 passengers.

Engineer L. M. Mann, 65 years old, and Fireman Ernest Preston, 45, were killed.

Six persons were treated at hospitals here and three others at the scene of the accident near here, approximately 80 miles southwest of Fort Worth. Four of the injured were women.

Cause of the wreck was not determined.

No Scrambled Words In New Weather Code

Numbers Now Used to Send Data to Stations, and Reports Are More Complete and Cheaper.

"Retrospect medbury guerrillas russet lulla cursing command."

To a Weather Bureau man those words mean that in Galveston, Tex., the temperature is 78, the wind is from the south, dewpoint is 70 and there has been no precipitation in the last 12 hours. Starting July 1, however, things are going to be different.

Walter J. Moxom, head of the St. Louis office, who explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter the new system which is going into effect, said he and most of his staff had had headaches for several days trying to memorize the figures that are to take the place of the word code used for nearly 50 years.

"The new system's a dandy," he said, "and if you'll just sit down for a week or so I'll explain it to you. You see, we have been getting our reports by wire from the various stations in a sort of code—a bunch of words grouped together—from which we picture the conditions, make our maps and give the forecasts.

The Old and the New.

He picked up a sheet of paper and said, "These words now on Galveston, they're all right as far as they go, but they don't go far enough. What the boys have been after is something you can look at and then say. It's raining in Galveston, not raining hard but just sort of drizzling, and the sky is slightly less than two-thirds overcast. Break it down, see?

"Now here's the new system."

He picked up another sheet of paper and said, "Over at Atlantic City the situation looks like this, '40743 20681 09160' and about five more groups like that. The 407 means Atlantic City, the next number is the cloud condition and the last one of the first group is the visibility. All the rest string out into a really thorough analysis.

"The reports are going to come in on teletypes every six hours instead of twice a day as before. And another important departure—the information used in map making is going to be collected and sent out at airport sub-stations in all the big cities instead of at the main bureaus. We'll continue taking observations for our records, of course, and for newspapers and radio.

More Complete and Cheaper.

"The big idea of this system is completeness and economy. It's a money-saver and it's going to make accurate detailed weather information from all over the continent available to the public, though in just what form we don't know yet. It's the last word and it's going to be international. However, I expect in Europe they're mainly interested in whether it's good fighting weather."

Moxom said weather bureau men are still working on the "long-range forecast." They have now perfected balloons equipped with radios that go up and broadcast conditions at different levels. The only drawback is that they lose the balloons and radios, but it is believed that both prices and balloons will fall rapidly as production increases.

BROTHERS CONFESS LOOTING MORE THAN 27 RESIDENCES

Youths Point Out That Many in West End; Police Recover $2000 in Loot They Pawned.

Two brothers, Edwin Dailey 21 years old, of 4432 Vista avenue, and Wilbert, 15, told detectives at the Page Boulevard station yesterday, police reported, they had committed more burglaries in the last few weeks than they could recall. The brothers pointed out 27 residences in the West End and on the South Side as among those they had entered.

Police recovered jewelry valued at $2000 from 10 pawnshops to which they were directed by the brothers. They also found a sack containing more jewelry behind a billboard in the 5000 block of Manchester avenue. Police will accompany the boys on a tour of the County in an effort to find other places which the two say they entered.

The brothers, who were picked up on suspicion at the corner of Hamilton and Easton avenues Thursday night, said they had made it a practice to enter homes while the occupants were away and to take only jewelry and cash. They were unable to say how much money they had obtained, but declared they had spent all of it on girls.

SEATTLE, June 3 (AP). — Indians fled today from the Village of Perryville, Alaska, frightened by the continued eruptions of nearby Mount Veniaminof.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Johnson, only white residents of the isolated community, wirelessed that a cannery tender had taken the last of the Perryville Indians to fishing camps. The mountain spouted fire and smoke again today, after a temporary lull. It became active May 23.

DYNAMITING ATTEMPT LINKED TO EXPULSION OF STUDENT

Ohio Parents and Boy Held; Explosive Found Under Superintendent's Home.

WOOSTER, O., June 3 (AP).—An attempt to dynamite the home of Smithville's Superintendent of Schools has been traced to parents disgruntled by their son's expulsion from high school, Sheriff Ed Mills said today.

Sixteen unexploded sticks of dynamite were found under the home of Supt. E. A. Hotchkiss April 24. A long fuse had misfired.

The Sheriff announced the detention in jail of Colley Peterman, 46 years old; his wife, Blanche, and their son, William, 18, all of Smithville. He said charges would be filed later.

1500 ATTEND STUDENT RALLY ON DEMOCRACY

Letter From Roosevelt Read at High School Assembly in Auditorium.

A rally of 1500 high school students, who met to express their faith in the democratic form of government, was held yesterday at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House. Suggested last year by Dr. Henry J. Gerling, superintendent of instruction in the public schools, the rally was the climax of a program which included school assemblies on democracy, programs for parents, essay and poetry contests and radio sketches.

In a letter to the assembly, President Roosevelt wrote: "Our youth must be recruited for the service of democracy if the free institutions which have insured our happiness as a nation are to be perpetuated and transmitted to those who are to follow us. I trust that the celebration will inspire all who participate with a new sense of civic pride and civic responsibility."

Chorus of 1250 Sings.

The all-city high school chorus of 1250 voices and the all-city high school band with 85 members had major parts in the program, closing the rally with a vigorous presentation of Irving Berlin's "God Bless America," a song popularized on the radio by Kate Smith.

A dramatic sketch of pre-Revolutionary days was enacted, after a daughter, played by Miss Rose Glazer of Central High School, asked her mother, portrayed by Miss Betty Fisher of Roosevelt High, what she should write about in the democracy essay contest.

Dr. Gerling told the students: "History has laid upon your generation the sacred and most difficult duty of defending and preserving democracy at a most crucial period when humanity is divided against itself in bitter strife and when freedom and justice are threatened on every side.

"In a sea of hatred, persecution and war, the United States is today an island of peace and liberty. You can preserve that peace and liberty only if your enthusiasm is coupled with a knowledge of the experience and wisdom of the fathers of democracy.

"It is my hope that the year 1940 will see a congress of youth of the neighboring states and others convened in St. Louis for the purpose of formulating a young citizens' constitution for a permanent young citizens' organization. It is my hope that this organization will make of democracy a living force and make not one Young Citizens' day a year but 365."

Henry W. Kiel Speaks.

Henry W. Kiel, chairman of the assembly, asserted: "Never in our history were the youth of our country confronted with more confusing and misleading information than today. That is why I welcomed this plan which is to lead our youth back to the sources and ideals of democracy so that they might march forward and carry the Star-Spangled Banner into the future.

"With this assembly the work is not completed, and in the name of the older citizens interested in your work, I hereby extend an invitation to the Young Citizens' Boards, old and new, to their sponsors and to all those who made Young Citizens' day a reality to a pilgrimage to the tomb of Abraham Lincoln. Let us there rededicate ourselves to the ideals of democracy."

He introduced Clarence Bockhort of Cleveland High School, president of the Young Citizens' Senate, an assembly of high school representatives, who thanked sponsors of the program.

Winners of Trophies.

Edward A. Ferrenbach, member of the Board of Education, presented Post-Dispatch trophies to winners of essay and poetry contests on democracy. Winners were: John E. Hayes, 5972 Kennerly avenue, Blewett High School, best essay by a boy, "My Idea of Liberty"; Mary Alice Roche, 5112A Thekla avenue, Rosati-Kain High, best poem by a girl, "If Freedom Dies"; Bessie Louise Ward, 2711 Sheridan avenue, Vashon High, best essay by a girl, "The America I want," and Maurice L. Bernsen, 3636 St. Mary's lane, Normandy, McBride High, best poem by a boy, "The Freedom I Crave."

The principal trophy, bearing the names and schools of the winners, will be placed on display with the Missouri Historical Society collection in Jefferson Memorial.

ELLWOOD COOKE NOT TO DEFEND HIS TITLE HERE

Frank Parker, the boy who clinched America's victory over England for the Davis Cup in the challenge round of 1937, will compete in the third annual Triple A Open tennis tournament here June 12.

Carl W. Burst, president of the Triple A Club, said last night Parker would come here, possibly with several other ranking stars, from the Heart of America tournament at Kansas City this week.

Parker, former student of the nationally-known professional, Mercer Beasley, scored the United States team's third victory in the 1937 Davis Cup challenge round when he defeated Charles Hare of England. He had previously lost to Bunny Austin, while Don Budge and the doubles team had gained triumphs to make the score 2 to 1.

Parker married Beasley's wife following their divorce last year. He played in several tournaments last season and was eighth in the national rankings. He has been working in California and has played in no important events this year.

Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., Triple A Open winner last year, will not defend his championship as he is on the way, with Bobby Riggs, to compete in the English tournament at Wimbledon.

Parker In Kansas City Event.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 3 (AP).—Gene Mako, the nation's No. 2 tennis player, was seeded No. 1 today in the Heart of America invitational meet which gets underway here Monday. Wayne Sabin, also of Los Angeles, was placed in the No. 2 spot.

Honor the Deserving.

EDWARD K. LOVE, Missouri's Number 1 Conservationist will be honored at a dinner Tuesday evening, June 6, at 7 o'clock. The celebration, sponsored by the sportsmen of St. Louis and vicinity, will have as its principal speaker the nationally famous cartoonist, conservationist and conversationist, Ding Darling.

There is no need to refresh the memories of those interested in the outdoors of Missouri of Mr. Love's record. One of the key-men in the planning of the famous Amendment Four which took the game and fish management out of the hands of politics, he capped a most worthy and unselfish work with a donation of one hundred thousand dollars to be used in furthering conservation in Missouri, the State whose resources he has known so intimately for half a century.

Fishing in Missouri.

First-week fishermen had at least average good luck as they waded Missouri waters. From all reports the catches were neither unusually heavy nor disappointingly light.

Probably the most popular fishing waters were the many arms of the Lake of the Ozarks and the lake proper. Although the lake is not quite up to the full stage, lacking about nine inches, fishing was good and most parties landed creels of bass, crappie and channel catfish. As usual, when the lake is low, the many arms gave up better catches.

The Meramec was well fished by the thousands who ushered in the season Decoration day. Likewise, the Huzzah, Dry Creek and other smaller streams.

Word from Springfield is that Lake Taneycomo, the Elk and White Rivers and other waters of the Southwestern part of the State are in good fishing condition.

Fishermen may invade all of Illinois in quest of game fish June 16. The State, divided into three zones, already is open in the southern zone, which extends eastward from the northern boundary of Madison County. This zone included Horseshoe Lake in Alexander County.

There is a daily limit of 10 and a possession limit of 20 in the aggregate of small mouth, large mouth black bass, Kentucky bass, white bass or yellow bass. Length limits are: for the Kentucky and black bass, 10 inches; white bass, eight inches yellow bass, six inches. Trout and all other game fish are to be taken from Illinois waters as per the dates mentioned.

Storage Vault for Worms.

For the past five years conservation groups, fly-tying houses and advocates of artificial baits have been pushing forward a program designed to increase the number of anglers using plugs, spinners and flies. Nevertheless, there will always be the old dyed-in-the-wool worm fisherman who prefers this bait to any other lure. Quite often, its attractiveness to game fish is attested by the day's catch.

J. A. Menard of Bonne Terre, Mo., is just such a fisherman and past experience has taught him that if he is to have the worms most attractive to the fish in August and September it means work right now. He states:

"I am one of those who believes in using plugs, minnows, dough balls or flies, whatever it is that gets me my limit of fish. Every year there comes a time, in fact, about every trip, when I feel like trying a nice big worm. My trouble is that I just don't seem to be able to keep worms in good condition through the hot months. What is the best way to keep them tough and full of fight?"

One of the best ways of keeping a large supply of worms in first class condition so they will snap back at the bass is to construct a box. It should be of at least one inch lumber, about six by four by three foot depth. Paint the inside with pitch or cover with several layers of gunny sack. Sink all but about four inches of the box in the ground in some shady spot. Fill to within eight inches of the top with leaf mould and good rich soil. Do not use sandy soil.

About once a week sprinkle some coffee grounds, powdered milk, or cornmeal lightly over the surface. During real hot weather sprinkle with a little water, being careful not to use enough to allow it to seep to the bottom or it will sour the soil and the worms will die within 48 hours. During the hottest days place a couple of sacks over the top to keep out some of the heat. This box should take care of at least a thousand worms and will keep most of them through the entire summer.

Ten Per Cent for Fishermen.

Carl D. Shoemaker indicates that the National Wildlife Federation of which he is secretary, is behind proposed legislation that should materially aid fishing in the United States. His organization sponsored the Pittman-Robertson bill, earmarking the 10 per cent excise tax derived from arms and ammunition for use in wildlife restoration, a reality.

Another plan being formulated would earmark the 10 per cent excise tax, derived from the sale of fishing tackle, to be spent in the creation of fish hatcheries and fish restoration.

The proposed bill will be patterned after the Pittman-Robertson bill and probably will be ready to be presented to Congress next fall. At present nothing is allowed for fish restoration. It is limited in its benefits to four-footed game, upland birds and waterfowl.

All sportsmen are being urged to join the National Wildlife Federation. There are no annual dues. The address is Carl Shoemaker, 409 Normandy Building, Washington, D. C.

The Firing Line.

One of the best shooting tournaments to be held in the St. Louis area since the 1936 National Skeet Championships will start Friday at Creve Coeur (Mo.) The best men and women trapshooters of the Middlewest will gather for the three-day Missouri State shoot. Sponsored by the Federation of Missouri Trapshooters, of which O. E. Grecian is president, the events are primarily for residents of Missouri, but plenty of competition is available to any shooter regardless of his place of residence.

Friday will feature the Missouri doubles championship, while the singles title will be decided Saturday with classes for men, women, juniors (for boys under 18 years of age), neophytes (those who have not shot at registered targets before 1939) and veterans (open to shooters 65 years of age or over). Sunday will see the crowning of the team champions, the zone team champions, the non-resident team race and the Missouri handicaps.

Coming Shoots.

Arnold MacGreggor of Potosi, Mo., dropped us a card this week asking for dates of trap and skeet shooting events within driving distance of here. The following are all the events for which we have dates and which we consider within driving distance of St. Louis: June 9-11, Missouri State shoot, Creve Coeur, St. Louis County, Mo.; June 18, Illinois Skeet Shooting Association shoot, Lacon Gun Club field, Lacon, Ill., and the Oklahoma State two-man team championships, Southern Hills Country Club, Tulsa, Ok.; June 23-25, Kansas State shoot, Union Pacific Gun Club, Kansas City, Kan.

Notre Dame Field House Dedicated to Rockne's Memory

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 3 (AP).—The dream of his lifetime came true in death today for the late Knute K. Rockne as Notre Dame's new memorial fieldhouse was dedicated to his memory.

The former Notre Dame athletic director and football coach was killed in an airplane crash in 1931. For years he had hoped to see the culmination of his university's athletic program which today's ceremonies marked.

Highlighting Notre Dame's ninety-fifth annual commencement, the dedicatory addresses in memory of "Rock" were made from a platform in front of the fieldhouse.

His football and track teammates of yesteryear sat together, recalling the "Rock" of cinder path and gridiron. His widow and their two sons sat together on the platform, looking on with poignant memories of "Rock," the husband and father. Old grads who were his mates in the silver jubilee class of 1914 were in the audience.

A flag-draped color photograph of the former coach topped the platform, which was flanked by the university band and the university choir.

Monseigneur William Murphy, 83, of Sandusky, O., who married the Rocknes, paid his first visit to Notre Dame. The Rev. Michael Shea, author of the "Notre Dame Victory March" which spurred many a Rockne team to victory, came from Ossining, N. Y.

Speakers included Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune sports editor, master of ceremonies; the Rev. John F. O'Hara, Notre Dame president; Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner; Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, University of Detroit Athletic Director; Frank E. Hering, first Notre Dame coach and now a university trustee; Elmer E. Layden, present athletic director, and Capt. William Wood, of West Point, Army football coach.

The $600,000 building is an 182-by-210-foot gothic structure and was designed to provide for inter-hall athletics—an activity in which Rockne always was intensely interested.

Nineteen men have entered the 440-yard dash in the annual Ozark A. A. U. track and field championships to be held next Sunday at the Crystal City High School field. Five of the 440 runners frequently have run the distance in less than 50 seconds.

Heading the list is the Carbondale teacher, Charles Strusz, who in four years of college competition lost only five of his 53 races. One of his conquerors, Clinton Allison of Crystal City, now running for Cape Girardeau, also has entered.

Strusz four years ago pushed Steve Gallauer to the present record of 50.4 over the Maplewood track. At that time both boys were running for the St. Louis Relay Association. Strusz was a soldier at Jefferson Barracks, while Gallauer was a steel worker in Granite City (Ill.). Strusz's best time over the quarter is 48.7 and 16 times he ran the distance in better than 49 flat.

Ray Alsbury, Butler, and William Lewis, freshmen at the University of Illinois, are two others who have done better than 50 flat in races this year. Although Charles Malloy, captain of the St. Louis University team, has not run the quarter this year, he plans on going the distance next Sunday and has broken 50 seconds several times since entering college.

The deadline for entries is Monday at midnight. They may be filed either at the A. A. U. office, Hotel De Soto, St. Louis, or with Harry Weier, Festus, Mo.

BIEN BROTHERS TO PLAY FOR EAST SIDE TENNIS MEET TITLE

The Belleville brothers, Darvin and Cal Bien, will meet for the singles championship of the Southwestern Illinois High School Conference tennis tournament this afternoon at Belleville.

They reached the final in the tourney yesterday at East St. Louis, Darvin defeating Simpson of Alton, 6-2, 6-4, and Cal turning back Long of Granite City, 6-0, 6-1, in the semifinals.

Norman Paul and Kenney Bloomer, Collinsville, captured the doubles title by winning from Bill Libby and Harris of Granite City, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, in the final.

The team championship which Granite City unsuccessfully defended went to Belleville, which counted 15 points. Collinsville scored 14, Granite City 13, Alton 12, East St. Louis 10 and Edwardsville 9.

People's Friend

His Majesty Meets Alberta's Messiah

By Inez Robb

EDMONTON, Alberta, June 3.

AT long last, in his tour of Canada, His Majesty has met the peepul's friend. In the rotund person of W. C. Aberhart, Premier of the prairie province of Alberta, George VI came face to face with the Messiah of social credit, that new economic order which is burning up the prairies and the opposing politicians. For the first time in his long trek across the Dominion, the King discovered in His Majesty's Government (the majority in any British legislative body) a strange breed of cats who combine a dash of Roosevelt, a good helping of Townsend, a pinch of Father Divine and more than a suggestion of Father Coughlin.

"BIBLE BILL" ABERHART

But by gad, sir, the social credit boys, even without the $25 monthly payment they once promised all citizens of Alberta, put on a good show. "Bible Bill" Aberhart, the peepul's friend, buttoned his rotundity into a frock coat, slapped a silk topper on his glistening dome and bowed from the waist, or what approximated that mythical line in the Aberhart spherical form.

But even the peepul's friend had to bow to political necessity. When a little girl stepped forth on the steps of the Dominion Parliamentary buildings to present the inevitable bouquet to her Queen, that little girl was not Premier "Bible Bill" Aberhart's own granddaughter, Beverley Kaye MacNutt, 9, of Vancouver. The tow-headed, freckled-faced little girl in the pink silk dress who handed the roses to the Queen was 9-year-old Marie Stacey, an inmate of the Kiwanis Children's Home of Edmonton.

Until the day before it was planned that Beverley, who came all the way from Vancouver to hand over the bouquet (only one permitted in each city), was to do the job. But there was such a terrific hue and cry about a stranger being rung in to do the job instead of a hometown girl that Bible Bill yielded. He went down to defeat, so the story goes, because Edmonton's World War veterans insisted that an Edmonton child hand over the flowers.

It was noticeable that most members of His Majesty's Government, as they were presented in the legislative chamber, had snaffled themselves into frock coats, too. Alberta may be the last stop before the great swing into the Far North, social credit may be her gospel and Edmonton's streets packed with suntanned, work-worn farmers, but her officials were prepared to do what was expected of them, even unto silk hats.

This city of 85,000 persons boomed during the visit to a population of 200,000 souls. Along a slightly more than two-mile trip on Portage avenue, to be renamed King's Highway, 90,000 persons occupied the unbroken ranks of six-tiered stands erected by the city. School children sat free; adult social creditors paid $1 per for the same privilege.

From time to time, Bible Bill's economic theories have even burned up the Crown, which is another way of saying His Majesty, even though George VI and "Bible Bill" met for the first time here. For in the past, Lieutenant-Governor Bowen, who represents the person of his sovereign in the Province of Alberta, has withheld "the royal assent" from some of Bible Bill's pet economic theories which he has enticed the Alberta Legislature to pass.

Bible Bill, who came to political power through a radio Bible class, has had the same trouble with the Crown that a certain President south of the border has had with the Supreme Court. But during the seven hours that their majesties spent in Edmonton all was according to palace hoyle, or protocol.

His Majesty, His Majesty's representatives and Prime Minister Mackenzie King, with whose Liberal party Aberhart is playing hob in Alberta, minded their P's and Q's no less than "Bible Bill." Neither His Majesty's loyal servants nor the Prime Minister during the brief Edmonton visit betrayed the fact that Aberhart gives them a bad turn at regular intervals.

As for "Bible Bill," he welcomed their majesties in an address at the legislative buildings which was a model for brevity, grace, sincerity, hospitality and good wishes. His Majesty's reply, three short paragraphs in all, may have been brief but it was as suave and gracious as those handed out in other provinces.

Not till 1935 did "Bible Bill," formerly a school teacher, begin the transformation of his radio Bible class into an economics forum. The listeners, who turned into a tremendous following, are the political party today with which he bosses Alberta, harasses liberal and conservative politicians and even controls the Legislature in the Province of Manitoba because his five social credit legislators swing the balance of power in the provincial Parliament.

At the moment, the Liberal party, which is in power in Canada, frowns on Aberhart and social credit, and so does His Majesty's loyal opposition, the Conservatives, and some place along the wayside, Aberhart's dream of a $25 monthly pension got thoroughly lost.

When their majesties left Jasper Park Lodge the royal standards was lowered from the first log cabin over which it has ever flown. Even though the log cabin rents for $125 per day in season, it was, nonetheless, a log cabin.

United Artists -:-

Review of Organization Now Owned by Goldwyn

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, June 3.

NOW that United Artists Studio has become the sole possession of Sam Goldwyn it might be fun to peek over that high, protecting wall. It was formerly owned by Jessie Hampton. But in 1922 Mary Pickford and Doug Fairbanks bought it and in 1928 sold half an interest to Joe Schenck. Not till 1933 did Sam Goldwyn enter the picture, when he purchased Mary and Doug's share, making him a partner with Schenck. But now Sam owns it all, after his recent deal.

MARY PICKFORD

It's roughly estimated that more than $500,000,000 has been spent there on productions. It's the one studio in Hollywood where nothing but "A" pictures have been produced, the average cost being around $1,000,000 a picture.

Some of the screen's greatest lovers have passed there in parade. Once the home of Norma Talmadge, who always started her pictures on Friday, Friday the 13th, if she could find one. Joe Schenck, Norma's husband, never started one until he'd consulted a famous seer in Santa Monica.

In Jack Barrymore's bungalow he kept a trained, caged monkey which he'd taught to scream at the approach of certain other male stars. But Jack went blithely along insulting people in his inimitable way.

Jack's bungalow, together with Mary Pickford's and Norma's, were among the first complete living quarters built at a studio for any star. Jack's was always well stocked with the choicest liquor, which he passed out liberally to assistants, electricians and make-up men.

It was there Doug had his famous steam room, which became known as the International Club, where you could meet Prince or pauper, wrapped in no greater dignity than a cloud of steam.

When radio was in its infancy, the whole United Artist group of stars gathered in Mary's bungalow for a program introducing a new low-priced car. The price paid them was $50,000. Mary, Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Jack Barrymore, Doug and D. W. Griffith made their debut on the air. Few of them faced the ordeal with any bravery.

Jack fortified himself, then recited Shakespeare. Chaplin was so scared he hid in the steam room. Fairbanks sputtered a few words in fright. Norma all but collapsed. The only cool one present was Mary, who got most of the money anyway.

There was quite an argument as to how it should be divided, which ended when Griffith consented to take $5000 rather than prolong the row.

The lovely Julanne Johnston, just out of school, started her career as Doug's leading lady in "The Thief of Bagdad." She's now happily married with a penthouse and a baby in New York.

Herr Lubitsch directed his first American picture there. Charlie Farrell was picked out of the crowd of extras because he was strong enough to lift Mary Pickford with one hand and put her on his shoulder. For that he got enough money to buy a suit with two pair of pants.

And now that United Artists has become the Sam Goldwyn Studio we have "The Real Glory." I'm hoping it will live up to that title and traditions of the old days.

WHAT'S the MATTER With LINDBERGH?

By WILLIAM MOULTON MARSTON

HOW LINDBERGH MIGHT FIND HAPPINESS

DR. WILLIAM MOULTON MARSTON, New York psychologist whose writings appear from time to time in the Post-Dispatch, conducts a psychology clinic in Forum Magazine. He also writes for Your Life Magazine. In this article, Dr. Marston bases his conclusions on personal observation of Col. Lindbergh—he has met and talked with Lindbergh on several occasions—as well as on a careful study of his life.

COL. LINDBERGH.

Dr. Marston lists six points by which he thinks Col. Lindbergh might find happiness. They are:

Recognize the psychological fact that he, like every other human, is getting what he wants; if he didn't want publicity he wouldn't get it.

Recognize the fact that further fame is not worth the price of unhappiness, and begin to cultivate the counter-desire to be obscure.

Find some life-work of humble service to mankind, as for example ordinary biological research. This would serve the double purpose of making him uninteresting to the public and increasingly interesting to himself.

Hire a press agent. A few dull interviews, full of long, scientific words and technicalities would be a far better protection from the press than the entire French police force.

Settle down with his wife and children in a small, quiet community of friends with similar tastes and interests and make it his greatest determination in life to adapt himself socially to these people.

Learn to evaluate himself objectively; realize that his superiority as a flyer is established but that his superiority as a human being can be established only by assiduous efforts to become one.

Psychologist Sees Famous Aviator as Man Unable To Adjust Himself to the Everyday Social Contacts Of Life; Points Out His Driving Personality Traits.

THAT the most popular and universally admired individual in modern times should also be the most frantically seclusive fugitive from his admirers is a paradox which so far has gone unexplained. It arouses public amazement and some indignation. But it remains a puzzle only because the personality traits which enabled Charles Lindbergh to win unparalleled fame have never been clearly pointed out.

The world thinks of him now as an aviation genius who modestly shrinks from praise of his achievements but nevertheless seems to be developing a disagreeable superiority complex as a result of the enormous acclaim he has received.

That diagnosis is psychologically wrong on all three points. First, Lindbergh is not an aeronautical genius. He is an excellent flyer but there are other pilots just as good. And there are aviation experts with more technical knowledge than Lindbergh possesses — he did not even finish his college course in mechanical engineering at the University of Wisconsin.

Second, Lindbergh never shrank from praise or applause or acclaim. His most compelling motive, the personality drive, in fact, which is responsible for his achievements as I shall show presently, is the burning desire to be considered superior by his fellow men.

Third, and most important, Lindbergh does not shun human society because he feels haughty and superior but for quite the opposite reason: his social complex has reached an acute stage where he appears to feel miserably inadequate to meet any stranger and correspondingly resents the necessity.

Charles A. Lindbergh flew too high. He flew far above the level of average, ordinary, workaday living where the imbalance of his typically blond, typically Swedish personality might have adjusted itself satisfactorily.

The reason most people fail to understand Lindbergh and other "great" men who have risen high above the unknown citizen on wings of publicity is simply this: they behold such persons so far up in the human firmament that they forget they are just ordinary folk, like themselves.

Newspaper and magazine writers draw word-pictures of famous individuals like Lindbergh in gigantic proportions. They speak in hushed tones of the Colonel's marvelous this and wonderful that. They glamorize his motives, his behavior, his personality until the resulting character sketch is, to a psychologist, positively fantastic.

NOBODY ever lived who was at all like the publicity-painted Lindbergh. And when the poor man acts like himself instead of behaving as the hero-builders have led the public to expect, millions of myth addicts are deeply disappointed.

Only skilled actors can keep up the false front which has been created for them by their press representatives while they live privately, behind the mask, like the ex-stenographers, ex-necktie salesmen or ex-horse traders they really are.

Charles Lindbergh is not an actor. In fact, it so happens that his personality is one which especially resents being anything but himself on all occasions. So when Lindbergh flew into an heroic stratosphere where keeping up the superman delusion continually became a necessary rule of behavior, he balked at it. He refused to put up an artificial front of good fellowship and geniality. In a word, he failed to adapt to the dual standard of living because he couldn't.

Lindbergh's inability to balance himself at a high level of popularity is sending him, according to recent reports, into an unhappy tailspin. In a frantic endeavor to fly his own course in the rarefied atmosphere he had reached, Lindbergh threw his controls over too violently and plunged down into an abyss of loneliness.

Former Prince Offends Flyer

AS a celebrity, Lindbergh can scarcely avoid accepting social invitations from important people in various parts of the world and these meetings are a great strain on the Colonel. While lunching with the former Crown Prince of Germany the host introduced a photographer who had been brought in to take pictures as souvenirs of the occasion. Lindbergh was furious, said "What are you trying to put over on me?" and left with a glowering face.

In Moscow, as in other cities, Lindbergh was given elaborate police protection. A secret service man was assigned to shadow him wherever he went. Col. Lindbergh spotted this fellow following him, thought him a reporter and, turning suddenly upon him, knocked him down with a blow to the jaw.

During his Egyptian flight the Colonel used the police as dupes to avoid being interviewed. He sent an advance wire to the police at Cairo, "We are coming. Do not inform the press." Two hundred Egyptian policemen were sent to the landing field where they waited 12 hours in vain. Lindbergh, meanwhile, had landed in Alexandria.

Lindbergh is still driven by the same old compulsion to prove himself superior to his fellows, even though the accomplishment of his purpose lifts him to a height where he is miserable.

Consider the life and personality of Charles A. Lindbergh, if you will, just exactly as you would regard the progress of John Jones, the grocery clerk, or Olaf Jensson who runs the corner filling station.

Young Jones may some day become a chain-store magnate and Olaf, who has a good deal of practical skill as a mechanic, may rebuild an old car and become national speed champion. If that happens you will exclaim, "Why, I knew Olaf Jensson! I knew Johnnie Jones! You can't tell me those fellows have any extraordinary ability!" And you may be right. But you must also consider as a fact that Johnnie did make money and Olaf did win the championship. How did they do it? What qualities, what personality traits did these lads possess that enabled them to rise to national prominence? Then ask yourself these same questions about Lindbergh.

Charles Lindbergh, as a boy, was exposed to a strong political tradition in the family—his father was a Congressman during young Charles' most formative years, 5 to 15, and his grandfather, whose name in the old country had been Ola Mansson, was a member of the Swedish Parliament and secretary to the King of Sweden.

Politics means publicity seeking. It means vote getting. This political aura, naturally, had its effect upon the youthful Lindbergh. Charles would have been less than a normal boy if he hadn't felt an urge to win for himself some of the same kind of fame and recognition his father and grandfather had won before him. He managed to stick to books long enough to graduate from Little Falls (Minn.) high school; but when it came to college that seemed too long a road for any fame-seeker. He left his engineering studies to learn practical flying.

Let us determine, then, the precise psychological nature of Lindbergh's personality drive. Certainly it was not along the line of making friends, winning the favor of his superiors by plodding along obediently at his work or cultivating his family connections for all the influence they could give him. Frankly, Lindbergh was no more popular with many of his fellow mechanics and co-workers during his flying apprenticeship than he later became with many reporters and people who contacted him personally after he had won world-wide publicity. Not because Lindbergh was unlikable but because he didn't want to be liked, socially. He was stand-offish. His idea of humor was a practical joke, like balancing a bucket of water over a door which some pal was sure to open.

Young Lindbergh was not a favorite with his employers because he did things his own way and took too many chances with valuable airplanes, a fact amply attested by his record of several forced parachute jumps and wrecked planes. As to his early family relationships, they were none too happy, apparently.

Lindbergh's real drive would have been apparent to any psychologist when he bought an old Government "jenny," as soon as he had learned to fly, and barnstormed the Middle West, doing exhibition stunts at county fairs and local carnivals. Or, even before that, when he began doing spectacular tricks while still in the Standard Aircraft Co.'s flying school for beginners — wing walking, double parachute jumps and other feats of daring which thrilled spectators.

LINDBERGH, too, craved military rank; he went through the stiff course of training at Kelly Field, for the non-lucrative but highly honorary reward of an Air Corps lieutenancy in the reserve, and later qualified as a Captain and Flight Commander in the Missouri National Guard.

There you have the picture. Charles Lindbergh sought persistently the shortest road to spectacular fame and prestige, regardless of risk or other consideration. His real personality drive, apparent from the very beginning of his career, was the wish to assert his superiority in the eyes of other humans.

That was the drive which impelled him, by means of many convincing demonstrations of his flying prowess before moneyed backers, to acquire the $13,000 "Spirit of St. Louis" which he flew to a new transcontinental speed record shortly before he won stupendous world applause by making the first non-stop flight from New York to Paris, May 20-21, 1927.

It is psychologically improbable that the money prize of $25,000 which Lindbergh won when he landed at 10:21 p. m., Paris time, on Le Bourget Field, in the madly cheering presence of 100,000 Frenchmen, played any part whatsoever in his calculations except as it enabled him to obtain sponsors for his flight, and contributed more importance in the eyes of men to the feat he accomplished.

Those who conceive Col. Lindbergh as a cold, calculating money-seeker who made his front-money by flying to Paris and later aligned himself with the Morgan-Morrow financial interests by acting as an advertising asset for TWA and marrying into the Morrow fortune, are 100 per cent mistaken. Charles Lindbergh esteems money, as he evaluates other accomplishments, only in the light of how such assets may further his primary purpose of establishing his own, personal superiority over other people.

This personality drive is a perfectly normal one. But a person possessing it as intensely as Lindbergh does is to be pitied, sympathized with. His quiet manner reveals to me that he feels miserably inferior in the presence of other people. If he didn't, he would not strive so frantically to prove to them his superiority.

Why didn't Charles Lindbergh, for example, seek personal popularity among his early flying comrades, kowtow to his bosses, agree to whatever his family suggested if they would help him get ahead? Because he couldn't bear to. Because he didn't know how to please them. Because he felt inadequate at persuading people and so took the attitude that other people ought to recognize his importance without being persuaded.

He knew that his own ability was superior to everybody else's. But nobody else knew it. And the only way he could prove it to them was not by winning their esteem with social charm, but by compelling others to admire him by performing stunts they could not duplicate. Lindbergh might have made an average mark in mechanical engineering, in biology, or some applied science. But making an average mark would not serve his obsessing personality purpose of making other people recognize him. So he dropped other pursuits and selected the one where he had the best chance of performing spectacularly.

If Lindbergh had possessed just a little more social capacity, just a little more ability to charm people with his personality, he would never have flown the Atlantic. Because, in that case, he would not have been ridden by that gnawing, secret feeling of inferiority which was at the same time his great weakness and his outstanding strength.

UNDERSTANDING Lindbergh's personality may help you to understand your own emotional predicament if you have any tendency toward a social inferiority

THIS NEW YORK

By Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, June 3.

IT has often been remarked that, while many of the great cooks and gastronomic scholars of history have been women, the chronicles of food record very few celebrated lady eaters. From Lucullus to Boies Penrose, the most famed tosspots and trenchermen have been on the masculine side. Just at the moment, however, Manhattan's food reporting and some of its more heroic tablework is being performed by the girls. With the exception of Selmer Fougner's "Along the Wine Trail," almost every newspaper and magazine column of importance devoted to cooking and restaurants is conducted by female gastronomes of prowess and address. Mary Mabon, of "Town and Country"; Lois Long, of "The New Yorker"; the New York Herald Tribune's Clementine Paddleford, and Jeanne Owen, of the air and the Wine and Food Society's publications, are—any of them—a match for most men when it comes to tearing a grouse or tossing off a few pots of claret, and, of course, over in Boston, Theodora Codman is the moving spirit of the entire town's gastronomic galas.

LUCIUS BEEBE

The latest guide and gazette of New York's ordinaries, tuck shops and taverns is called "Where to Dine in '39," by Diana Ashley (Crown Publishers), and contains the names, addresses, general characteristics and favorite recipes of 200 eating places. Miss Ashley is in nominal fact Mrs. Gordon Carll, the former Mrs. Freddie Kerr and a very good job of reporting she has done, too.

—O—O—

● MISS ASHLEY has done the most vigorous job of dining around since George Ross undertook his celebrated "Tips on Tables" a few years ago, and has done sterling service to gastronomy in general by printing hitherto more or less closely guarded recipes from the chef's books of such tony resorts as the Colony, Jack and Charlie's, the Waldorf and El Morocco, the last of which is actually known to serious diners as an excellent house, although its more general fame derives from being a night club and celebrity trap. All the recipes are indexed and cross-indexed and make excellent reading and a valuable repository of culinary lore.

—O—O—

A short time ago this department recorded in properly dolorous periods that, although it was in possession of a bottle of ancient Pisco brandy (the gift of Bill Green, late of Lucey's in Los Angeles and now head barkeep at the 91 Club in Las Vegas, Nev.), it didn't know how to mix this potent beverage, and that the art of building Pisco punch seemed to have been almost universally forgotten. A sympathetic correspondent, L. G. Horner, writes that an excellent Pisco cocktail can be built with three parts brandy to two of pineapple juice (unsweetened) and the juice of approximately one lemon to six drinks. He also suggests what sounds like a positively murderous arrangement of one part Pisco to one of Felton's Pilgrim rum. The latter, we feel, should only be drunk while lying flat on the floor—to prevent having to fall there.

—O—O—

● THERE IS MORE THAN ONE WAY to skin a cat, and also more than one manner of spelling a name—especially that of a celebrity. Katharine Cornell, for instance, has suffered innumerable mis-spellings of her first name in past years, despite the valiant efforts of erudite publicists. The most common variations are Katherine and Catharine. Helen Menken, the stage and radio star, also has to contend with interviewers who insist on putting a "c" before the "k," probably with H. L. Mencken in mind. Gertrude Lawrence frequently has her last name spelled "Laurence," while Lynn Fontanne has been printed Lynne Fontane, Lyn Fontann, Lyne Fontane and a number of other variations. Helen Hayes sometimes runs across a reference to herself as Hays. It's surprising how many copy desks allow Mervyn LeRoy's name to pass as Marvin Leroy, and occasionally Kitty Carlisle finds her surname spelled Carlile. One of the most common of all confusions exists between Helen Claire, the actress of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," and Clare Boothe, its author, whose married name is Clare Luce and who has the devil's own time being distinguished from Claire Luce, an actress.

—O—O—

Nicholas De Molas, whose "conversation paintings" have brought him such handsome fees from folk of fashion up and down the countryside, has joined the Scenic Artists Designers Union . . . Broadway sees this as a bid for theatrical commissions next season, supposedly from some of the tonier producers, like Viton Freedley or Dwight Wiman . . . John Perona's personal smoke is a "Perona-Perona" cigar, the current vintage of which he had rolled for his friends 12 years ago, while he was in business at the old Forty-ninth street stand . . . Gage and Tollner's celebrated soft-shell crabs are luring pious gourmets to the wilds of Brooklyn these evenings . . . LINEN AS WEDDING PRESENT

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: Is it improper to give linen as wedding presents? I do not want to give silver, and being very partial to fine linen, I would like to spend the amount that I otherwise would for silver and give the bride a linen damask cloth and napkins, all marked with her initials. I feel sure that she would appreciate this.

Answer: It is entirely proper and would be a lovely present. No matter how much linen her family may give her, a bride can always use extra items—especially when they are beautiful.

—O—O—

DEAR MRS. POST: Is "The Rev. Mr. John Smith" the proper way to write the groom's name on the wedding invitations, or should it be "The Rev. John Smith"? There has been some question about this at the engraver's and I feel that he is not sure.

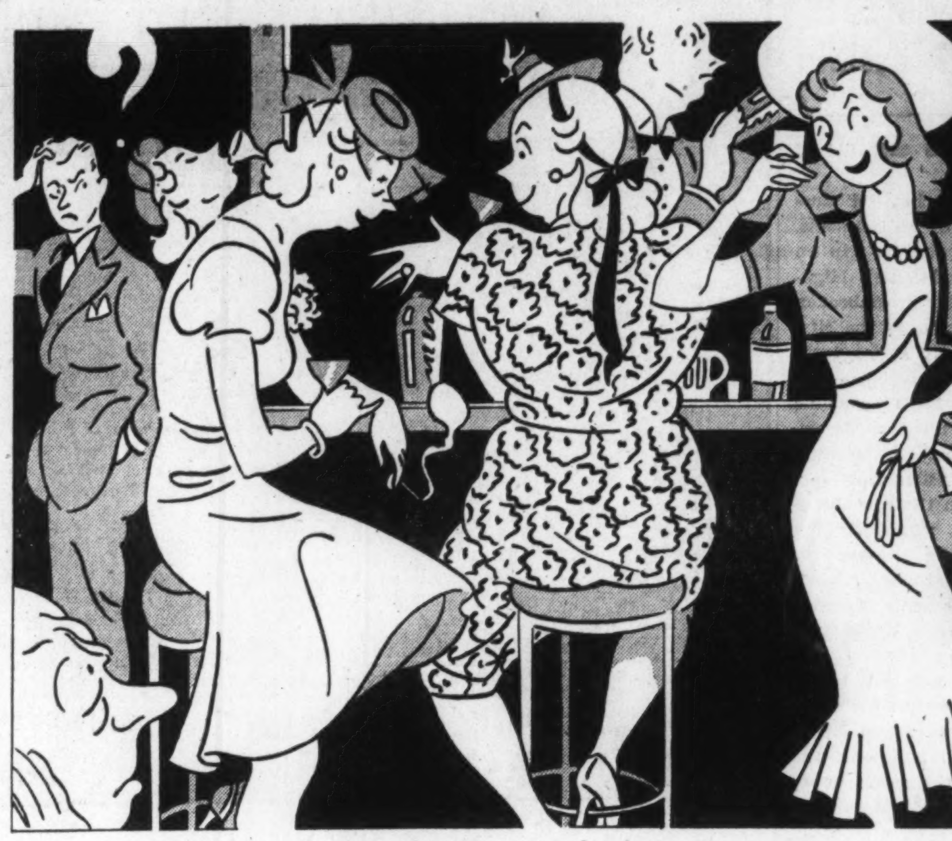
Answer: "The Rev. John Smith" is proper. "The Rev. Mr. Smith" is used only as a substitute for the clergyman's first name when one doesn't know it, in order to avoid the form, "The Rev. Smith," which is very bad form.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

CAN'T LADIES DRINK LIKE LADIES?

Possibly They Can, But Statistics Show That An Increasing Number Are Not Doing So.

By Virginia Irwin



BACK in the dear, dead, but not beyond recall days when the saloon was the sanctum sanctorum of the alleged stronger sex, ladies didn't get blotto in bars. No well-bred woman would ever have thought of getting pie-eyed in public or walking on the bias down the boulevard. But then along came the speak-easy era and the girls started going in for a little away-from-home whoopee. It was smart to possess the peephole password that let you into a little room where you paid good money for bad bathtub gin or specious redeye. It was also smart to boast of the bun you acquired thereby and the headache you nursed thereafter.

What the women started during the bootleg boom they have continued to practice—and not so politely — since repeal. Statistics shout an alarming rise in alcoholism among the fair sex. Female customers crowd the two-bit bars and top-register saloons. Imbibing has become a serious business with the sisters of the skillet. And it's not unusual to come across the sight of a lady getting herself tanked in a taproom or crocked in a cocktail bar.

Bellevue Hospital in New York reports an increase of almost 100 per cent in women stews admitted to that institution within the last 10 years. The Social Study Committee of the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators reports that in a survey of a representative group of New York women students, 94 per cent of them admitted liking liquor; in a representative group of white collar women workers, 90 per cent were drinkers to some extent. The American Medical Association recently reported that women involved in automobile accidents as the direct result of a too-strenuous cocktail hour have created a new and great demand for beauty surgery.

MEN, generally, disapprove of more than a casual cocktail for a woman. Doctors violently disapprove.

"Woman is a more highly organized animal, emotionally, than man; her mechanism lends itself to easier destruction and quicker dilapidation," Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, noted psychiatrist-in-chief of the famed Hartford (Conn.) Retreat, explained, when I interviewed him recently on the subject of drinking damsels.

No prohibitionist, Dr. Burlingame views a little drinking as something of a social accomplishment. As a relief from the tensions of organized society, he sees no reason why women should not take a drink of two occasionally, if as a result of the release from the tensions and realities, they are afterwards more willing to take up the social amenities and responsibilities.

"From the beginning of time," this psychiatrist pointed out, "men have taken a few drinks to relax and thereby store up the energy and ambition to climb just a little higher in the plane of living. The safety line in drinking is that line beyond which you climb if you have not overdone your drinking and profited by your relaxation, and below which you slide when the liquor has taken more from you than it has given. The danger in drinking is that it is always so much easier to slide back a little bit, and women are much more apt to find themselves sliding back than men. After a few drinks the night before, women are less apt to find themselves willing and eager to meet the realities of life, and remembering the stimulation of those few drinks, they may repeat the process the next day. Soon they are over the safety line and trying to bolster their inadequacy with liquor to the extent of having developed the liquor habit."

Dr. Burlingame says that from his own observations and from those of associates in the psychiatric field, he believes that the immoderate use of alcohol is on a rapid increase among women. He views greater idleness and delayed marriage as two of the main reasons why girls have given the glad hand to John Barleycorn.

"Idle, with no jobs, and with no immediate prospects of marriage, because their men are without satisfactory jobs, many single women have developed the what-the-hell attitude and they have taken to liquor to sustain that attitude," Psychiatrist Burlingame says. "As for married women, the task of keeping house and raising children is no longer a full-time job, and these women now have time on their hands to dwell on the little unpleasantries of life—such unpleasantries as the fact that they are growing old, that their better half has perhaps become interested in someone else. To escape these realities, married women often employ liquor. Under the influence of a few drinks they feel younger and more confident."

AS a bit of advice to women who find themselves drinking liquor regularly, Dr. Burlingame suggests that they indulge in a little self-inventory and find out just what it is they are trying to escape and then attempt to meet the issue sanely and squarely rather than to obscure it with alcohol. Next, he suggests enlisting the services of an over-critical friend, who will tell the truth and perhaps say, "Listen, Susie, you asked for it, so here goes. You had something to drink practically every day last week, and if you ask me, you're well on the way to becoming a sot."

Like all men, all doctors, and all other women, Dr. Burlingame shudders at the thought of a fried femme. Too bad, he says, that women can't have a mental candid camera shot of themselves while in their cups, to view the next day. But entirely aside from the looks of women getting looped, the doctor stresses the subject of drinking damsels as a medical question.

"The moral issue aside, the fact still remains that woman's is a more delicate mechanism than man's," he sums up. "You know you can drop a thick-case dollar watch on a cement sidewalk and the thing will probably still run. But drop a delicate little wrist watch on the concrete and the damage is extensive."

And while doctors view with alarm the increase in alcoholism among women and while the distillers of America are concerning themselves with the problem of intemperance at public bars, frequented by young girls and women, as well as men, the bartending profession is also wishing that something could be done to teach the ladies how to drink like ladies.

GIRLS, THE BARTENDERS ARE SPEAKING TO YOU

SAYS white-haired Bill O'Toole, who presides over the Park Plaza Crystal Room bar, speaking from 34 years in the business:

Don't forget that a few cocktails in an air-cooled bar will most likely haul off and kick you when you get out in the heat.

—-o-o-—

SAYS WILLIAM DORNER, head man at the Jefferson bar with 36 years' experience:

Don't mix your drinks.

Don't do a marathon on Martinis, Manhattans or other cocktails.

Don't forget it's your own fault if you enter a bar room alone and some strange man takes it for granted you're looking for a drinking companion.

—-o-o-—

SAYS OSCAR HOLTGRAVE of the Chase Hotel's Steeplechase:

Don't order cocktails that you're not on speaking terms with; unless you know what you're drinking, stick to old acquaintances.

Don't trade escorts after a few drinks.

Don't order four or five highballs while your escort is nursing a lone beer; the poor boy is probably pinched in the pocketbook.

CHORUS: Don't forget you're a lady.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION -:- By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE been invited to a roller skating party and it will be necessary for me to ask a date. Although there are several young men I could easily and properly ask, there is one in particular whom I would like to invite. I met him several years ago and had not seen him since then until a few weeks ago.

I have improved greatly in appearance since I last saw him and when we met again I could tell he was surprised at the change. However, he did not call me for a date. Considering the fact that he has never asked me for a date, do you think I can safely ask him to go with me without giving him the impression that I am "running after him"?

HESITATING.

Do not ask this boy to the skating party. Hope that he will be there and see you looking particularly attractive, dashing around with another boy. Probably you will get the date later.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MAY I SAY a word to "Observer" and "Old Maid" about second-hand husbands. I happen to be the wife of one of the so-called second-hand husbands and I can assure these two correspondents that he is not the cruel, calculating demon they paint him. He is a fine, honest hard-working and, above all, loveable man and considerate human being. I have found him this for 10 years and we have a lovely son.

My husband has abundantly provided us with love, protection and a fine home and the luxuries of life that his position offers. We own our home, a good car and a country place. We have a nice vacation traveling if we do not stay in the country.

We are keeping our marriage on the happy basis by omitting any mention of the past. We belong to church and want only the best for our child. Neither I, nor my husband, advocate divorce, especially if there are children. But when a man acts upon the wishes of the woman he loves and gives her freedom from the marriage she no longer finds bearable, he is not exactly a demon.

My husband, our minister and family physician have told me the circumstances of his divorce and we never mention it. The wife was a beautiful and upright woman, who desired a career and I harbor no ill-will.

I am the happy and contented,
MRS. SECOND-HAND HUSBAND'S WIFE.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WHAT DO YOU THINK of a boy-friend who borrows money and never pays it back? He makes a fairly good salary and must pay board and dress on it. He is very good to me, always thinking of something nice to do, but little things such as I have mentioned make me lose respect for him. Mrs. Carr, how can I tell him I need the money I lend him and make his change in this respect.

R. D.

The habit certainly is a bad one; he may be just absent-minded and slipshod in his habits. But this is not a very safe habit to acquire. Other boys may give him their contempt in the form of calling him "cheap skate" and, while it is hardly your prerogative to tell and teach him, I believe you could give him a hint that your spending money is a little low. Then of course, you should forget your pocketbook, as it is hardly a habit for girls to take it along when a boy has invited her to go out.

Sometimes girls expect too much spending of the boy and make no effort to return any of his attentions; his borrowing, while a crude method, may have this in mind and you might stop it by asking him to your home and for a little supper party.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM SURE you do not want your column turned into a battleground for those for and against radio programs, but I just could not resist the temptation to voice my sentiments on the subject, after reading the two letters, signed, "I. C. M." and "Disgusted."

I know an old lady, who very seldom ever leaves her home. She lives with those so-called trashy radio serials—I've seen her weep with "Kitty Keene" and shout for "Ma Perkins" and "Houseboat Hannah." This woman is old, her step isn't quick enough or bones and body strength enough to step out of her home to enjoy the movies, the picnics, the ball games, etc. Her eyes aren't what they used to be when she taught school 40 years ago; she can't read very well, so she spends her few remaining days with her little radio and its serial programs. She is the only one I know, but there are thousands of them; and for us who do not like those programs it's so easy just to turn the dial—we surely can find something bigger than a radio program to get disgusted about.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I RECEIVED an invitation from a student in Texas to come to his graduation from college. As I cannot attend, is it necessary to send a gift or will a congratulation card be appropriate?

THANKS.

If you have known the boy long and he is a good friend, it would be very nice to remember him with a gift of some kind. But a nice personal note of thanks and congratulation would be quite enough if he is just a pleasant acquaintance. If by "congratulation card" you mean one of the printed kind you can buy at any card stand or stationers, it would not be in quite good taste. These cards for all occasions really are used only very seldom by those who dislike the stilted, rather ordinary, remembrance.

Dear Martha Carr:

THE LETTER in your column from a mother whose son has been saving match covers revives a rumor that has been circulated in various parts of the country for several years.

I represent one of the large match companies and have been connected with the match business for the past five years. All of the firms in this business receive letters from time to time about offers of this kind from those who have built false hopes about getting some material reward for a large collection of assorted match covers.

To the best of my knowledge, there has never been a prize offered by anyone for a collection of match covers unless the requirements for saving them were printed on the match covers themselves. The most vicious story was the one circulated about a year ago to the effect that a blind person who saved 50,000 or 100,000 different covers (the required number varied with the teller of the story) could win a "Seeing Eye" dog with the collection. This story was absolutely false and was exposed as such.

Perhaps if you care to print this letter, you can save children and their parents from working hard to collect these match covers only to be disappointed.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AT THIS TIME of year the Municipal Tennis Association usually receives a number of inquiries as to the possibilities of receiving free tennis instructions.

The member clubs have decided to give free instructions to beginners at the following parks: Carondelet, Francis, Kingshighway, Oakland, O'Fallon and Sherman on the following dates: June 4, 11, 18, 25 and July 2, between the hours of 12:30 and 2 p. m.; Reservoir Park, June 7, 14, 21, 28 and July 5, between the hours of 8 and 9 p. m.

WILMA HERBST, Recording Sec.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WOULD appreciate it very much if you would tell me what to do to reduce my hips. I am 18 years old, 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and weigh 136 pounds. Exercise books cost money and I cannot afford them.

THANKFUL.

If you care for it and will send self-addressed, stamped envelope for my leaflet, "Reducing," I will send it to you.

—o-o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE BEEN going with a very nice young girl for some time. Do you think that it is all right for me to ask her to my home in the evening? My family like the girl very much.

The girl's mother and father also like me, but her mother thinks it is not the proper thing for a girl to go over to a boy's home. Will you please tell me what to do?

JERRY.

With your mother and father or other members of the family at home, I cannot see the slightest objection to this young girl's visits to your house; especially since your mother and father think so well of her. Naturally you would see her at her own home oftener.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Clarissa Start

AS WE peer around our bee red nose and see no excited letters inquiring about the two-week absence of our by-line, not even from friends who promised to write them, we are a bit hesitant about reminding you that we are back, since no one seems to have noticed that we were gone. The only hints that news has been sounded about is in our mail—from travel agencies, loan companies offering vacation funds, and a noted cosmetician who tells us belatedly "you can stay sun fair or turn a golden tan just as you choose," and an added suggestion "for those unwise enough to have spent the holiday without a single sun essential." Ah wisdom, thy name is Elizabeth

However, popular interest to the contrary, we have been away, touring the Missouri Ozarks and gazing at the beautiful scenery tucked behind less beautiful billboards, those noisy signs advertising everything from scenic spots to Kozy Kottage Kamps in the next town. Most persistent of all are the Meramec Caverns advertisements, evenly spaced for mile after mile, expounding the caverns' beauties, cajoling you, pleading with you, almost threatening you. When you reach the largest sign of all, pointing toward the caverns you sigh with relief. That is over, you reason. Not so, not so. Some distance down the road you come to another sign grimly reproachful. "Why," asks in sad rebuke, "did you pass Meramec Caverns? Go back one mile."

TO ARDENT READERS of Li Abner, the Ozarks' chief attraction is the hillbillies, Missouri cousins to Pappy and Mammy Yokum. The real natives, Ozark inhabitants tell you, are not those who live along the highway and sell pottery, but those who moved back into the hills at civilization's encroachment. However, we were skeptically sure that even the natives had store clothes and midget radios until one day we accidentally stumbled on some authentic local color.

A St. Louis lawyer friend of ours owns a hundred acres of land "overlooking Uncle Matt's cabin in the Shepherd of the Hills country," he told us glowingly, and suggested that we pass on its possibilities for an artistic retreat from civilization. Accordingly we set out with our spouse one day and drove to a junction where we were to ask instructions from a Mr. Fronaberger. Mr. Fronaberger, it seemed, lived down the road a piece, the road being two ruts through a field.

"There are a couple gates," we were cautioned, "but you can get through."

A mile and three gates back from the road we came to a bumpy st at a log house. An old woman toothless and shoeless, came out. She was, it developed, hard of hearing and hard of understanding. Her message was that Mr. F. had gone to Branson for the day and she repeated it, no matter what the question.

"Have you ever heard of this land?" our spouse asked loudly and clearly. "Land. Man in St. Louis. Back that way."

"No," she said happily after little thought. "Branson's down that way and he won't be home before dark."

"Do you have any neighbors?" we shouted at her finally, in despair.

"Well, now, there's Mr. DeVore. He's a bachelor, lives down Spring Holler. That's the big holler down there. Ain't no road it; he drives his team to the end this road and walks down. I say once it pears to me Mr. DeVore ought to have built a road down the farm, but he ain't got round to it."

—o-o—

FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS we drove down the "road," through the farm, the pasture, stopping to jog a cow unmoved by the front wheels of the car, through some timber. Each division was shut off by a gate and after another mile we felt capable of opening the pearly gates unassisted. Finally we came to a thick tree fallen across the path and though Mr. DeVore's Pegasus probably leaped across our carriage balked. Plunging into the wilderness, we followed the path out onto a field of plowed rocks, where it ended. There was no trail, no wheel tracks, only density of trees on a small mountainside leading down into what was probably the Big Holler.

But undaunted, as they say the adventure stories, we forged ahead, or rather down, sliding through loose rock and rollin' down the mountain. Halfway down we sighted a house nestled in the narrow valley between two rocky hills. Trying to look as unlike revenuers as possible, we slid down a g trail, forded a creek and came to the clearing. Two of the three buildings there were boarded enough like the Ritz Brothers' except of the hills that we expected to see a bearded face and a point out of them. The third house had windows, squares cut into

WHERE BABIES Still Come by LAMPLIGHT

Dr. Charles Beach of Small Ozark Settlement 175 Miles Southwest of St. Louis Works Without Hospitals, Nurses, or Other Conveniences; Is Also Coroner, Runs General Store.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

ELIJAH, Mo., June 3.

THERE'S a baby born every four and a half days in the Ozark backwoods of Missouri and Arkansas under the care of Dr. Charles A. Beach of the tiny village of Elijah.

In not quite 22 years of practice in this picturesque district 175 miles southwest of St. Louis, he has officiated at the birth of 1793 boys and girls.

The annual average is 83 tiny bits of humanity; the record is 106 in 1936, but this year's crop is likely to be bigger, for there were 51 up to today, with seven months to go. Dr. Beach works without hospitals, nurses, internes or other conveniences to which urban obstetricians are accustomed. Unaided, he delivers these small hill people right in their homes, which may be neat farmhouses; one-room, earth-floored cabins or modest village dwellings. He gives his mortality record as only three mothers and ½ of 1 per cent of the babies—an amazingly low level.

Many a city specialist, with nothing else to do, considers himself busy if he has 100 to 180 maternity patients a year, helped by all the modern advantages of hospital, office and laboratory.

Dr. Beach is not just a baby doctor, but represents the vanishing prototype of general country practitioner, with an occasional job of surgery and frequent calls for pulling teeth. Furthermore, he is Coroner of Ozark County, keeper of a general store, filler of his own prescriptions, operator of a 600-acre farm with a good-sized apple orchard, country trader and a notary public. A Republican, he was Postmaster of Elijah for nine years until the birth of the New Deal.

In spite of his manifold activities—doubtless made necessary by the hard facts of rural economics—he gives the distinct impression of being a sincere professional man. His first inclination, when requested for an interview, was to refuse because he did not wish to seem like "that goat-gland doctor," but he yielded after it was pointed out that if Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe could achieve fame by bringing five little girls at one time, he was entitled to some public attention for delivering so many youngsters in one short career in a sparsely settled, 'hard-pressed countryside.

Elijah, credited with a population of 30 by the atlas, is eight miles from the Arkansas border and nearly three miles south of Highway No. 80, Missouri's southernmost State road. It consists of two frame stores and three or four residences, nestled in a pleasant green valley. A road to Arkansas fords the "branch" flowing from a cool spring house.

DR. BEACH'S nameless emporium, on a little hillside, is a story and a half high with a Western style false front. A lone gasoline pump stands unsheltered before the porch. Tin signs advertise Thedford's Black Draught, Wine of Cardui, a chewing tobacco and a widely known brand of tires.

Dimly lighted, the interior is the typical old country store. Sacks of flour and meal are on the shelves, along with countless other items. One counter is stacked with straw hats. Gathering dust at the rear is the old Postoffice grill and letter rack. Back of the opposite corner is the door of a narrow, twisting stairway to the neat attic, which is lined with shelves and insulated against extremes of temperature.

This is the doctor's office, although often enough patients consult him downstairs. An old-style black reclining chair stands by the front window. Near it, in a showcase, are the surgical and dental instruments. There is no sterilizer, for a teakettle serves the purpose. Artificial illumination, as in virtually every other house in the region, is furnished by a coal-oil lamp.

Among the articles on the shelves are some surplus stocks of drug staples and some cartons of flowers of sulphur, that sovereign substance to ward off chiggers. In jars of alcohol there is a small museum of surgical relics, embryonic life, animal oddities, snakes collected by the physician's grandson and even a huge black widow spider.

It had been daybreak before he retired last Sunday. The night before he had been up with several miscellaneous calls, ending with baby No. 1792, somewhere out in the hills. That was the termination of a busier-than-average week, in which there had been seven new babies to spank into lusty life.

Another village of the same county, Almartha, 25 miles to the northwest, was Charles Beach's own birthplace. As a little boy he used to doctor ailing farm animals.

"I'd thought of being a physician ever since I was a kid of 6 or 8," he says, "although there never had been a doctor in our family clear back to Adam that I know of."

He went to high school at the neighboring village of Noble, farmed and taught in the rural schools of Ozark County, saving his money all the while to make possible his goal of medical college. Married in 1902, three of his four children were born before he quit teaching. Finally he achieved his ambition, entering the now defunct National University Medical School, Garrison avenue and Lawton boulevard, St. Louis, for a four-year course. His diploma as an M. D. was handed him there on his thirty-fifth birthday, June 9, 1917.

ON THE DAY OF HIS GRADUATION FROM THE NATIONAL UNIVERSITY MEDICAL SCHOOL, ST. LOUIS, IN 1917.

So anxious was he to enter practice in his home region that he gave up the opportunity to serve as a hospital interne. An old friend's suggestion led him to Elijah. He started with a 40-acre farm. Four years later he bought the store. His home, close by, he enlarged as time passed. A long, low structure on a slope of greensward, it is surrounded by trees, shrubs, flowers and a collection of cactus plants which are a chief hobby of the owner.

Ozark County, like its immediate neighbors in both states, is a region of farming, dairying and timber cutting, with its quota also of WPA workers. There is a little mining, with one zinc carbonate mine half a century old. People call Dr. Beach north to Douglas County, east to Howell County and even to Oregon County, and south, in Arkansas, to Fulton and Baxter counties. His normal territory has a radius of 20 miles or more, largely reached on rough country roads and trails. Ozark County has no railroad, no smooth-surfaced highway; its capital and largest town is Gainesville, population 235.

The people are largely Anglo-Saxon in ancestry, akin to the hill folk of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia. The only other doctor nearer than West Plains and Gainesville is at Bakersfield, which has 181 inhabitants and a gravel farm-to-market road.

The first time Dr. Beach was called out on a baby case, he confessed to his family afterward, he hoped everything would be over before he got there. For the first few babies he did not keep a record, but when this practice began to show volume he undertook to keep track of it, jotting down in pencil in a small memorandum book the names and ages of the parents, the hour and date of the young hopeful's arrival and its serial number, together with its name, if one had been chosen, and miscellaneous facts.

In the course of time several of the earliest books have been lost and the oldest left carries numbers in the 500 series.

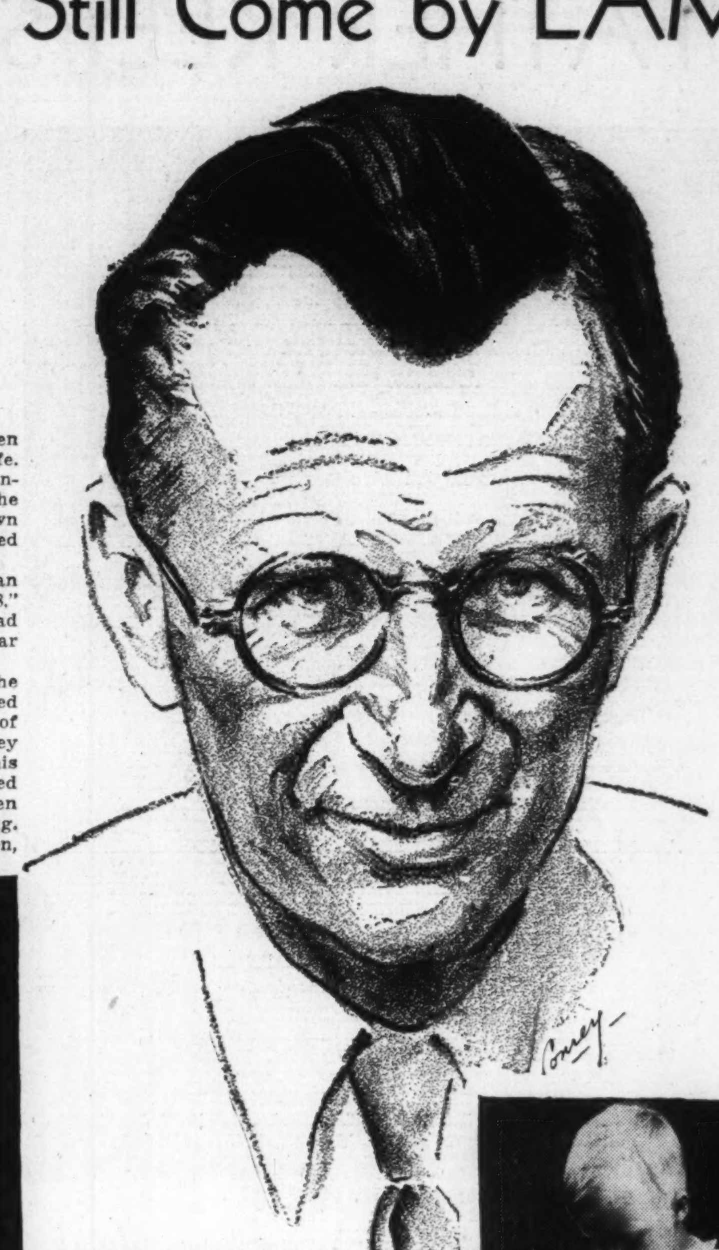
HIS record family is that of a farmer dwelling on the North Fork (of the White River), whose seventeenth child is expected soon. The first five or six were attended by another physician, while Dr. Beach has been on hand for all the rest. There are other families for which he has officiated at five or six births.

In several instances he has delivered babies in the second generation—children of young persons born early in his career. Among principals in this class are his own youngest daughter, Mrs. J. R. Williams, wife of a Mississippi River employe of the Engineer Corps, and her sturdy 5-year-old son, Jerry. The doctor has six other grandchildren, four of whom he delivered.

Ages of mothers he has attended range from 15 to 46. There have been few instances of twins in his practice and none of births in greater multiplicity, but once within four and a half months he welcomed four sets of twins. Oddly enough, two pairs of twins whose names are in those little memorandum books chanced to visit Elijah while the reporter was there; these were a boy and girl of two years and a tiny brace aged one month. Baby No. 1793, last week, had 12 fingers.



DR. CHARLES A. BEACH AS HE IS TODAY.

Many of the stork's demands on the doctor come in the wee, sma' hours. He has had as many as three calls of this kind on one night, repeatedly, but sometimes they may be 10 days apart. Usually such a visit requires from two to five or six hours. He is not inclined to administer twilight sleep or any of the other drugs to ease a mother's pain, but usually gives pituitary thymus, which tends to speed the process of birth. City physicians say this is a risky drug for the mother, which has been criticised by the American Medical Association, but Dr. Beach asserts it is safer for the patient than others.

Asked to account for the fact that only three mothers have died in childbirth in his practice, Dr. Beach replies modestly: "Good luck, I guess; I've been fortunate." Mrs. Williams puts in, loyally: "Good doctor." Besides losing few babies at birth, he says there has been little mortality in the period of infancy, and he is proud of the fact that his patients have escaped infections. It is interesting to note that he has never had to perform a Caesarian operation and he estimates that other instrumental assistance has not been required in more than 50 cases. The simple country life of the mothers is largely responsible for this, he believes.

Babies have entered the world under his care in cabins so poor that snow blew through the cracks onto the bedsteads and so cold that he would be forced to throw a quilt over his shoulders. Often his flashlight has been invaluable in furnishing illumination.

There was the case of one family which had neither olive oil, vaseline nor lard for the newest member's customary rubbing down. So the doctor told them to crack an egg in a pan of water as a makeshift substitute, but the hens had quit laying. Then he asked for just a pan of water. "The goslin's air a-chiseling in the pan," was the reply. He gave up.

No longer do anxious fathers gallop to the doctor's house on horseback; horses are comparatively rare here. A Gainesville telephone line runs to the store and to the doctor's bedside. In the first few years of his career the roads were bad and he used saddlehorses. Since then he has worn out 12 light automobiles of three different makes and now he is giving the thirteenth hard use. The average travel is 25,000 miles a year. Many a dent has been put in the engine pans on the rocky trails, but now the roads are getting better.

On a snowy day last March he found a creek too deep to ford, so he abandoned the car, waded through the icy water, walked two miles to borrow a mule and rode astride it for several miles farther. At one point the mule had to cross a stream reaching halfway up its side.

"I remember another time," says the doctor, "when I had three babies between midnight and midnight, drove 85 miles, served half a day as clerk of an election, bought a bill of goods from a salesman, waited on a few customers, pulled three or four teeth, fixed up several prescriptions of medicine and was in bed three times—though not for long.

"A WEEK or so ago, a Swiss woman, about 45, walked six miles into Elijah and waited eight or 10 hours for me to return from calls. Then, at 11 o'clock at night, I pulled 14 teeth for her and removed an external tumor from her thigh, using procaine borate, a local anesthetic. It took about an hour. She wanted to walk home but my son drove her there."

All this work was done by coal-oil lamplight in the attic office. How much was the doctor's fee? "About $5," he says. Does he have as much trouble collecting his bills as do city physicians? "I hope they don't have any more trouble than I do." Often he takes his pay in cattle, hogs, sheep, chickens, feed or sorghum molasses. On the attractive porch of his home are two fine split-bottom hickory chairs which represent a fee.

"The people here want to pay," the doctor declares. "They are honest and do the best they can. I imagine they want to pay more than people in some places."

One young couple, whose first baby came in 1935, collected silver coins minted that year and handed them over for a fee.

In this hilly country, wooded with oak, hickory and walnut, there are occasional fishing and hunting accidents. One rather frequent type of call for the doctor results from a fishbone lodging in the throat. He has a handy instrument for ensnaring the bone in a bunch of hairs.

The nearest dentist is at West Plains. Hardly a day passes but what Dr. Beach extracts a tooth or two for someone, but he undertakes no other dental work. He moves patients to hospitals at West Plains or Springfield occasionally when there is surgery to perform, but some tasks, such as the removal of extra thumbs for two babies, he performs in the homes. Then there was a man who had a leg amputated at Springfield and returned home, supposedly to die. When gangrene set in Dr. Beach performed a second amputation on the stump, with chloroform as anesthetic, and the patient lived for several years.

DR. BEACH'S present term as Coroner began two years ago. Coroners cannot be elected to successive terms under Missouri law but once he held two terms in a row because no one qualified to succeed him. He says he never made a campaign.

Life of the Ozark hill people, in his opinion, has been showing a change for the better. For one thing, they are raising more livestock. He attributes the improvement to the work of county agricultural agents, betterment of the schools and extension of good roads. Radios are scarce. His people also are paying more attention to their health than formerly, showing more inclination to be vaccinated against smallpox and typhoid. Smallpox was rampant not long ago; the doctor vaccinated several hundred persons.

As far as he knows, few of the babies he has delivered have moved far away from the home district. "There is no race suicide down here," he points out, but he is aware of some increase of birth control. He has found illegitimacy to be rare.

Dr. Beach does not belong to the medical societies and he has not had time lately to attend the medical meetings at West Plains. However, he reads as much professional literature as he can, to keep abreast of developments.

He does not smoke, chew, drink or gamble, but he rarely has time to go to church. When he has a moment to call his own he likes to admire his cactus plants, his flowers or his 625 mature apple trees, or else he just sits and rests.

If he had the choice to make over again, he declares unhestitatingly, he would pick the same profession and the same place to practice it.

SLACKS TAKING PLACE OF SUMMER CULOTTES

THE feminine emphasis which dominates street costumes can't hold its own against the masculine accent of play clothes for summer wear. Slacks are more popular than ever and the more tailored they are, the better they are liked. Culottes are worn by a few conservatives, but all skirts, whether divided or conventional, are in the minority as compared to the trouser mode.

There are materials and colors galore from which ot choose one's summer slacks, but the preference seems to be for white fabrics of a sturdy type. Heavy linen crash, duck, pique and sharkskin are four materials which are being featured extensively. Among the colors that are in vogue this season there are many vivid and unusual tones to replace the natural colored homespun and cotton bagging themes that were so prevalent a year ago. Loosely woven cotton fabrics, chambray, denim and unbleached muslin are some of the materials being used.

In planning an active sports costume using slacks as the basis, the girl who likes to observe the fashion rules of the current season strives for striking contrasts. If the slacks are white, she may choose bright blue or red for her shirt or sun-backed top or mix up her shades with a bodice of one tone and a bolero jacket of another. Red and blue are the favorite alliances with white, although bright yellow and blue form another combination that is increasing in popularity.

Bottle green slacks are featured in the St. Louis shops to be worn with violet or yellow skirts and create a costume that is arresting. Orange and dark red offer equal promise of attracting attention, while an orange colored skirt worn with yellow slacks suggests another alliance to consider. It is interesting to note that all of these combinations become ever gayer because of the brilliance of sandals, sashes and turbans.

The cotton shirt worn with tail out in the collegiate manner is an accepted style for feminine followers of the fashion for slacks. Entire outfits made of denim or chambray, may be selected to match or to contrast. Striped cotton shirts suggesting pajama coats also are available in a great variety of color schemes. More elegant in their appearance of the collarless tuck-in shirts made of rayon jersey. The hand-blocked handkerchief linen blouse and the one made of flowered foulard are handsome additions to a sports wardrobe.

Do You Cling To Old Picture Of Yourself?

Other People See You as You Are Today, Reminds Columnist.

By Elsie Robinson

A LOT of things puzzle you in this strange world. But goat-gettingest of all is the treatment you, yourself, receive. The slights and snubs—the callous indifference or downright dirty deals. Often from those who are nearest and dearest to you.

Not only does such behavior anger you but it bitterly bewilders you. For it's so utterly undeserved. You're a good egg!

But are you a good egg? What makes you so sure you are one? Is there, perhaps, a mistake in that audit of yourself? And does most of your misery arise from the fact that you're not the sort of person you think you are. Not by a million miles!

Remember Bobbie Burns' "Ode to a Mouse?" Nothing personal, of course, but there's big medicine for all of us in those four lines:

"Oh wad some power the giftie
gie us
"To see oursel's as others see us.
"It wad frae monie a blunder free us

"HOW NICELY," you say to yourself, "that applies to many a person I know!" But has it ever occurred to you that it also applies to you? How often do you see yourself as others see you? How long is it since you saw yourself truly, at all? You think you have an accurate picture of yourself—how exactly the sort of person you are—strong and silent—gay and generous—or reckless and high-spirited. But let's check that picture.

It isn't a new picture. You made it long ago, when you first began to study yourself, in your early 'teens. Until then you hadn't realized yourself as a separate individual but simply as part of the mass impression. Then, suddenly you discovered—you.

There were, you perceived, plenty of faults. You were lazy—no use denying it. You fibbed plenty and frightened easy—and sometimes you sulked. Yet on the whole, you decided you were a good fellow, generous and friendly, loyal and reliable. Maybe your performance wasn't always up to standard, but your motives were okay. If people would just give you a chance, you could always make good.

So you built up your picture of yourself. And you went about the job honestly. No matter how much you might alibi or pretend to the outer world, you didn't want to kid yourself. You really wanted the true lowdown on Exhibit A. Having got it, you stored it away for reference.

BUT HOW MANY YEARS is it that you've carried that picture of yourself? Five—ten—thirty? And isn't it possible that, in all those years, that picture may have changed?

Everything else in your life has changed. The furniture you've used has grown shabby and scarred—has been replaced. You've changed your job many times. Moved, perhaps, to a new town. Formed new friends—new habits of life.

Yet still you cling to the picture you made of yourself in your teens! Still you think of yourself as an eager, generous, friendly young soul . . . and believe that others see the same image.

But they don't! Other people see you as you are now—not as you were when you graduated from high school. And other people see your actual, outward acts, not your vague, inner motives. And proceed to treat you accordingly.

There we found Mr. DeVore and stared goggle-eyed at our first hillbilly. Tall, white-haired and distinguished enough looking, though barefooted, to be the Shepherd himself, his voice held an indication of more than scanty education. He had been reading a magazine and it was this that fascinated us. While our mate listened to the description of the land, which we never saw, we edged closer, eyes squinting to ferret out what sort of magazine would attract an elderly bachelor, living in hermit-like seclusion in the silent hills. The Saturday Evening Post or Collier's, we guessed from the size, but as we drew closer and made out the type at the top of the page, we gulped and blinked and gave an inward snicker. The magazine was Woman's World.

LET ME SUGGEST

By Josephine Walter

ARE you annoyed and bored to extinction by these articles telling you how you can make your darling little furnace of an apartment resemble Santa Claus' igloo for the summer months? All you have to do, it seems, is paint or paper your walls, paint your floors, buy all new furniture and get little odds and ends like new draperies, new rugs and new accessories. Well, quite frankly, even though we're supposed to be one of that tribe of writers, we're a little bored by all that talk, too, especially when we can't find room to store papa's winter undies, much less the living room rug.

However, in spite of this protest, we have all of us had enough experience of St. Louis summers to know that there are any number of little tricks to make life pleasanter during the hot spell. We don't advocate redecorating everything in the place except the bird-cage, but we do, oh indeed we do, advocate enough change to make you feel that the stage has been set for summer, even if only by little gestures.

Take, for instance, your fireplace, that joy of the entire household during the winter months but a pain as soon as summer comes. Now that's one place where anyone can do something, and without any expense, if necessary. By all means block out that yawning hole by a screen or fan made of white paper, pleated by you. Put a huge bunch of huckleberry leaves in a simple low bowl in front of the opening, not forgetting that if you keep the bowl filled with water one bunch will last practically the entire summer. Make a geometric arrangement of glass bricks which will give a cool, icy effect or merely get huge chunks of glass. Try birch logs for that north woods feeling.

● REARRANGE your furniture so that the fireplace will no longer be the center of attraction. Often, it is possible to place your couch directly in front of the fireplace and block it off completely. If not, try arranging the center of interest around windows and an outdoor view.

Of course, we've mentioned summer draperies, and then we've mentioned them again. But they are such an important part of the room and they may be so quickly, effectively and inexpensively transformed. There are innumerable tricks that may be utilized instead of regular curtains for summer windows. Try, for instance, artificial flowers that completely surround the window frames, the more artificial the better. Not nearly as expensive as it sounds or looks and guaranteed to give the room a gay and unfamiliar feeling. Try strings of shells, either bought at the dime store or sent by some kind friend at the seashore, as tiebacks for curtains of fish-net. Or substitute plants of potted ivy hung from holders for the sea shells.

● DO YOU MIND if I tell you of my converting trick of the week? I had an old caster set which I had bought in a moment of weakness at some antique auction. It had been reposing on a closet shelf these many months. I had used the beautiful cut glass bottles for condiments, but the entire set had seemed too cumbersome from present-day service. One day, in an orgy of spring cleaning, I came upon it and decided it had taken up good storage space long enough. So, quite easily and simply I had it converted into really a very handsome lamp, merely by the addition of a center rod, a lighting fixture and a shade. But the thing that makes it so effective and unusual is that the little compartments around the base which originally held the condiment bottles are now used as tiny plant containers, to hold little blooming plants. I feel that I have inherited money, or something.

AND, WHILE ON the subject of lamps, I want to mention the clever idea I saw in one of the department stores just lately. Instead of changing your lamp shades for the summer you may now slip-cover them like you do an article of furniture. These slip-covers are made of a variety of materials, patterns and colors though the chintz ones are most effectively and summery, I believe. They are made with very full skirts and smocked tops which are elastic so that they will fit over practically any sized shade, and are thus merely slipped over the existing shade to protect it during the summer months.

Nothing is cooler looking than glass and wrought iron and the introduction of one small coffee table of these materials will go far toward giving your room a summer season air. Or you might get a folding frame of iron of the type that is used to set tea trays on and place a piece of marble on it instead of a tray. Place a crystal or glass bowl on such a table, with one water lily floating in it and you could achieve no more cooling effect.

Poor Housekeeping.

It is poor economy to have only one paring knife in your kitchen drawer. Then even when you do have someone who is willing to help prepare the meal, she is unable to do a thing, just for the lack of a 25-cent article.

RESIDENTS in a certain section of Los Angeles are enjoying a rare and exciting distinction these mornings. Their milk is being delivered by the father of a movie star.

Worth getting up before breakfast for, isn't it? Think of greeting your milkman on the back porch with "I'll have two quarts of certified, a pint of cream—and, oh yes, tomorrow, please bring me an autographed picture of Sandy."

Yes, sir, Ray Henville's still a milkman—and that, in a nutshell, tells the whole story of what's happened in the Henville family since their 15-month-old daughter, Sandy, has become Hollywood's newest infantile sensation—the most important gurgler since the days of Baby Le Roy.

It doesn't often happen that way. The usual procedure for parents whose youngsters spring suddenly to film fame is to spread out and take on class. They move into more spacious homes, buy a new car or two and find many other ways of getting their offspring's wages into circulation. In most cases, Pop quits his job to manage the child's affairs.

But those things haven't happened to the Henvilles. Before Sandy made her sensational debut in Bing Crosby's "East Side of Heaven," Father Henville was a milk peddler, and, now that the family's circumstances have been bettered, he hasn't seen fit to quit. And his clinking load has become heavier, too, because it's quite the rage among housewives to say "We must take milk from the father of that darling baby we saw in the movies last night." After dinner, Henville helps his wife wash the dishes and they both retire early, for milkmen can't sleep late.

The Henvilles seem to be sturdy, intelligent folks. They're willing to see their child soaring across the movie heavens; in fact, they're pretty excited about it, but they aren't being taken in by the glitter and tinsel with which Hollywood is shrouded. The money they receive from Sandy's toil—and they get it all, because the contract must be with the parents—is being put aside for her, they say.

They're just one extra service they get now. Mrs. Henville doesn't drive a car, so, when Sandy is needed at the studio, a car and chauffeur are sent for them. Also, there's a welfare worker always present at the studio to help care for the infant. This is required by law. The amount of time Sandy actually works doesn't exceed 10 or 15 minutes a day.

The story behind Sandy's discovery is as amusing as it is interesting. Director David Butler, trying to find a 10-month-old boy to play in "East Side of Heaven" was ready to give up after looking at 300 hopeless cases. By coincidence, Charles Previn, Universal's musical director, is one of Roy Henville's milk customers. Mrs. Henville, having read of Butler's dilemma, suggested that Roy leave a couple of pictures of Sandra at the Previn home. He did, the very next morning, along with an extra quart of milk.

Previn took the pictures to the studio and gave them to Butler. Butler took one glance and said, "That's just the baby I've been looking for. Where is he? Get him here quick!"

In his excitement, it never occurred to Butler that his discovery might be a girl instead of a boy. Even when Mrs. Henville arrived at the studio with Sandra an hour later, he overlooked inquiring about the baby's sex.

Next day Butler learned of his error. However, he was too thoroughly sold on the infant to renew the search. He would have rewritten the script first. He insisted that Sandra be called Sandy and referred to as a boy. "At that age, who can tell the difference?" he asked.

So Sandy became the youngest male impersonator in movie history, carrying off her masquerade beautifully. So thoroughly did she accomplish her task that Universal signed her to a long-term contract. Sandy received seventh billing in her first film, but, in her second, she's to be co-starred with Mischa Auer—and the picture will be called "Sandy."

ADD pointed remarks by the great and near-great of Hollywood: Ann Sothern (former heroine, now character actress by choice)—"I'll never play another straight leading part as long as I live! I've served my apprenticeship as nice, wishy-washy, sweet girls who are in there for no other purpose than to be rescued by the hero and share in the clinch at the fadeout. They got me no place. From now on it's going to be character parts or nothing. I don't care how small or how large they are, so long as they have some substance to them.

"I'm not acting when I say I don't want to be a star. I think the era of stars is quickly passing."

FRED DATIG (casting director for MGM)—"Hollywood has been called a woman's town, yet there are seven places in front of the camera for men, compared to one for a woman. Despite that, there are 10 times as many women seeking screen careers as there are men.

"It's comparatively easy to find good feminine material, but there's always been a shortage of usable males, especially for the important roles. The reason for the overabundance of women is simple. Women don't like to face the prospect of years of housework. More than ever before, the average woman wants to be on 'her own,' and for the romantically inclined the movies are a natural magnet. The male is more practical and less affected by glamorous appeal."

STUART HOLMES (silent villain, now minor player and student of astrology)—"A-R is a lucky combination of letters for all folks in the amusement field. Look over your list and see how many successful players have an A-R in their names. There's Clark Gable, Mary Pickford and all the other Marys, Carole Lombard, Charles Boyer and all the other Charleses, Humphrey Bogart, Darryl Zanuck, Warner Baxter and ever so many others.

"On a call sheet one day, I noticed they had abbreviated my name to 'Stu Holmes.' I objected, not because of the alcoholic inference—you see, I don't drink—but because the elimination of the lucky letter combination plays straight into the hands of the evil forces. I had nothing but bad luck that day, and asked the production department not to repeat that method of designating me."

MOVIE STARS seldom profit by kicking over the "billing" they receive, but one did. His name is Jimmy Cagney. Several years ago, Jimmy sued Warner Brothers for breach of contract—and won—because one of the Warner-controlled theaters in Beverly Hills billed his name below that of Pat O'Brien in advertising "Ceiling Zero." Jimmy wanted to free himself from Warner shackles for other reasons, and seized on that technicality to win his fight.

But Cagney's was an isolated case. It involved a theater operated by the studio; otherwise, no court would have upheld the claim. When an exhibitor buys a picture, he feels free to advertise it in the manner by which he can extract the most profit from it. That's why studio billing doesn't mean a thing, and all concerned waste a lot of precious time and temper arguing about it.

By Dr. W. M. Marston

complex. You know you can do things. You know you have power, drive, daring, dominance over any material obstacle that opposes you. But here you are surrounded by other humans who don't know that, who think you are dumb, mediocre, ordinary, just because you cannot talk to them brilliantly about things of no consequence, just because you cannot sell yourself convincingly with social amenities. What can you do about it?

A tempting impulse is to show off; to demonstrate your ability in overcoming material obstacles; to conquer the inanimate opponents of air, gravity, physical dangers which these other, socially smug people dare not tackle. Then they will have to recognize you for what you really are, a person of consequence. Then they will have to admit you to their inner circle of worth-while friends.

But the trouble is that you really do not want their friendship, though you think you do. You want, actually, to overcome what you feel is other people's exclusiveness.

Suppose you go ahead and show the world, as Lindbergh did, that you can do big things, and suppose you get what you sought — the admiration and applause of many people. Then you are right back where you started. You are the same person you were before, only now a great many people think you are something different. Believing what they read about you, they think you are a super-human who has everything, including social charm. You are faced, then, with a new predicament — either you must reveal your social inferiority feeling by mingling freely with your admirers, not knowing what to say to them or how to say it, or you must shut yourself completely away from other people, now as before. Only now it is infinitely more difficult because you have become a celebrity.

That, precisely, is the present personality predicament of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. To escape a painful shyness he has thrust himself into the one position in the world where he cannot possibly avoid feeling shy continually.

Lindbergh's determined effort to hide from the countless genuine well-wishers whom he has attracted to himself by his dramatic performances is not a new development by any means. It began toward the close of his triumphal tour of 75 American cities immediately following his trans-Atlantic flight. Reporters began to find difficulty getting interviews, Mayors and welcoming committees began to have trouble finding their famous guest; crowds who packed landing fields got splashed with mud thrown up by his plane.

No one should blame Lindbergh for these inevitable incidents; he simply had reached the limit of his social endurance. He could take any amount of punishment from the forces of nature but he could stand very little friendly personal contact with his fellow humans.

When Lindbergh fled America, it was said that he was being driven from his native country by publicity attendant upon the Hauptmann case. I may be wrong, but I don't believe that. I think the thing that was getting Lindbergh then was this: he felt again the grisly internal grindings of that same social complex which had once driven him from college books to stunt flying.

He knew that many thousands of people were blaming him unreasonably for various things he had done and had not done during the investigation and prosecution of the kidnaping case. Also, he realized that anything he might do in America, any flying stunt or participation in national affairs which might otherwise merit applause, must be handicapped severely by Americans' reaction to recent events. I think that Col. Lindbergh went to England to find a new and untrammeled field of operations for starting his irrepressible personality drive over again, rather than to escape publicity.

HE found this new field. He engaged with Dr. Alexis Carrel in a series of fascinating demonstrations of an "artificial heart"—technically an improved perfusion pump for circulating blood through living animal tissues removed from the body — which Col. Lindbergh had worked on in New York. That was spectacular, like all the Lindbergh performances.

In his most recent retirement from the social world of his admirers it is exceedingly interesting that the Colonel elected to purchase the bleak Illiec Isle which is joined by land, at low tide, with an island called St. Gilds, where Dr. Carrel spends his summers and maintains a laboratory.

One more social crucifixion which Col. Lindbergh had to bear seems important. While dodging admirers and detractors with equal sincerity in 1936, the American stunt flyer was invited by Gen. Goering, Hitler's military manager, to visit Germany and study the progress of aviation there.

The air field that Lindbergh landed on in Germany had been elaborately stage-set with hundreds of German military planes. Our diplomatically naive American was duly impressed. Goering greeted Lindbergh like an old crony, dispensed with the formality which the flying Colonel despises, and urged him to go where he pleased, see whatever he fancied, poke into the German business of aviation in whatever manner he desired.

That appealed to Lindbergh. Here was no social barrier to be met. He didn't have to put up a convincing, socially charming front to the Germans. As a matter of fact, the German personality type is close to Lindbergh's.

Lindbergh apparently accepted the Germans' own estimate of themselves. He made three visits to the Reich and was shown each time the most dramatic aviation developments available. He told important Englishmen that German air forces were vastly superior to Russian.

Later he accepted, in a bewildered way, the second highest decoration in the power of Germany to bestow—Goering pinned it on his coat without warning at an informal dinner given by the Ambassador, Hugh Wilson.

The ensuing press reaction was precisely what Lindbergh did not expect. It takes more than a flair for the spectacular to win acclaim in international politics. America rose in protest. Secretary Ickes made a bitingly oratorical attack upon Col. Lindbergh. And the Colonel, in a fury of resentment, threatened to move to Germany, as Goering suggested.

That he did not do so is attributed by some authorities to the persuasion of friends. I credit, instead, Lindbergh's own finely developed sense of superiority values. He knew that he had been thrown for a popularity loss by Gen. Goering and this type of defeat is peculiarly galling to Lindbergh. So he flew to Illiec to be alone with his wife and children. There he could assuage his social wounds with unadulterated praise and lay his plans, with that same invincible personality drive which has kept him in the focus of world attention for 12 years, toward the accomplishment of his next, stupendous attention-compelling project.

A Flaming Dessert

By George Rector

FOR a long time the only flaming dessert that was ever attempted or served in the American home was the Christmas plum pudding, which received a glass of brandy, in true holiday spirit, after which it was ignited into a beautiful flame for all around the festive board to enjoy. The pudding was allowed to burn until the alcoholic content of the brandy had evaporated into thin air.

From this simple beginning we have taken courage and have graduated into flaming fruits, sweet omelets and last but not least the tiny pancakes known as crepes suzette.

Every one likes crepes suzette, and for an impressive company dessert they can't be beat. If the budget can't stand the three liqueurs which I have mentioned in my recipe, don't let that stop you, but go right ahead and compromise by using but one liqueur — and let that be cognac brandy. Moreover, brandy is packaged in different sizes and one can purchase the small size, which is one-half pint. This won't set you back very much and since we measure it out by the spoonful it will go quite a ways.

Now if yours is a household which has an assortment of liqueurs on hand, you will follow the recipe as I have written it. I would also suggest that you purchase the proper chafing dish, with an alcohol burner which comes with a large flat pan that sets directly over the flame. Or if you have a chafing dish with direct heat, it will answer the purpose all right.

At a recent dinner crepes suzette were served for dessert. Six were served to a portion and each one had been blazed in a different liqueur, starting with Maraschino, Cointreau, Grand Marnier, Benedictine, Chartreuse and Cognac. Pretty good ending for a pancake, wouldn't you say?

—o-o—

● THE FIRST THING to do is to prepare orange butter, as the flavor is improved if the butter stands several hours before using. Here are the ingredients:

One-half pound butter, grated rind of one orange, grated rind of one lemon, two tablespoons sugar, juice of half orange.

For the pancake batter use:

One cup flour, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup milk, three eggs, unbeaten, butter for frying pan.

—o-o—

Mix flour, sugar and salt. Add eggs and milk slowly, stirring until very smooth. Then strain the mixture. French pancakes are made one at a time. Butter a small frying pan (about five inches in diameter). If you have two or three of these small pans so much the better; you can turn them out faster. Pour a small amount of batter in the buttered pan, just enough to cover the bottom of the pan. You see the secret of cooking these pancakes is to have them very thin—hence the name "crepes." Drop one tablespoon of batter into the greased frying pan, tilting the pan so the batter will spread out evenly to edge of pan. These little pancakes brown quickly and they should be turned with a spatula. Keep on cooking them until the batter has been used, greasing the frying pan each time with soft paper and very little butter.

● As for the liqueur sauce:

This part of the recipe is prepared at the dining table. A great opportunity for showmanship and the guests usually get a thrill out of it too. Set the crepes suzette chafing dish before you at the dining table. Also have alongside of you the stack of thin pancakes (which you have made in the kitchen), the orange butter and three liqueurs. The liqueurs are a bottle of Benedictine, a bottle of Grand Marnier and a bottle of Cognac. Ignite the alcohol burner and place the pan over it. Drop two tablespoons of orange butter in the pan and when it has melted put in four pancakes. With a spoon and fork toss and turn them around until thoroughly heated. Right now pour quickly over the pancakes two tablespoons of each of the liqueurs. Ignite the liqueurs and let flame for a moment. Now fold the pancakes in half and fold again so that they are now folded in quarters. Serve three or four to a portion with the sauce remaining in the pan, and then proceed with the next batch and repeat the operation.

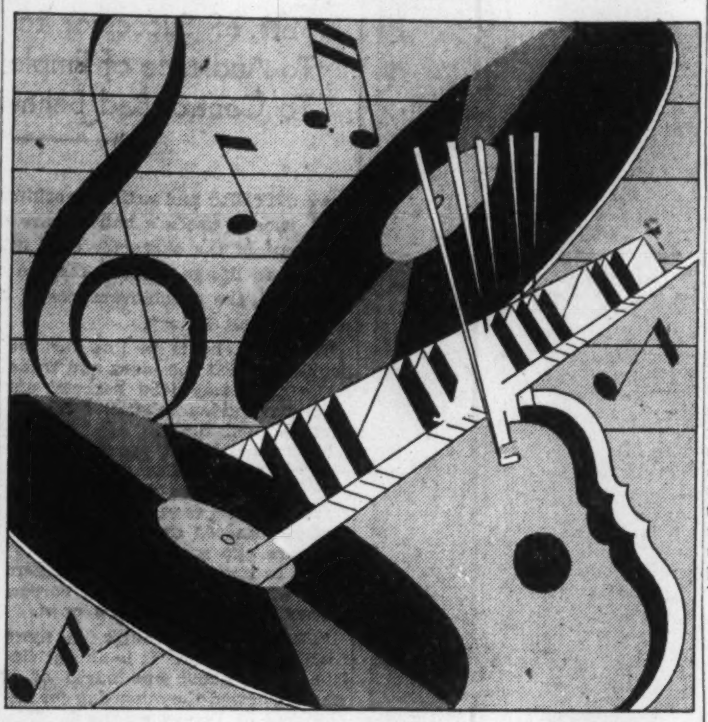
Someone has asked for a recipe for date muffins. Here it is:

Two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup butter, two tablespoons sugar, two eggs, well beaten, one cup milk, one cup pitted dates.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream butter and sugar together and add well beaten eggs, mix thoroughly. Add flour mixture to butter and egg mixture, alternately with milk. Add dates last, which should be cut in quarters. Turn into well greased muffin pans, filling about two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Off The Records

By Thomas B. Sherman



THE Columbia recording of the Schubert B Flat Major Symphony by the London Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Sir Thomas Beecham is a prize item in every respect. The symphony itself is a continuous delight and though it does not aspire to the importance of the C Major Symphony its length is much better suited to its content. The unlabored lyricism of all four movements give it all the impetus and interest sustaining quality that it needs.

All of the director's efforts have been directed toward conserving its lyricism and enhancing its grace, and his success in these respects makes the performance as nearly perfect as one could expect if one is willing to concede the correctness of this approach. Tempos are deliberate but the pulse is so steady and the inward propulsion so unremitting and so effortless that it never seems to drag.

Compared to Beecham's recording, the earlier Victor record made by Leo Blech and the Berlin Philharmonic seems rough and overbold. A closer comparison, however, shows that there is much to be said for Blech's interpretation and indicates that a choice between the two would have to be a matter of personal taste. Beecham is more subtle in his shading, more songlike in his rhythms and his orchestral texture is smoother; Blech presents the music with more contrast and more animal spirits. Collectors who can afford it would do well to possess both volumes. The Beecham volume includes part of the Entr'acte music from Schubert's "Rosamunde."

COLUMBIA ALSO presents another major recording in Walter Gieseking's performance of Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata. This is the first recording made by Gieseking in the United States, and it is significant both as tour de force of demoniac virtuosity and unchallengable musicianship. The storm and strife of the last movement should meet the approval of the most uncompromising Beethoven addicts.

There are two other recordings of the "Appassionata" that come to mind, one by Schnabel and one by Harold Bauer, and there are probably others. But the only one which can stand comparison with that of Gieseking is the forceful performance by Schnabel.

Hearing the Brahms Alto Rhapsody as performed by Marian Anderson with the assistance of the Philadelphia Orchestra and the University of Pennsylvania Choral Society is an affecting musical experience and one that shouldn't be avoided arbitrarily. But whether this may be attributed to Brahms or Miss Anderson is an open question. The dark and joyless music is probably a faithful reflection of Goethe's poem "Hartzreise im Winter," but it is music that few persons could like for its own sake.

Those who do like it, however, will rejoice in the present interpretation, for Miss Anderson not only has the appropriate vocal quality but also the emotional intensity that the music must have. The accompaniment offered by the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy is no more than ordinary.

The volume of three records also includes three Brahms songs sung by Miss Anderson: "Dein Blaues Auge," "Der Schmied" and "Immer Leiser Mein Schlummer."

THE PRIZE single record of the month is that of Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz" made by Arturo Toscanini and the London B. B. C. orchestra. If Toscanini could force the "William Tell" overture to sound as if it were being performed for the first time it is not surprising that he could make something startlingly fresh out of Weber's well-worn but more grateful masterpiece. The exhilaration of the more animated passages makes dance theme—further stressed by a subtle attenuation of the first notes of each measure—even more haunting.

It is not unusual to regard the various sons of Sebastian Bach as young men with a poor understanding of their father's genius. This may have been so, but the Concerto for Orchestra in D Major by Karl Philip Emanuel Bach can rightly be regarded as a continuation of a style made significant by the elder Bach and by Vivaldi. Musical sharks can undoubtedly point out that the composer was more the harmonist than the contrapuntalist. Even so the music of this concerto has more in common with its antecedents than its successors. And more important still, it is music rich in content and skillfully scored.

The excellent recording made by Koussevitzky and the Boston orchestra (Victor, two records) was done by a small orchestra from the transcription by Maximilian Steinberg.

A NOVELTY in the July releases which may be described as more arresting than important is the Concerto for Two Pianos by Harl McDonald, the Philadelphia composer (Victor, three records). The music is performed impressively by Jeanne Behrends, Alexander Kelberine and the Philadelphia orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. In general, the piece is overscored. It is too rich in color, too lavish in orchestration and makes too much of commonplace material.

Felix Weingartner, the dependable stand-by of the Columbia staff of artists, makes an interesting contribution to the July discs with an authoritative recording of Beethoven's "Viennese Dances." The album also includes the Entr'acte music from Beethoven's "Egmont."

Gay Pins Are Tied Up With Casual Mode

They Are Being Worn to Hold Turbans and Snoods in Place.

By Sylvia Stiles

THE fate of many a summer costume will hang on a huge hairpin. Just as the odd-looking lapel gadgets were so typical of the trend of spring styles, so these gay pins are tied up with the casual mode for summer. The most popular ones are at least five inches long and are being worn to hold turbans and snoods in place. It's very chic to select two of the pins and after winding a fishnet turban about your head, tuck these pins into the twisted topknot so that they stick out like horns. Some of the pins are gilded, others are enameled bright colors. One navy pin and another red one garnish a white fishnet turban in the accepted manner.

ONE FAD leads to another with such rapidity that a fashion-wise girl must keep constantly on her toes. The vogue of snoods and fishnet head coverings which has brought the big hairpins into the limelight also has created an interest in lisle mesh hosiery. Stockings match snoods according to the latest version of modish companions. Yes, color as well as mesh is due to harmonize. So choose white mesh socks with white snoods, yellow ones with yellow snoods, and if you are going in for those difficult violet shades, you had better hunt around for a pair of violet sports stockings.

AS WE'VE SAID BEFORE, no summer sport frock is complete without its little jacket or some type of sweater. Rivaling the knitted models are some cleverly designed cotton chenille boleros. They're created according to the candlewick idea with tufted designs on cotton foundations. They're especially nice for wear over sun-backed dresses, although they are being used with every type of summer outfit from a bathing suit to an evening dress. Mrs. J. Douglas Streett is among the smartly dressed St. Louisans who wear these jackets with casual sports clothes.

CHAMBRAY and gingham have joined the fashion parade, and are as likely to be seen on the city streets as the country gardens. It is difficult to say whether striped chambray or plaid gingham has more admirers, both are being accepted with such enthusiasm. One especially attractive chambray frock has wide stripes allying white with a color. Mrs. J. Bruce Butler has been wearing a blue and white version. The full skirt ties at the front and the tailored shirtwaist has those popular three-quarter-length sleeves.

WITH COTTON queening it over the silks and rayons for daytime wear, it is not surprising to find that evening fashions are similarly affected. The old-fashioned sheer materials are the ones which are gaining in importance for summer dance frocks. Printed Swiss organdie in flower patterns is used for some youthful dresses that recently arrived in town. Dimities, imported plaid dotted Swiss, chintzes and figured muslins, cotton metalasse, embroidered organdie and voile are examples of the trend. Incidentally the dresses made of these quaint fabrics aren't simple, inexpensive models, but are classified as "exclusive" styles.

—o-o—

MORE EVIDENCES of the vogue of black and white are seen about St. Louis. It begins to look as if a sheer black frock accented by white accessories represents the ultimate in urban chic for summer wear. Typical of the trend is a costume worn by Mrs. J. Roy Brashear—the dress a semi-tailored model of black sheer material enhanced by white lingerie touches and the hat one of those "streamlined" models with a scooped brim at the front and a quill sticking up at the back. The black straw of which her hat is made is completely covered with white veiling, stretched tight over its surface. The black quill has twisted strands of the veiling wound around it.

SINCE HATS continue whimsical and therefore significant to the success of a costume, it is interesting to observe the types being worn with dinner frocks as well as with daytime ensembles. The smartest dinner hat is small and extreme of line. Mrs. Horace Epstein has a tricky hat which she wears for restaurant dining. It is an off-the-face poke bonnet that defies the rules and does without a crown. However, the back of the brim is turned up to meet the front so no crown is needed. The white fabric straw of which this clever chapeau is made is as striking as its silhouette. Tiny flecks of glistening cellophane are scattered over its surface.

FASHION DESIGNERS may have utilized most of the feminine frills of the Gay Nineties in their creation of spring and summer fashions, but that doesn't mean they have discarded the period. Now they are taking the masculine styles of the period and are adapting them to women's clothes for the fall season. Some of the advance millinery themes are very mannish while a long jacket which the boys of the 90s wore is the pattern of the latest collegiate model. Even its lapels, slit pockets and close-set buttons are being copied.

The SCREEN In REVIEW

By Colvin McPherson

LAST Tuesday evening, in company with Miss Alice Brady, Miss Arleen Whelan, Miss Binnie Barnes, Miss Marian Anderson, Cesar Romero, Eddie Collins, Lowell Thomas, the cafe society of Springfield, Ill., and other such journalistic laborers as ourselves, we attended the world premiere of "Young Mr. Lincoln," a handsome souvenir film just turned out by Mr. Darryl F. Zanuck's artisans. The same picture now has entered into its local run at the Fox Theater and is available in exactly the same form as on Tuesday, except that there will be no applause whenever the audiences recognize the orchidaceous Miss Brady or Miss Whelan in homespun raiment.

This "Young Mr. Lincoln" is not "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," the current Pulitzer prize play. Last fall, when the Sherwood drama made its smashing debut in Washington, D. C., the movies announced a Lincoln cycle, to follow immediately. Samuel Goldwyn would have Gary Cooper split rails, some other magnate had other plans, the furor threatened to make Honest Abe a rival of the Rover Boys. Out of it all came "Young Mr. Lincoln" and next fall, likely, the country will see the picture version "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," with its original star, Raymond Massey.

And, although the public may have suspected otherwise, "Young Mr. Lincoln" steals nobody's thunder and there is not one scene in the picture that matches any part of the play. With Henry Fonda playing the gangling Illinois lawyer in his honest and individual way, there can be no comparisons to Massey's work and no contrasts.

The film, from an original screenplay by Lamar Trotti and directed by John Ford, does not show a developing statesman but a droll and shrewd young man just winning his first success in law. The celebrated Armstrong case, of which we heard in grade school, the one in which Lincoln freed his client by showing that the witness didn't see the murder by the light of the moon because the moon was too far gone at the time, seems to be the basis of this murder trial.

That Lincoln scored this success when he was a noted attorney, that he dropped an expensive practice and politics to handie it, is not the point. "Young Mr. Lincoln" does not avow its authenticity nor, in the usual manner of movies, deny it. Much of its witty dialogue is familiar and the portrait of Lincoln as a young man is probably very accurate.

The narrative is filled with symbolism, from the time Abe makes his first political speech until he walks on into the lightning at the close. Director Ford augments the writer's work with his close attention to details of realism, his mixing of light and shadow, his poetic insight into the main character. The sequence devoted to the murder itself—an end-of-holiday brawl in a backwoods clearing—is one of the most photographically beautiful and dramatic accomplishments in all of Ford's distinguished career.

It is this mastery of each scene that helps Ford overcome such shabby details as paper flowers on Ann Rutledge's grave, the ridiculous presence of Donald Meek as Lincoln's opposition and Miss Whelan's inexperienced acting as the young wife of one of the men on trial.

Fonda is stanchly American in the title role and by virtue of a special nose, startlingly suggests the early photographs of Lincoln, although it is to be wondered whether the same kind of schnozzle also gave Lincoln's voice a head-cold stuffiness at times. Miss Brady also comes in for applause, with various scenes that demonstrate anew her undenied dramatic ability.

"Young Mr. Lincoln" is not an epic, in fact is hardly longer than the average Class A feature. It is supplemented on the Fox program by "Boy Friend," a Jane Withers thriller which is kept strictly to the level of juvenile appeal.

SINCE the Ambassador management decided "Only Angels Have Wings" and "Some Like It Hot" were good enough to hang onto for another seven days and the Missouri management remains satisfied, after some weeks, with "Union Pacific" and "Rose of Washington Square," the week's film imports are limited to the Fox, Loew's and the St. Louis.

"Calling Dr. Kildare," at Loew's, is the second of the Kildare series and is an enlightening example of what makes the Barrymores a family of great actors. Brother Lionel takes the spotlight right away from Lew Ayres and if the powers that be in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer know their business they'll start calling the series "Old Dr. Gillespie" instead of "Young Dr. Kildare."

The sour-pussed, savage old M. D. played by Barrymore is a half dozen times as interesting as the milk-fed young medico represented by Ayres. When he makes a speech adding the right to health to the usual "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness," he desrves applause.

"Bridal Suite," alternate feature at Loew's, is a romance for Robert Young and Annabella. Slick-haired Bob is a young wastrel whose mother, Billie Burke, takes him to a psychiatrist, Walter Connolly, in Switzerland. Annabella, who runs a hotel, carries in the baggage, does the cooking and plays a zither, is the cure for what's wrong with Robert.

"For Love or Money," a new entry at the St. Louis, is a comedy romance in which Robert Kent and June Lang become acquainted and the plot takes care of itself. "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," in second-run or very late first-run, is the other feature.

"Only Angels Have Wings" has much for those who did not see it in its first week at the Ambassador. Grim drama of pioneer aviation in a South American country, it is filled with hazardous flights, tragedies, old scores to be settled and new love to be won. Howard Hawks molds the diverse elements into convincing situations and gets strong co-operation from Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Thomas Mitchell, Rita Hayworth and Richard Barthelmess. Barthelmess, who already has made a comeback by virtue of this performance, is especially worth going to see.

Opening Comedy By Town Square Players on Friday

A UNIQUE summer theater venture will get under way Friday evening when the Town Square Players, a new non-professional group, presents their first play, Elmer Rice's "See Naples and Die," on the roof of the seven-story General Van Building, at Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue.

The comedy drama will be repeated on Saturday evening and on two later Friday and Saturday evenings, June 16 and 17, June 23 and 24. Three other plays will follow the same schedule of six performances, on Friday and Saturday evenings only. These are "The Guardsman," to open June 30, "Now You Chase Me," on July 21, and "Star-Spangled," Aug. 11.

"See Naples and Die," new to St. Louis, was done in New York in the 1929-1930 season, with Claudette Colbert, Roger Pryor, Pedro de Cordoba and Beatrice Herford in the cast. The setting is the terrace of a hotel near Sorrento overlooking the Bay of Naples. The characters are, for the most part, expatriates of various European countries, and an American heiress and her discarded home-town suitor.

Betty Wilkinson, who plays Claudette Colbert's part in the Town Square production, was to appear in the dancing sequences of Deanna Durbin's new picture, "First Love," but has delayed her departure for Hollywood until after the St. Louis season closes. Dee Wentz, who has the role of an American tourist, has had professional experience in "Craig's Wife," "Death Takes a Holiday," "The Return of Peter Grimm" and other plays, with the Nash Players in Michigan, the Dennis Players in Colorado and the Olbrecht Stock Company in Houston, Tex. Others in the cast, all players with radio training or advanced theater experience, are Ray Hootman, Gene Marshall, Harriet Barnes, Helen Anzulovich, Ann Bono, Fred Elbrecht, Warren Smith, Ed Thurman, Nelly Pratte, Eugene Banks, Joseph Biondo, L. J. Herzberg and Frank Klockman.

David Warfield Says Stage Is As Thrilling As Ever

By Mark Barron

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).

NOW that George M. Cohan has temporarily deserted the stage until he has seen his annual quota of Giant baseball games, the other checkup on today's schedule is that of a more determinedly retiring and legendary star—David Warfield.

Now a spry and jolly man of 72 years, he is still one of the bright lights of that glamorous era on Broadway, ruled by David Belasco and later by Flo Ziegfeld. It is just 15 years since he gave his last performance on the stage and he doesn't intend to appear there ever again.

"You wanted to see if I was still alive?" he asked as he welcomed this reporter into a spacious apartment high above New York's Central Park, an apartment filled with museum pieces of tapestries, paintings, rugs and carvings. There are Corots and Gobelins, the early Italians and the Gothics hanging on the rich walls.

"It has taken a long time to collect them, but you must know that it takes a long time to collect when you want to live your lifetime with things that will never clash with you.

"But things change little once they are established. The actors, actresses and plays of today are just as thrilling as they were in my day. I still believe that an inspiring actor or actress, a star, must have a special gift. That is, they cannot be taught their trade. It's either a chemical or psychological result. Either you are a star actor or you are not."

Warfield, who has spent most of his 15 years of retirement wandering from his treasure-laden apartment to his pinochle games at the Lambs' Club, is undoubtedly Broadway's one actor who retired with an ample fortune.

Only a month ago the Federal Government reported his income tax return and from their figures he has something like $6,000,000. He didn't make all that in such of his hit plays as "The Music Master," "The Return of Peter Grimm," "The Merchant of Venice." The sums he earned in those plays he invested in motion picture production and vaudeville chains and these profits he added to those in other shows he did with such costars as Weber and Fields, Lillian Russell, Marie Dressler and Fay Templeton.

"I was always arguing with managers," he said as he pushed his priceless Corots and Gobelins to point out a portrait of himself in a Jewish peddler's costume, clutching a half-dozen derbies.

"William A. Brady didn't want me to do a Jewish character I had in a sketch in a show he did. But I did it in the closing performance and it made such a hit that it finally led me to one of my greatest parts in 'The Auctioneer.'"

Warfield's earliest hit, and it is still one of his favorite bits of business, happened when he was playing with John Russell's comedians. They went uptown to play a baseball game with a team recruited from another musical show. Warfield costumed himself as a Jewish merchant, chopped up bits of ice from the water bucket and went among the crowd hawking the chunks of ice for sale as souvenirs of the game.

"It was strictly for a laugh," Warfield said. "But, it made such a stir that in the near future I found that jest was responsible for several jobs I got."

David Warfield is definitely retired as far as his acting career is concerned; only now and then he looks up to anniversaries. He still maintains a keen interest in his pinochle games, in his art treasures and in the theater.

But his interest in the latter is now a front-of-the-footlights viewpoint.

THE mortality rate of Broadway shows, some good and some bad, increases as the coming of hot weather adds a new cause of fatality. Among the casualties lately was the flophouse drama, "Clean Beds," which took a solid thumping from the critics and closed after only four performances.

That seemed to be the end of "Clean Beds," but it may yet rise to haunt its assassins. For James M. Timony, who has been manager for Mae West practically ever since she started her Broadway and Hollywood careers, was the producer of "Clean Beds," and, on closing it, he announced that he will reopen the drama in the fall at about the same time that Miss West will arrive here in her new play, "Up the Ladder."

So the reviewers, much against their will judging by their current denouncements of the play, may be compelled to go back again and look upon this "Tobacco Road" section of life that could happen only in one of those dark and hidden corners of a metropolitan city. Timony has closed plays, seemingly failures, before, and reopened them again, sometimes with lucrative results. And in "Clean Beds" he begins with an intriguing if sordid story that is an avid and lusty picture of a 25-cents-a-night flophouse.

Here is a sort of "Grand Hotel" panorama of derelicts. It is a dismal, depressing room with cots for half a dozen tenants. It looks out upon just as desolate a street with the lights of a cheap electric sign flashing on and off in nerve-racking monotony.

In this overcrowded room there passes a parade of vicious and tragic people that would make the parade through a Grand Hotel lobby seem a mere handful.

It is not a particularly pleasant picture, but it is candid reporting of a corner of metropolitan life that exists even if too often ignored.

Charles Coburn Back East to Stage Annual Mohawk Play Festival

CHARLES COBURN, character actor, has said goodbuye to Hollywood until September and has gone East to plunge into the job of staging the Mohawk Drama Festival, annual summer event at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., which this year will present seven plays, July 11 to Aug. 26.

The summer schedule is not complete as yet, but the commitments include Walter Hampden in John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," Cornelia Otis Skinner in Edward Sheldon's "Romance"; Eugenie Leontovich in Helen Jerome's new play, "Charlotte Corday"; Thomas Mitchell in Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," and Moliere's "School for Husbands," in which Coburn will play Sganarelle.

The Mohawk Drama Festival, of which Coburn is the director, is a major summer theater attraction in the East. It draws its audience from every state in the Union. Located on the 100-acre woodland campus of old Union College, and within an hour's drive of New York State's playgrounds in the Adirondacks, Catskills, Berkshires, Saratoga Spa and Lake George, the festival is an important item covered by organized tours of historic haunts along the Hudson.

The festival was founded in 1935 by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn and Dixon Ryan Fox, president of Union College. It is chartered by the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York as an educational enterprise and is the only professional theater in the world chartered by a board of education.

'Queen High' Goes Into Rehearsal as Opera's Second Show

WITH "Rose Marie" successfully in exhibition, the Municipal Opera staff has turned its attention to production of the second show, "Queen High," which opens a week from tomorrow night. As the first musical of the season, "Rose Marie" has a 10-night run, all other shows run a week each.

"Queen High," one of the gayer musical plays in this year's repertory, will bring back three comedians of past seasons, Billy House, Oscar Shaw and Melisso Mason, and a prima donna long an opera favorite, Gladys Baxter. Hazel Hayes, new singing star, will make her first local appearance. Duke McHale will return as a featured dancer in the cast which includes Doris Patston, Earl Oxford and Al Downing.

The book of "Queen High" is a collaboration by Laurence Schwab, former Municipal Opera productions director, and B. G. DeSylva. DeSylva wrote the lyrics and Lewis E. Gensler the music. "Queen High," not previously presented at the Municipal Theater, opened at the Ambassador Theater in New York in September, 1926, and ran nearly a year.

The Municipal Opera box office in the lobby of the Arcade Building will be open from noon until 5 p. m. today, the box office at the theater in Forest Park from noon until 9 p. m.

Boyer, Irene Dunne To Be Teamed Again

Charles Boyer and Irene Dunne, whose co-starring film, "Love Affair," is proving to be one of the most successful releases of 1939, are to be together again in "The Modern Cinderella." which has lately gone into production, under the direction of John M. Stahl.

"The Modern Cinderella," based on James M. Cain's latest novel, precedes production of "First Love," the Deanna Durbin vehicle in which Boyer is also scheduled to appear. Miss Durbin, meanwhile, will make "After Schooldays," under the direction of Henry Koster.

New Walt Disney Feature, 'Pinocchio,' Nearly Ready

HOLLYWOOD, June 3 (AP).

WRITERS and artists, working under the direction of a man who usually needs a haircut, are taking the reform-school tendencies out of the character of a little fellow named Pinocchio. He is coming to life in cartoon fashion with all the buoyancy of the first Two Pigs, the mischievousness of Donald Duck and the unfailing humor of Walt Disney.

Therefore, he is in line for the popularity that the ideas and trade make of Disney (the barbers' enemy) have given to similar figures of fable and fancy.

'We're getting it rounded out now," is the way Disney speaks today of his second feature. It was started, with a vague story idea and several hundred sketches, a couple of years ago when "Snow White" began to impress even the bankers from whom Disney had to borrow money to keep the doors open.

"Pinocchio," of course, is more than rounded out. It is almost finished, and about one-fourth of it was previewed the other day for an audience of Disney employes. The story is completed, but all of the animation has not been done because it has to be fitted to the dialogue and sound effects.

Walt and his merry men enjoyed the same problems (in the Disney plant, everything is enjoyable) with this story that they did in "Snow White"—mainly that of retaining the basic idea while inventing a new story and of giving every character, no matter how minor, a personality.

In the original, for example, the Cricket was more or less incidental. In the Disney version, the Cricket becomes Pinocchio's conscience.

"Boy, did we have fun with that," laughs Disney. In order to make our hero boyish, we had to make him less of a brat. He is a brat, you know.

"But still he has to get into all kinds of trouble and so we have the Cricket advising him. He doesn't always take the advice of his conscience and then, when he gets in a mess of some kind, he begs for help. Then it's too late for the Cricket to do anything.

"I guess 'Pinocchio' sets a record for villains—there are five of 'em. Heck, we couldn't have that many heavies, so we make two of them, the Fox and the Cat, comedy villains. The Fox is a slick guy, but funny.

"And the Cat, well, I guess you'd call him sort of a stooge—a kind of 'Dopey-like' character."

The non-speaking Dopey, tail-wagger of the dwarf parade, was the individual star of "Snow White." To hear some of the Disney folks tell about the Cat, he's already wrapped up the picture and walked away with the raves and reviews.

An innovation, which Disney says he is sure will not destroy any of the illusion, is the use of recognizable voices. Nearly all of Hollywood's character voices not bound to Disney's competitors tried out for the dubious honor of working unseen. The "doubles" were paid their regular salaries, but they are not getting screen credit.

Walter Catlett, flippant comedian, doubles for the crafty Fox and Don Barclay, graduate of the English music halls, is the voice of the Cat. The nasal twang of Cliff Edwards, "Ukelele Ike," will give voice to the Cricket. Christian Rub, Evelyn Venable and young Dickie Jones, the latter as Pinocchio, are some of the other doubles.

The crowded studio where these cartoons are made resembles a factory, but you are there only a short while before you become aware of an unusual spirit: It's like that of the Dwarfs, whose theme song was "Whistle While You Work."

This is due in part to the nature of the work, but mainly to the enthusiasm and informality of the head man and the guiding genius. His workers address him by his first name, joke with him, rib him about his long hair. (It's often three months between haircuts.)

Everyone seems to be having fun. And Walt, with his feet cocked on a desk cluttered with replicas of the animals and figures he has brought to life, appears to be enjoying it the most.

Writer Assigned To 'Grapes of Wrath'

Nunnally Johnson, one of the screen's more noted writers, has been assigned to write the screen play and act as associate producer of 20th Century-Fox' screen production of "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck's sensational best selling novel.

The book is hailed by critics as one of the greatest creations of American literature, and has created a furor because of the startling frankness of its dramatic story.

Orson Welles in Sensational Comedy on Knickerbocker Playhouse

John Barrymore Stricken; Orson Welles Flies To Take His Place On New Dramatic Program

Orson Welles, brilliant young star of Mercury Theatre and producer of the thrilling "Mars" broadcast, appears tonight as guest artist and leading man in a side-splitting romantic comedy on Knickerbocker Playhouse.

This hilarious play, "Business Before Pleasure," stars Orson Welles in a fast-moving comedy role as a romantic dramatic genius.

Welles plays the role of Theodore Kennedy, a man who is "womanshy" because of the many women who had designs on him in the past and escaped their "clutches" at all costs. But his new beautiful secretary, equally as determined to win him as a Russian princess, she weaves an ingenious plot to "man handle" her boss and gets into one breathless escapade after another in her attempt to inveigle her way into his heart. How Theodore finally succumbs to the very feminine wiles he so thoroughly dislikes provides one of the most entertaining comedies in years.

Welles will receive the famous Knickerbocker Award tonight from Elliott Lewis, leading man on Knickerbocker Playhouse, in recognition of his work in radio.

Don't miss Orson Welles in "Business Before Pleasure," tonight at 8 p. m. over KMOX.

PROF. ROY S. GLASGOW, head of the electrical engineering department of Washington University, discussed television in a talk at a luncheon of the Scottish Rite Club Wednesday at the York Hotel. Mentioning the many problems and difficulties which are delaying, and will delay, the advent of television in St. Louis, he said that broadcast band radio sets should be purchased without any regard to television prospects. Television, he declared, will be only an adjunct to the present broadcast entertainment and imformative programs. When television does become a fact in the home, he said, one will need a separate television set or will be able to use a television sight set in connection with the sound system of his regular broadcast band receiver.

Tuesday, at 1 p. m., the CBS net will carry the presentation of the William S. Paley Amateur Radio Award to Wilson E. Burgess, a 29-year-old department store clerk, of Westerly, R. I., for his work with his station, W1BDS, for 56 hours without a break during the New England hurricane of September last, and the rescue period thereafter. Deems Taylor, the composer and music commentator, will be one of Clifton Fadiman's Information, Please, aids. Elsa Maxwell, the purveyor of parties and other entertainment, will be one of the Inside Stories guests.

Beginning July 2, Jim Ameche, brother of Don, and Gale Page will carry on for 13 weeks for Charles Boyer in the Hollywood Playhouse period Sundays . . . George Burns and Gracie Allen have signed a contract with a different sponsor, effective in October. They will take a 13-week radio vacation before their new series starts . . . Basil Loughrane, producer of the Her Honor, Nancy James serial, becomes leading man in Bess Johnson's Hilltop House serial.

WGN's new transmitter setup, 25 miles northwest of the Chicago Loop, includes a tower aerial 750 feet high, which weighs 65 tons, rests on a single porcelain insulator less than 12 inches in diameter and is held upright by guy wires at two levels. The ground system consists of 120 strips of copper, each 800 feet long, radiating from the tower's base. The tower is banded with red and white for daytime warning to airplane pilots and has a flasher beacon system for night use.

THE National Association of Broadcasters is preparing an eight-point code of voluntary self-regulation for the commercial radio industry. Edward M. Kirby, Director of Public Relations for the association, which represents 95 per cent of the nation's broadcasting stations, told the National Council of Women details of the code were still being worked out. Kirby said the code would fix a floor of ethical standards and procedures below which no broadcaster would go, and upon which all could build competitively. The code, he said, would cover religious and political controversies, children's programs, advertising, news broadcasts and other matters.

MERGER OF BOY SCOUT UNITS IS ARRANGED

Mineral Area Council Groups Put Under St. Louis Jurisdiction.

Thirty-seven scout troops and three cub packs of the Mineral Area Council are now under the jurisdiction of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council as the result of a merger effected last week.

The consolidation, which became effective Thursday, was brought about at a meeting of scout executives May 25 at Bonne Terre, Mo. A total of 100 scout leaders from St. Francois, Washington, Warren, Reynolds, Dent, Crawford, Jefferson and Ste. Genevieve counties, which comprised the Mineral Area Council, attended. The St. Louis delegation was headed by Scout Commissioner H. D. McBride and Scout Executive John D. Wright.

At the conference, Wright outlined the new districts into which the Mineral Council will be divided and introduced the St. Louis scout executives who will supervise them.

Under the new arrangement, Warren County will be added to the Daniel Boone District under the direction of Guy L. Short. Short will supervise a district composed of Reynolds and Iron counties to be called Tomsauk District.

Lee Lane will direct activities in Franklin County, which will comprise a district in itself. Other staff members and the counties they will supervise are: J. E. Monaghan, Dent and Crawford; H. Max Nusser, Jefferson and Ste. Genevieve, and C. H. Laemmli, St. Francois and Washington. Names for these new districts are yet to be selected.

The Tree Houses at Camp Irondale, built 15 feet above the ground, are as yet unreserved for the opening session of the summer camp June 18. Twenty-four troops have already made reservations for the Adirondack shacks, the Indian tepees, and cabin units.

Plans for expansion of the Journalism Troop, with a course in journalism to be offered members, will be discussed at a meeting June 29 at 8 p. m. at St. Mark's School Hall, Minerva and Academy avenue.

The first section of the annual Cubs' and Dads' Outing is being held this week end at the Irondale reservation. The final section will be held next Saturday and Sunday.

SALESMEN'S GROUP TO MEET

Dinner Tuesday for New Association of Wholesale Men.

A dinner meeting of the Allied Salesmen's Association, organized recently by 100 St. Louis wholesale salesmen, will be held Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at Hotel De Soto.

Harry L. Cohen of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. has been elected president of the organization, the purpose of which is to promote co-operation among the salesmen and effect better relationships with retail merchants in the city and throughout the Middle West. Other officers are E. Volkerding and Carl Krieger, vice-presidents; I. Katz, secretary, and Ben Roewe, treasurer.

DON U. BATHRICK HAS BEEN appointed general sales manager for the Pontiac division of General Motors, succeeding C. P. Simpson, who has resigned to take a large Pontiac dealership in Houston, Tex. Bathrick joined the Chevrolet Motor Co. in 1927 and a year later was appointed zone manager at Portland, Me. In 1929 he went to Europe on a special assignment in connection with General Motors' purchase of the Opel auto concern. Early in 1930 he joined Pontiac, soon becoming assistant general sales manager. From the formation of the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac selling organization until its dissolution, he was its regional manager in Chicago. Since 1934 he has been Pontiac's assistant general sales manager in charge of the East.

M. N. JOHNSON, MANAGER IN St. Louis for the Ford Motor Co., was one of 30 managers of various Ford branches east of the Rocky Mountains who attended a conference with J. R. Davis, general sales manager, held recently in New York. He was a guest with the others at a dinner in the Ford building at the New York World's Fair.

WITH E. M. TABER, PONTIAC zone service manager, in charge, the final Pontiac Parts and Service Managers' Club for the season was held recently at the Coronado Hotel. In addition to Taber, who outlined a parts and service contest for the summer, speakers included Charles Morehead, of the Graulich Auto Sales Co., Evansville, Ind.; John Page of the Twin City Pontiac Co., Champaign, Ill.; Byron Speagle of the J. R. Michel Motor Sales, Taylorville, Ill., and M. D. Drake of the Downtown Pontiac Co., St. Louis. The last four were service managers who won honors in a March-April contest. The day after the meeting, they were Taber's guests at the baseball game.

THE WEBER IMPLEMENT & Auto Co., of which the Mound City Motors is a subsidiary and distributer of De Soto and Plymouth cars, will move its general offices and new car sales force and display to its new location, 4035 Lindell boulevard. THE BUILDING OF THE HARris Auto Co., 7915 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, which was recently appointed a Pontiac dealer, has been redecorated and equipped for Pontiac service. The firm is headed by W. S. Harris, who for 12 years was president of the Harris Chevrolet Co. at the same address. Announcement of the appointment of the company as a Pontiac dealer was made by L. W. Thomas, zone manager.

IN A SUMMARY OF THE 30 years during which the Hudson Motor Car Co. has manufactured autos, it is noted that the factory's payrolls have totaled more than a third of a million dollars. In the 30 years, the company has made more than 2,614,500 cars. It has spent more than $50,000,000 in newspaper advertising of its cars, William A. James, advertising and merchandising manager, says.

THE FIRM OF PATTERSON Brothers, 4335 Warne avenue, has been appointed a Studebaker dealer by William Newman, wholesale manager for A. R. Lindburg, Inc., distributer. Harold Patterson is president of the firm; A. R. Patterson, vice-president; C. S. Patterson, secretary-treasurer, and F. M. MacClurg, service manager. The firm's building, which it has occupied since 1933, contains 10,000 square feet of floor space and is completely equipped for Studebaker service.

J. W. BOWERS OUTSOLD ALL other Oldsmobile new car salesmen in the St. Louis zone in April, it was disclosed in a bulletin received last week by Fred F. Vincel, president of Fred F. Vincel, Inc., local Oldsmobile dealer, for which Bowers is a salesman. Bowers' 16 new car sales in April not only topped all his fellow salesmen in this territory, but also earned 32 sales points and landed him in the "two-star" salesman class. The Oldsmobile factory each year conducts a national honor club, membership in which is reserved for outstanding salesmen. It is in this club that Bowers has already gained two-star ranking for the year. Bowers has been a member of the club each year since its organization in 1936.

IN THE DODGE FACTORY IS a giant carburetor machine which supplies a correctly compounded fuel mixture to 170 engines undergoing simultaneous running in tests. In a month, the factory uses more than 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas for engine running-in purposes.

RAYMOND LOEWY, DEsigner of the new Studebaker Champion, recently introduced in the low price field, was one of two industrial designers winning $1000 awards in the annual design competition held by Lord & Taylor, the New York department store. The other winner was Walter Dorwin Teague.

RALPH L. PALMER, A SALES manager for an Arizona firm, arrived at Detroit May 24 from San Diego, Cal., driving his Graham Supercharger sedan, which he got Jan. 18, 1938, and had driven 103,976 miles in 491 days. He said he never had had the engine cylinder head off and had spent only $21.14 for gasoline and oil on the 2436 mile trip from San Diego to Detroit.

TWIN IGNITION, WHICH IS A feature of the engines powering the new Pan-American trans-Atlantic airplanes, has been used for years in the engines of Nash cars to insure smooth and economical performance and greater output of power.

R. J. MORRIS OF MOUNT GAMbier, South Australia, writes to the Packard factory that a Packard eight, which he purchased new in 1929, has gone more than 704,000 miles. Some mechanical work has been done on the engine at intervals of about 200,000 miles, he wrote, but virtually all its parts are the original ones. "There is no record of bearings being renewed," he says.

NEW MERRY-GO-ROUND IN the De Soto assembly plant consists of 24 moving "dollies," which start out carrying nothing but a radiator shell and return to the starting point—after making a complete circuit on the ovular-shaped conveyor system—with a full-fledged radiator and fender front-end assembly. The De Soto stamping plant, which contains huge, steel-jawed machines that form solid sheets of steel into graceful contours for the new cars, has sidewalls of almost solid glass, and a large portion of the roof is glass. The designer who planned the building won the 1937 Architectural Forum award sponsored by the Pittsburgh Glass Institute for the best use of glass in industrial buildings during that year. There are 40,000 panes of glass in the building, covering 90,000 square feet, or 52 per cent, of the wall and ceiling area. The glass panes provide ideal natural lighting for the workmen, making artificial lights unnecessary even on the cloudiest days. High - intensity mercury lamps give as good light at night.

CHARLES A. CHAYNE, BUICK chief engineer, lists the following safe driving suggestions compiled as a result of a questionnaire to six veteran Buick test drivers:

"Keep your mind on driving.

"Watch the cross roads—while you may have the right of way, the other fellow may not stop.

"Regulate your car speed according to road and traffic conditions. Obey speed laws.

"Check speed before entering turns—that is, slow up.

"Make use of your rear vision mirror and keep it in proper position. In overtaking traffic on the road and passing slower moving vehicles, use your rear view mirror and be sure lane is clear before you turn out to pass other cars.

"Do not pass cars on grades or blind turns, and stay on your own side of the road at all times.

"If a tire goes flat, avoid using brakes until car is traveling at moderate rate of speed.

"Do not attempt to make destination when tired or sleepy.

"It is bad practice to read street addresses when driving.

"Come to a full stop at the curb to look for a street number.

"Do not drive on the wrong side of the road to prevent what you may think will be an accident.

"Keep windshield clean. Do not attempt to drive with small clear spot for vision.

"Do not rely too much on your brakes when making stops. Let engine help brake down the car speed. On wet roads, do not disengage clutch until speed is below 10 miles per hour. This will help to avoid skidding.

"Learn by trial what your car will do when skidding.

"Keep radio volume low enough to hear railroad signals, ambulance or fire sirens and other car horns.

"Do not depend solely on rear view mirror when driving in reverse. Look back to see where you are going.

GENERAL MOTORS AND ITS divisions spent $3,646,754 in 1938 to protect the health and safety of 125,836 factory workers. The result was safety and health improvement for the fifth consecutive year, according to William S. Knudsen, president of the corporation.

AN AVERAGE OF MORE THAN 6000 miles per gallon of oil for three 1939 Willys-Overland cars on a run of 10,000 miles is reported by the factory. The test cars, all four-door sedans, were run on a circuit of 150 miles, each car carrying two passengers.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
SOCIETY NEWS SECTION

Martha Nicolaus Is Bride of T. M. Simmons

Reception at Bridlespur Hunt Club After Chapel Ceremony at Second Presbyterian Church — Honeymoon in South America.

THE chapel of the Second Presbyterian Church was adorned with masses of white blossoms and softly illuminated by candlelight for the wedding of Miss Martha Nicolaus, daughter of Louis J. Nicolaus, 4499 Lindell boulevard, and the late Mrs. Nicolaus, and Theodore Middleton Simmons of New Orleans, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor officiated in the presence of the families and out-of-town guests. Mr. Simmons is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Guernsey Simmons of New Orleans.

The chancel was transformed into a bower of white larkspur and lilies, intermingled with many tall white cathedral tapers. Burning candles marked the center aisle and were arranged before the windows at either side of the chapel. Mr. Nicolaus gave his daughter in marriage. Mrs. William H. Evans of Pittsburgh, the former Miss Betty Caulk of St. Louis, was her only attendant. Fisher Simmons of New Orleans, served as best man for his brother.

The bride was attired in a gown of exquisite ivory-toned rose point lace, over satin, made for her mother by French nuns in a convent abroad. The gown, a seamless princesse model, has a low square neckline, short sleeves, slightly widened at the shoulders, and a slim fitted skirt flaring into a short train. A full length ivory-tinted tulle veil was draped simply with a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a semi-shower of lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Mrs. Evans wore an empire gown of accordion-pleated ice blue chiffon. The bodice, with extremely high waistline, had short pleated sleeves and the straight skirt, pleated to mold the figure, swept into a short train. With her costume Mrs. Evans wore a Juliet cap of pearls and carried an armful of deep crimson roses, their stems stripped of foliage and bound with ice blue satin ribbon.

Mrs. William Perry Biddle of Washington, D. C., maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a costume of brown chiffon with a white hat. Mrs. Simmons, mother of the bridegroom chose French blue marquisette, trimmed with inserts of matching lace, with which she wore a French blue hat and an orchid corsage. Dr. and Mrs. Simmons are guests of her sister, Mrs. Genevieve Fisher Logan of the Gatesworth Hotel.

After the ceremony a reception for a few additional guests was held at the Bridlespur Hunt Club. White flowers were used in profusion throughout the club, with a bank of snapdragon and larkspur reaching from the floor to the ceiling in the lounge as a background for the receiving party. The U-shaped bridal table, covered with white satin, was arranged in the sunroom. A series of crystal cornucopias filled with lilies of the valley and gardenias decorated the table, which was lighted by white tapers in crystal candelabra. Guests were seated for dinner at small tables on the terrace, where lights concealed in the trees produced a soft moonlight effect.

Mr. Simmons and his bride will sail from New York on the Santa Elena Friday for Colombia, South America. They have taken a house at Bogota for several months, after which they will live in New Orleans. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Henry Nicolaus of the Park Plaza, and the late Mr. Nicolaus.

BRYN MAWR, Pa., June 3.

MISS LOUISE VAUCLAIN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Leonard Vauclain of Haverford, Pa., and Joseph Pulitzer Jr. of St. Louis, were married at Church of the Redeemer yesterday afternoon by the Episcopal Bishop of Pennsylvania, the Right Rev. Francis M. Taitt D. D., assisted by Canon Ernst C. Earp, rector of the church.

The fragrance of hundreds of white peonies used in decoration greeted more than 700 Philadelphians and out-of-town guests who filled the marble-pillared nave of the edifice before 4:30 o'clock, the time for the ceremony. Flowers were arranged on the window ledges, in clusters to mark ends of pews occupied by the families, and adorned the candle-lit altar, over which stands a tall arch of lacy wrought iron. Ferns were used in profusion in the chancel, in which stood many candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Mrs. Vauclain, who sat with her family at one side of the center aisle, wore a rose tinted crepe gown with a maroon velvet sash and maroon gloves meeting three-quarter length sleeves. Her rose-colored straw hat to match her costume was trimmed with maroon veiling. Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, who sat with the bridegroom's father and relatives on the other side, was in gray, a long crepe gown with a tulle bodice, with which she wore gray accessories and carried white orchids fastened to a black purse. Her small black hat was adorned with French blue ostrich tips.

It was a white wedding, the starched white chiffon gowns of the bride's attendants set off by touches of French blue velvet ribbon, and by the armfuls of blue delphinium, Ophelia roses and stephanotis which they carried.

The ushers, leading the procession to the altar, were followed by Miss Kate Davis Pulitzer, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and by the bridesmaids—Miss Elinor Pulitzer, his other sister, and Mrs. Cummins Catherwood, Mrs. George Strawbridge II, Miss Sally Ann Chapman, Mrs. Robert K. McInnes, Miss Hermione Barret and Mrs. Richard Benson, all of Philadelphia. They were gowned alike, their full skirts held wide at the hem, and their bodices made with bateau necklines and short sleeves secured at the elbows by French blue ribbon bows. Blue sashes were tied in front, with streamers to the floor. Broad brimmed white starched chiffon hats to match their gowns were banded in blue, the ribbons tied and reaching their waistlines.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, was preceded immediately by two flower girls—Anne Vauclain, her younger sister, and Constance Hamilton of New York. They, too, wore white—long full frocks with high waistlines, square necks and short puffed sleeves, trimmed with blue—and hats like those of the bridesmaids tied under their chins. They carried round bouquets of blue cornflowers.

Mr. Pulitzer was attended by William Julius Polk Jr. of St. Louis; three cousins of the bridegroom, Wickham Moore, also of St. Louis; Clement Clark Moore of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and Ralph McKittrick of Villa Nova, Pa., a former St. Louisan; Talbot Rantoul of Ipswich, Mass.; John Cromwell of New York, and the following Philadelphians: Samuel Matthews Vauclain III and William Elliot Vauclain, the bride's brothers; Henry P. McIlhenny, Edward Roberts, William S. Doughten II, Arthur E. Newbold III and Nicholas B. Wainwright.

After the ceremony a large reception was given at Broadlawn, the Rosemont (Pa.) estate of the bride's grandfather, Samuel Matthews Vauclain. The parents of the bride and bridegroom received with the wedding party near the hedge-bordered pool in the formal garden, with cedar trees in the background, and roses, phlox, peonies and rhododendron blooming in beds near by. Small tables adorned with spring flowers were scattered over the broad sweeping lawn and near the house on grassy terraces shaded by green awnings. On one of the terraces a string orchestra played, and a U-shaped table, decorated with white snap-

St. Louis Young Women to Return From Schools in East

NEW YORK, June 3.

WHITE dresses, flowers and beribboned diplomas take the lead in the minds of boarding school young women these first weeks in June, when many a St. Louis girl will close her books and start for home—which so often seems to be via New York.

Today is "Last Saturday" at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., where Anne Cary Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gates Williams; Audrey Smidt, niece of Mr. and Mrs. S. Cupples Scudder; Jane Houser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, and Julia Anne Leahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Leahy, are students. Farmington's "Last Saturday" is a custom which has been going on there for 99 years and it means a daisy chain, singing in the garden and the ceremony of "wishing on" the first year girls' school rings.

When Dorothy Jane Mahaffey and Audrey Stifel receive their diplomas this week end from Ethel Walker's in Simsbury, Conn., Miss Stifel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold G. Stifel, and Miss Mahaffey's sisters, Miss Adelaide and Betsy Mahaffey, and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr., and Mrs. William D. Orthwein II will be there to congratulate them.

At the graduation Wednesday morning, in the chapel of Miss Master's School in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., Georgianne Funsten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fairfax Funsten; Nancy Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horton Watkins, and Sheila Fraser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fraser, were all called to the stage to receive diplomas tied in lavender ribbons. The mothers of these three girls had come on for the graduation and class day on Tuesday, and are returning to St. Louis this week end. Mrs. Funsten has been at the Waldorf for two weeks. At Foxcroft, in Middleburg, Va., in the hunting country, there will be class day and graduation for Elinor Pulitzer, daughter of Joseph Pulitzer, and Ann Rutledge, daughter of Mrs. Lynton T. Block.

Also graduating yesterday were Margaret Ray Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Last Friday Mrs. Gregg had lunch with Mrs. Henry Fennimore Cooper, formerly Kitty Guy of St. Louis, in her duplex apartment atop 850 Park avenue. That afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Cooper and their children, Katherine, a debutante of this year; Susan, Jimmy and Henry, left for Cooperstown, N. Y., where they will spend the summer at Fynmere, their large gray stone house situated on a hillside and surrounded by extensive gardens.

With summer creeping up, New Yorkers are making plans for a quick getaway from the heat, and among those who have already started are Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Rand Jr. of 120 East End avenue, who have gone to their ranch at Santa Fe, N. M., where an altitude of 6970 feet makes for a desirable summer climate. During the next two weeks they will entertain Mrs. Rand's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Van Beuren King, who have been in Cuba on their honeymoon. The Kings will stop over briefly in New York en route to Santa Fe.

The J. D. Wooster Lamberts of 1120 Fifth avenue are others witn summer plans complete. Mrs. Lambert's daughter, Miss Marian Valle Turner, came from Miss Porter's School a few days ago to have some time in New York before accompanying her family to Watch Hill, R. I., where they will spend the summer.

From far and near dog lovers gathered last Saturday in Madison, N. J., for the annual Morris and Essex show—one of the largest in the country with its 4456 entries—held every year at Giralda Farms, the estate of Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge. Among the St. Louisans there to see the cocker spaniel, My Own Brucie, win "Best in Show," were Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly and Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case, the former Elsie Whittemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore. Mrs. Kennerly, who was at the Barclay Hotel last week end, had lunch with Mrs. Case at her house in nearby Morristown, N. J., before going to the dog show.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Godber and their daughter, Miss Daphne Godber, will sail for England Wednesday, June 7, on the Queen Mary, to return to their home in Regent's Park, London, after a two-months trip to South America, Barbados, Trinidad and Curacao. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Agnew, are in London. Mrs. Agnew is the former Miss Joyce Godber. During the years they spent in St. Louis, the Godbers lived in Brentmoor (in the house now owned by the Stratford Lee Mortons), they returned to England 10 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Godber have been at the Plaza since arriving from the tropics on the Santa Paula last Monday and have been extensively entertained in New York. On Wednesday Baroness Jan C. Two New Telephone Names . .

"AXminster" replaces "CLayton"

"DElmar" replaces some "RAndolph" and "PArkview" Numbers

Since midnight yesterday (Saturday, June 3), customers in Greater St. Louis and St. Louis County are using two new telephone names. "AXminster" is a brand-new one, for telephones formerly called "CLayton." The other, "DElmar," is being used for some former "RAndolph" and for many "PArkview" telephones.

The names "CLayton" and "RAndolph" have been discontinued.

The growth of certain telephone exchanges in St. Louis and the County have made these new names necessary in the interest of better telephone service for all.

A New Telephone Directory

A new 'phone book, with these changes and thousands of others, has been printed. Delivery of this new green directory will begin tomorrow morning, and in about five days every telephone customer in Greater St. Louis and St. Louis County should have a copy.

For faster, more efficient service, please look up the number before calling.

STEAMSHIP SERVICE BETWEEN GREECE AND U.S. INAUGURATED

With the docking of the Greek liner "Nea Hellas" at New York on Friday a new steamship service has been inaugurated which provides direct service between Greece and America.

Since the establishment of the republic in 1925 Greece has taken on an air of modernity. Motor roads have been built and modern transportation systems have been installed. Greece is among the oldest travel lands in the Mediterranean. The islands scattered through the Aegean, Melos associated with the Venus, Delos the birthplace of Apollo, and Ios, the burial place of Homer, are known to every student of classical antiquity.

Athens College, the American university of Greece which was established in 1925 and chartered by the Regents of the State of New York, is one of the fastest growing institutions of learning in Europe. The campus of 40 acres at at Psychico, a suburb of Athens, which now links the modern sections of Athens with the motor roads reaching along the Sacred Way.

CRAFTSMEN STILL NECESSARY TO MODERN OCEAN LINER

Craftsmen whose colorful trades were such a vital part of the old sailing vessels still ply their crafts on modern vessels of iron and steel. Nearly all the trades and crafts essential to the life of a great city are represented on board the Cunard White Star liner "Mauretania" which makes her maiden voyage to New York on June 17 next.

Any major repairs that are necessary while the ship is at sea are handled by the carpenters. The sailmaker employs his skill in the making of canvas covers for life boats, ventilators and hatches. The lamptrimmer, whose job on the windjammer was to keep wicks trimmed and the lamps filled, still performs this task since all liners are required by the Board of Trade regulations to carry a set of oil and navigating lamps to supplement the electric ones. They are inspected daily by the lamp trimmer and are lighted from time to time. Side lights, mast-head lights, etc., are kept in readiness to be hoisted into position should the electric set fail. The duties of the able-bodied seaman are much the same as they were in former days, with the exception that there are no sails to handle.

HISTORIC PAGEANT AT CAPE MAY SCHEDULED FOR AUGUST

A pageant portraying historic events in the growth of what is said to be America's oldest seashore resort, will be held August 10, 11 and 12 at Cape May, New Jersey. With a cast of 300 the pageant will include the landing of Captain Kidd, the notorious buccaneer who centered his pirating operations near the tip of the peninsula, and a Parade of the Presidents, scenes from the lives of 17 executives who have had some ties with the State.

Cape May was settled in 1629 by whalers who migrated to Southern New Jersey from the New England colonies. Fishing has always been an important activity in these parts and fishermen report large catches of sea bass, porgies, mackerel, weakfish and ling. Tuna fishing is growing in popularity and a regular schedule for game fishing is being inaugurated.

Art Exhibit.

Miles of Frankfurters.

COLORADO OFFERS UNUSUAL VARIETY

Scenic and Geologic Wonders May Be Found in Compact Area.

Each year Colorado attracts many vacationists because it offers a great variety of scenic and geologic attractions. In small areas the State offers the best-printed record of what has happened in a period of some 200 million years, so experts say. There are plains, desert, radium, petrified trees far larger than those now growing in the State, and one of the most amazing examples of "face lifting" by means of which some of the earth's surface was moved four miles distant.

All but seven of America's highest mountains are assembled in one group in Colorado. From thousands of points of vantage one may look over this assemblage of 52 peaks more than 14,000 feet high. Colorado has constructed a network of hard-surfaced highways through what is known as "America's Roof Garden." Areas once so remote they could be reached only by hardy mountain climbers are now provided with broad, safe roads, some of them links of transcontinental routes which permit travel where it always is cool instead of through the hot desert areas. The highest road in the world leads to the summit of Mount Evans.

National Parks.

Estes Park and Rocky Mountain National Park have been brought closer to Denver through addition this spring of a third route. Here is located the world's highest postoffice at the side of a boulevard that wends its way to the top of the Continental Divide and remains there among the clouds for a dozen miles, unfolding a panorama of mountains and valleys, glacial lakes and chasms for which the park is famous.

Central City, colorful Colorado gold mining town, again is astir with preparations for the eighth annual Play Festival. This year's presentation will be Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Yeoman of the Guard," with 18 performances July 15 through July 29. Frank St. Legor will direct this summer's attraction which will be given in the old Opera House, where stage stars of bygone days thrilled audiences of miners and frontiersmen.

Work of clearing snow from the famous Trail Ridge road, in Rocky Mountain National Park, near Denver, will start June 1, it is announced by the park service. While the snows of the past winter were particularly heavy, prevailing warm weather early this spring has reduced drifts to a point where it is considered that not more than one week will be required to uncover the pavement and make the 12,000-foot-high highway ready for use. Colorado highways outside the park are kept open the year around, the task being easier in the high areas than in the plains country.

NEW EQUIPMENT INSTALLED

Individually controlled seat lights, said to be the first to be installed on an American railroad, have recently been put in operation in two chair cars by the Wabash Railroad. The new twin lens lamp with dual switches is so placed that one seat may be spotlighted while the other remains in almost complete darkness. Reversing the switch spotlights the other seat. Both lights may be used at the same time if desired.

Jewel House.

New Ships for St. Louis' National Guard Flyers

FOUR latest type all-metal observation planes with three-place enclosed cockpits have been added to the equipment of the 110th Observation Squadron, Thirty-fifth Division Aviation, Missouri National Guard, to supplement two-place open cockpit planes previously in use. Two more of the new type ships, sometimes called "flying showcases," because of the "solarium" cockpit, will be received in the next few weeks. It is planned to bring the total to 14.

The pilot sits in the front of the new plane. A middle section, for the observer, has a top seat with dual controls and a bottom compartment with aerial mapping camera, radio transmitter, receiver and other observation equipment. The gunner, an enlisted man instead of a commissioned officer who was both gunner and observer in the old types, occupies the rear of the "solarium." Apertures in the bottom of the plane facilitate ground observations and map making. Cruising speed is about 200 miles an hour.

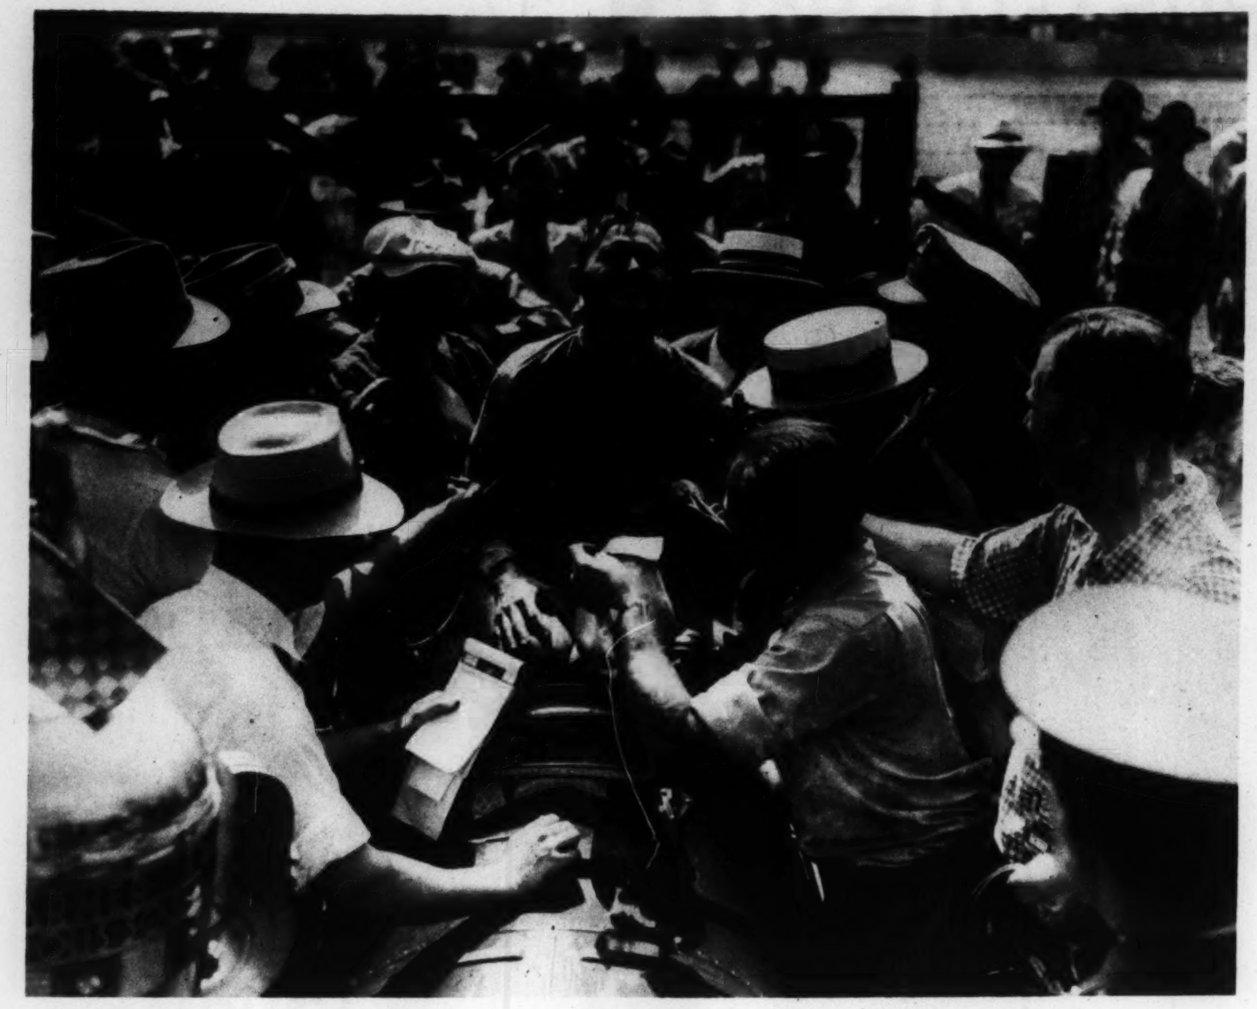
DEATH RIDES AGAIN AT INDIANAPOLIS

THE WINNER



Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis just after he had won the twenty-seventh annual Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race last Tuesday before a crowd of 145,000 people. He averaged 115.035 miles an hour and won $27,405, including the chief prize of $20,000. It was his second victory in the Memorial Day event, his first having been in 1937. Twenty-two of the 33 starters failed to complete the course this year; one of the drivers was killed, two other drivers and two spectators were hurt in a three-car wreck.

THE LOSER

Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, California, who was fatally hurt when his car struck another and plowed through a fence; he died in a hospital of a brain concussion. This photograph was made at the conclusion of the big race on Memorial Day last year—when he was the winner, recipient of the lion's share of the cash and the cheers of the crowd. An airplane worker, Roberts was 39 years old, father of two children. He had planned to retire from racing after this contest.

DISASTER

MEMORIAL

Roberts hurtling down the straightaway at a speed of 125 miles an hour in the race last year, when he set a record for the event of 117.2 miles an hour. Another record of the Indianapolis Speedway's annual spectacle is 35 deaths the dangerous, thrilling race has cost since it was established.

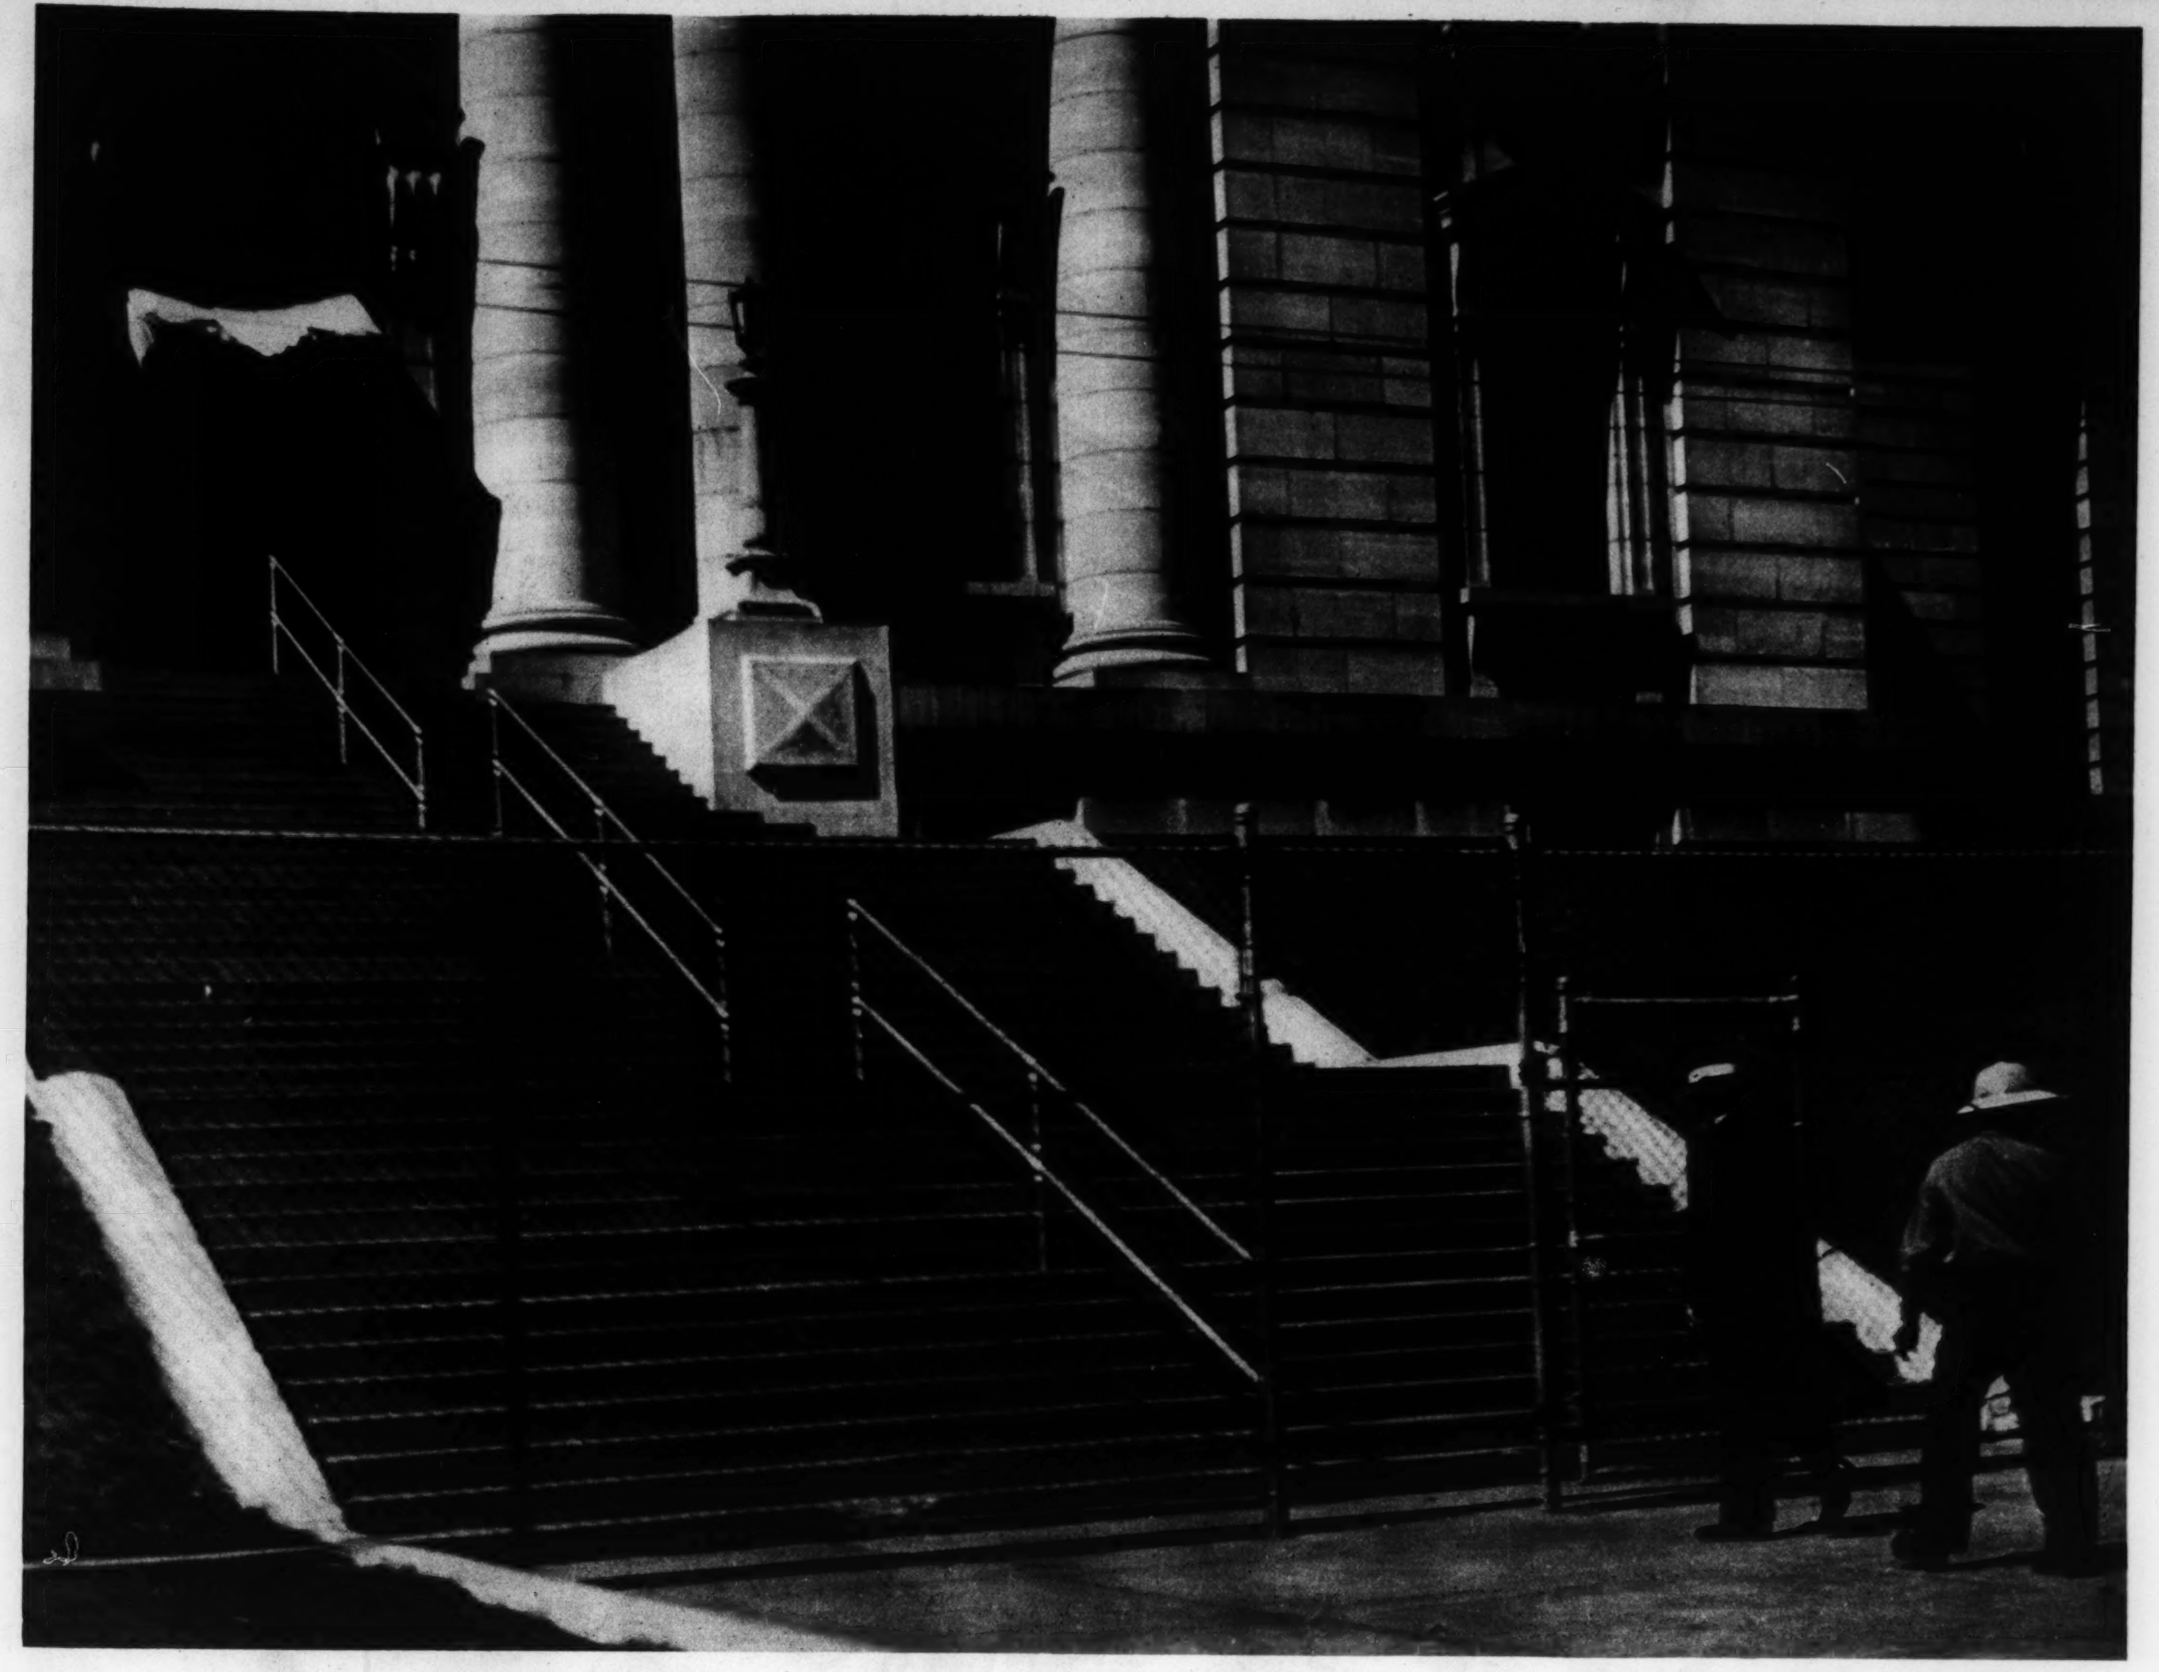
O'Malley Keeps a Date



R. Emmet O'Malley, former Superintendent of Insurance of Missouri, entering the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, last week to serve a sentence of a year and a day, imposed after he pleaded guilty of evading income tax on the $62,500 bribe paid him for his part in the $10,000,000 fire insurance rate compromise of 1935. O'Malley, who was driven to Leavenworth from Kansas City in his own automobile, is shown at the front entrance of the prison, carrying a handbag and attended by a guard, about to mount the steps to the warden's office.

IT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED TO ANYBODY

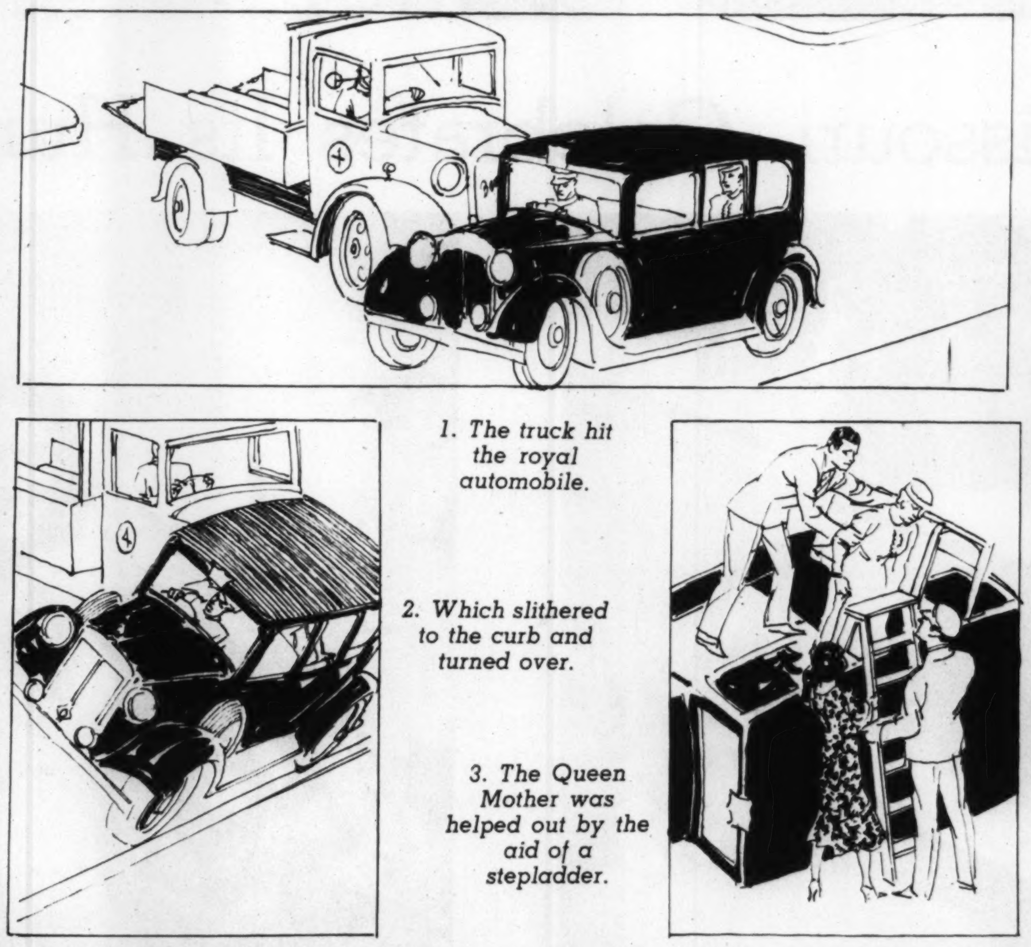
(International News Photo)



1. The truck hit the royal automobile.

2. Which slithered to the curb and turned over.

3. The Queen Mother was helped out by the aid of a stepladder.

How the royal limousine looked after it had been set right side up again. Windows were shattered and the body badly dented.

THESE photographs indicate that Queen Mother Mary of England had a narrow escape from serious injury in the automobile accident in which she suffered bruises and an eye injury May 23, three days before her seventy-second birthday. Accompanied by a lady-in-waiting and her household comptroller, the Queen was returning from the Royal Horticulture Society's gardens at Wisley, Surrey, when her limousine was in collision with a two-ton truck loaded with steel bars at a street intersection in the London suburb of Putney. The front of the truck, driven by Albert Cooper, struck a rear wheel of the limousine, sending the lighter machine slithering to a curb, where it turned over on its side. A stepladder was placed in the upset car and bystanders helped the Queen and her companions climb out. The truck driver sent a bouquet and note of sympathy to the Queen and she responded with a note of thanks.

The truck which collided with and overturned the Queen's automobile, and the scene of the accident. The truck's radiator and left front fender were crumpled in the crash.

City's New Psychopathic Hospital

AERIAL photograph of the new Malcolm A. Bliss Psychopathic Institute building at Grattan and Park avenues, now completed except for a few minor details. It will first go into use in July to house clinic work while portions of City Hospital, immediately to the south, are being remodeled. Other activities of the City Hospital as well as some patients, later will be transferred to the institute building, during extensive reconstruction of City Hospital in which several buildings will be replaced. The institute is not expected to be put to its permanent use, the diagnosis, care and temporary treatment of the mentally ill, for about 18 months.

Bliss Psychopathic Institute, started slightly more than a year ago, is six stories in height, has facilities for 185 beds for white and Negro patients, and cost approximately $1,250,000. It was paid for with funds from the 1934 bond issue and a P W A grant. Named for the late Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss, noted St. Louis specialist in nervous and mental diseases, the institute besides replacing the observation ward of City Hospital, will provide facilities for extensive research in care and prevention of mental disorders.

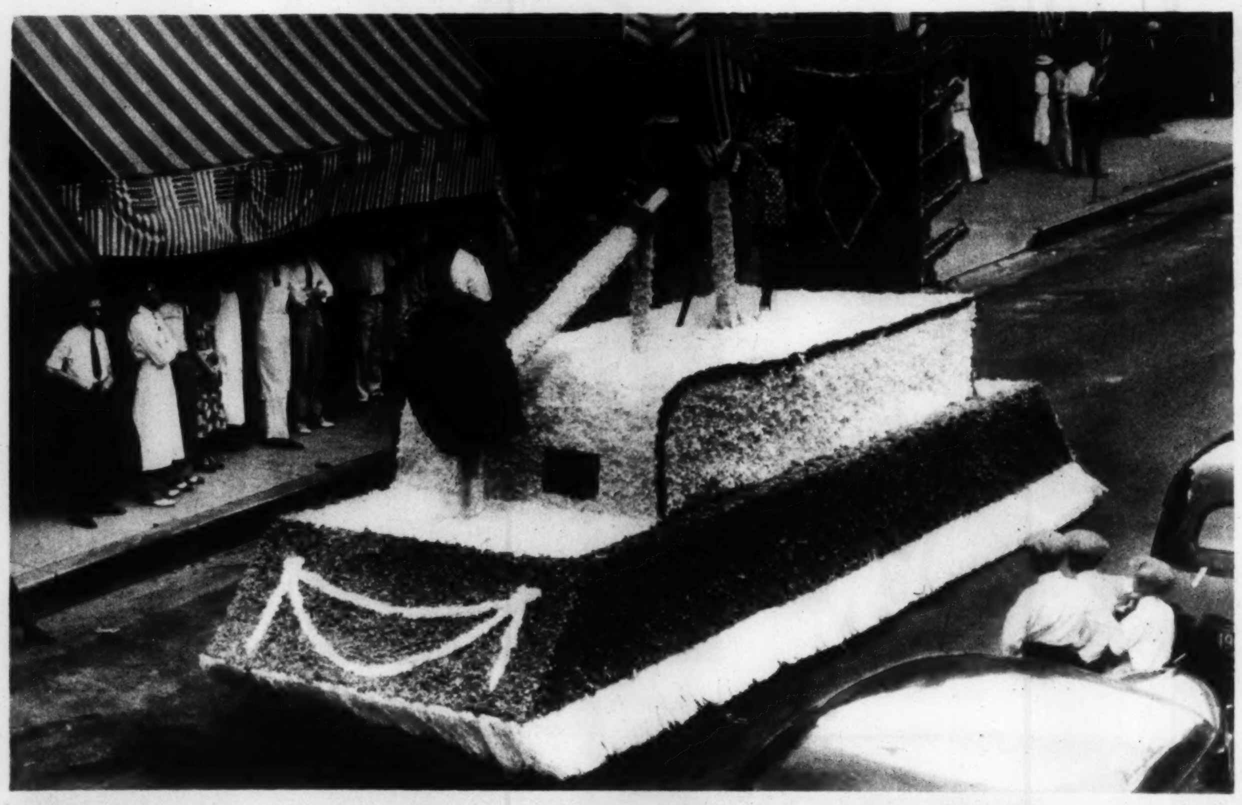
Washington, Missouri, Celebrates Its Hundreth Birthday



The "Missouri meerschaum" naturally had an outstanding float of its own when Washington, Missouri, observed its centennial with a three-day celebration last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, for the corncob pipe was invented there in 1874. The town was founded May 29, 1839.

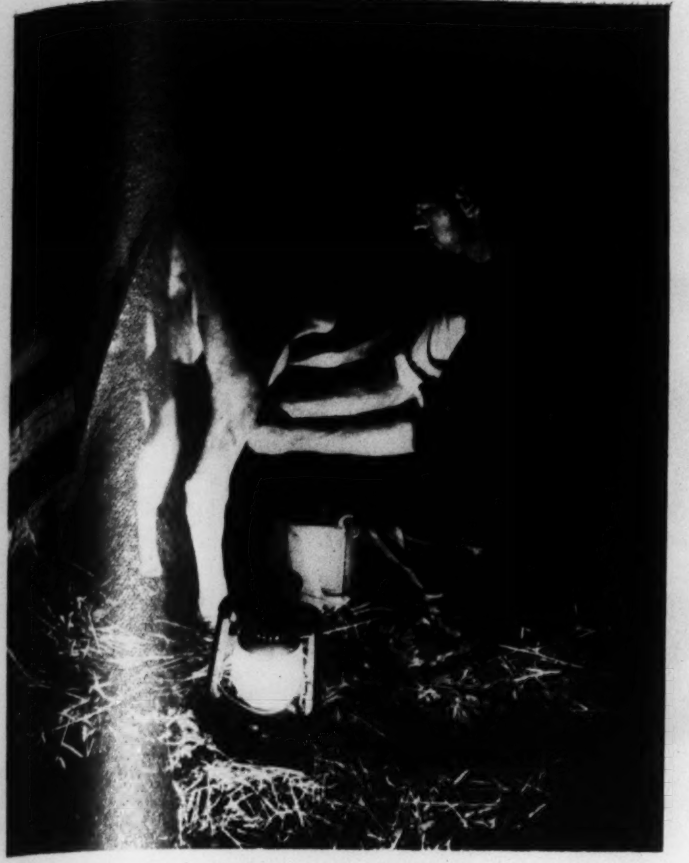
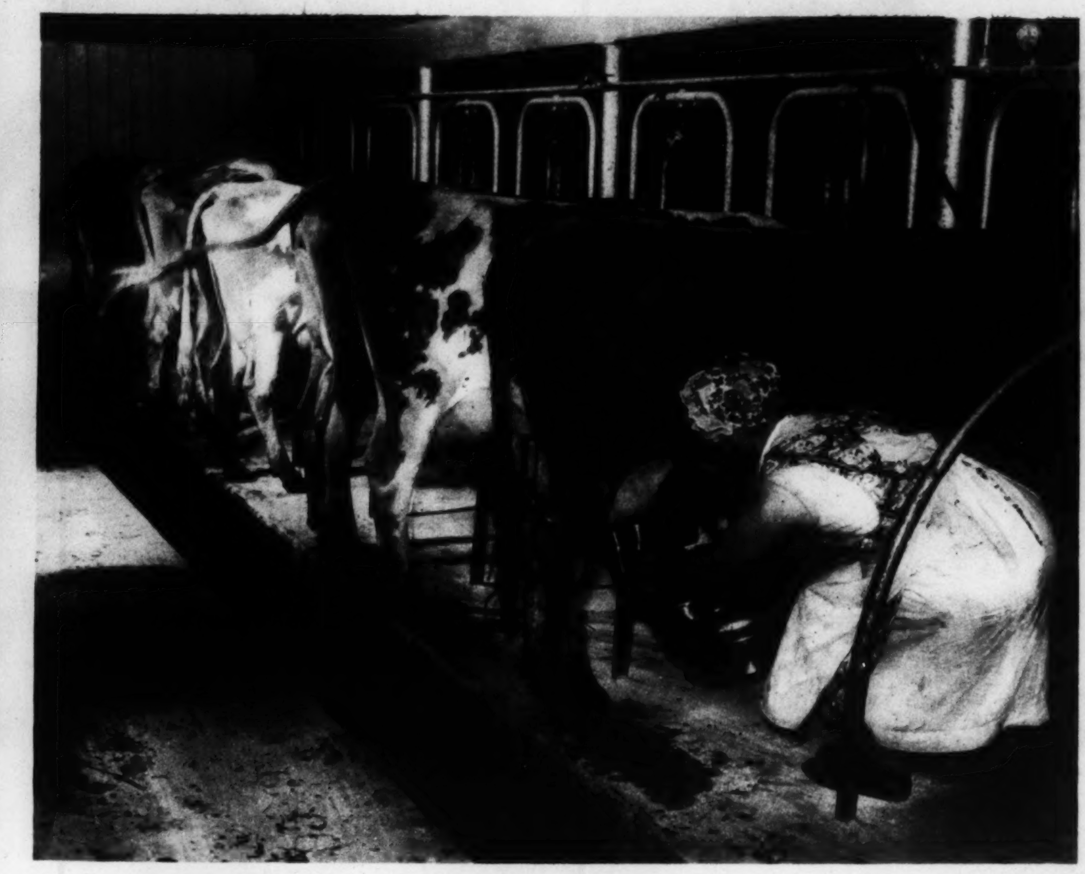
CHEAP ELECTRICITY—The New Missouri Farm Hand



Milking by hand, in the light of a lantern set in the straw since electricity is lacking. Not merely a tedious, but a dangerous task, should the cow kick the lantern.



On a powered farm. Electricity does the milking, and two women can milk 20 cows in an hour. By hand, three hours would be needed.

Churning butter by electricity, a great improvement over the old style plunger or barrel methods. This farmer also has an electric cream separator (in foreground).

IN ANOTHER two weeks a total of 382 miles of rural electricity distribution lines serving 685 farm subscribers will be completed in the Palmyra, Missouri, project of the Rural Electrification Administration. Comprising all of Marion, most of Shelby and Monroe counties, the project was the first started of 26 being carried out in Missouri, to serve about 60 per cent of the State's farmers previously unable to obtain power. Its initial unit of 180 miles of lines was "energized" in August, 1937. The average cost of power to subscribers is three and one-half cents a kilowatt hour compared to utility company rates of about five cents. Cost of the project thus far has been $330,000, which, advanced by the Federal Government, is expected to be liquidated in 25 years. Power line extensions by utilities usually cost each farmer several hundred dollars, depending on line's length. Power for this and similar projects is obtained from nearest established municipal power plants. The purpose of the projects is to provide farmers with low-rate electricity, improve rural living conditions. On this page is shown the contrast between farm life in sections not yet reached by the projects, and in electrified sections of Marion County.

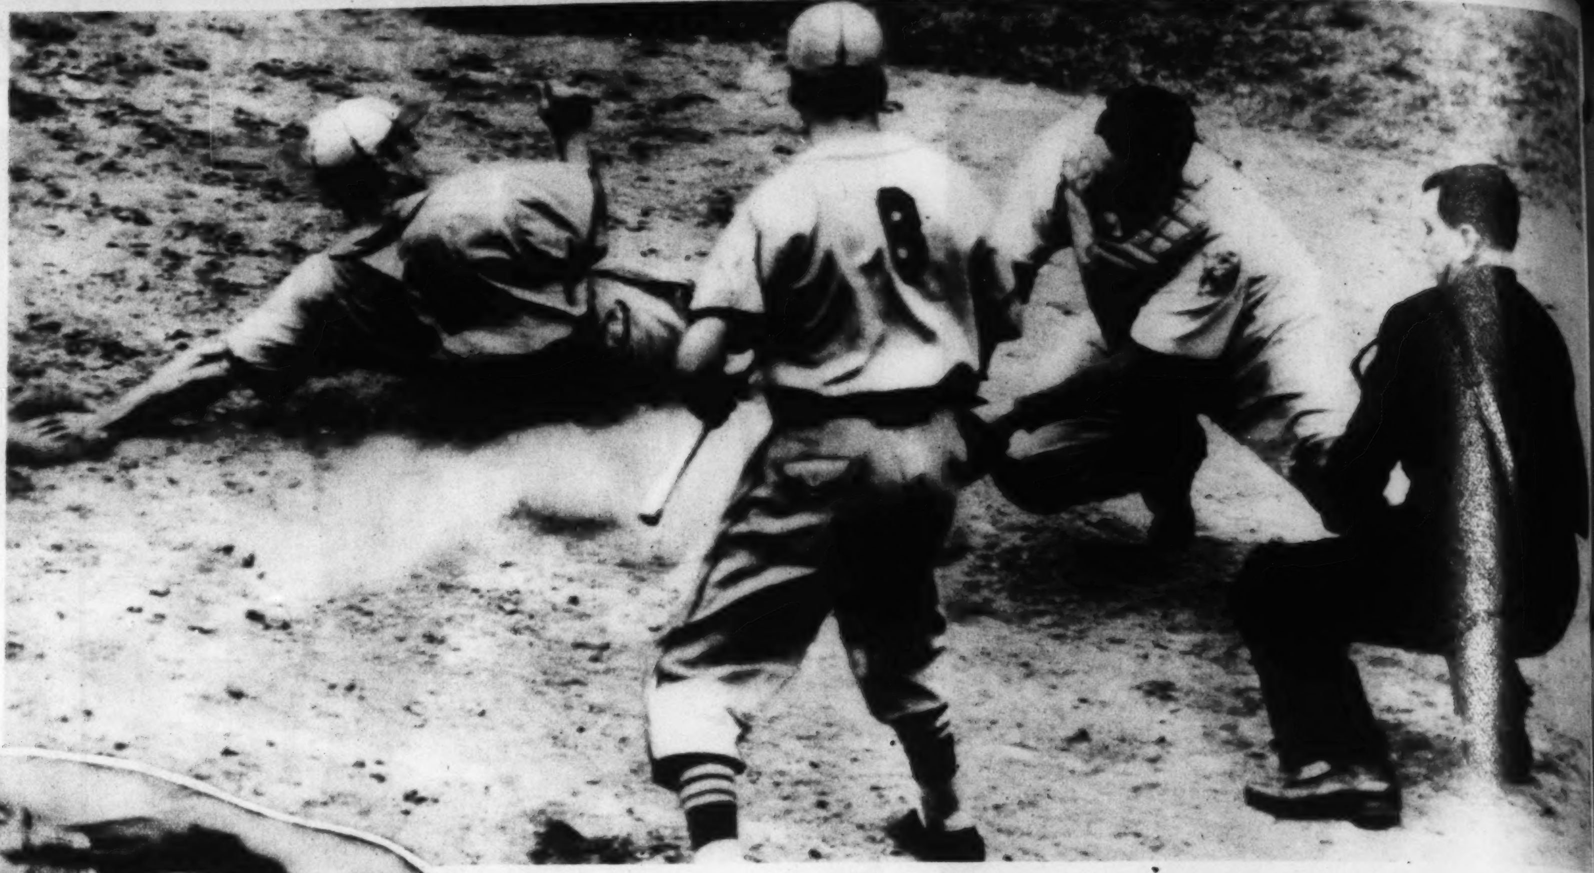
The Rejuvenation of Pepper Martin



Feet first, Pepper steals home on a long wind-up by the Dodgers' rookie pitcher in the sixth inning of the Cardinals' game at Brooklyn May 8. His unusual feat gave the Cardinals a 1-0 victory.

John Leonard (Pepper) Martin punching out a hit—something he has been doing so frequently this spring that he was the leading batter of the major leagues five weeks after the season opened.

AN IMPORTANT factor in the surprising punch of the St. Louis Cardinals this spring has been the sensational rejuvenation of Pepper Martin. At the age of 35, nearly eight years after that world series which made him famous, the Wild Horse of the Osage has been putting on a hitting, base running and fielding show which recalls those autumn days in 1931 when, an obscure David, he galloped unawed and roughshod over the mighty Goliath that was the Philadelphia Athletics' renowned baseball machine. His 1939 spring rampage had carried him the other day to the batting leadership of major league baseball, with an average of .380. His exploits included a steal of home that won a 1-0 game, and a three-run homer that saved a game his team was losing.

Last season Martin rode the bench a good deal and wound up with a batting average of .294 and only four stolen bases; there were rumors last winter that he would be traded, despite his popularity with the fans—popularity due not only to his baseball ability but also to his genial showmanship, on and off the diamond. Instead of being traded, he was made captain of the 1939 Cardinals, and, after entering the regular lineup May 5, alternating at center and right field, contributed powerfully to the surge that took the team to the top of the league—before its recent clash with the Cincinnati Reds.

Baseball is not Martin's only interest. He is a hunter, has played professional football and basketball, raced midget automobiles, backed a pugilist, conducted a musical organization of ball players called the Mudcat Band, been a ringleader in clubhouse horse play. He lives in Oklahoma City, has a wife and two daughters. If he continues playing like the Wild Horse of old, the Cardinal management may let him revive the Mudcat Band.

HOW IT'S DONE

After part of the tube is heated to liquidity, it is drawn out severed, closed at one end. Then Mueller blows a globe.

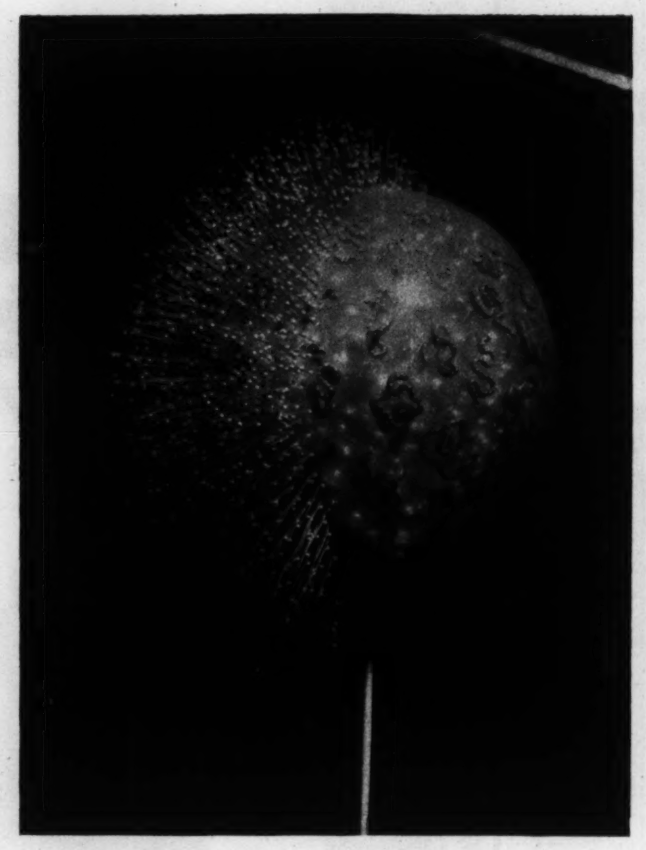
Almost finished. It is a glass model of one of the cells of a living sponge, multiplied 8,000,000 times in size. The finished work will contain hundreds of these cells.

MICROSCOPIC LIFE TAKES FORM IN GLASS



A radiolarian nucleus, which has made an object of unusual beauty by forming a colony.

HERMAN O. MUELLER of the American Museum of Natural History in New York has been called the "most skillful glass blower in the world." Since he came to the museum 35 years ago he has been creating a fantastic, beautiful new world, a world of tiny marine life as seen in the microscope, blown into brilliant colored glass.

His father, who came from Germany, was a blower famous for his glass figures done for Tiffany's, and Mueller also worked for the famed jewelry firm before the museum persuaded him to devote his talents to science.

One of Mueller's masterpieces, a "rotifer jungle," which reproduces a cubic half-inch of pond bottom, magnified 1,000,000 times. Rotifers and other tiny animals are engaged in eating each other and escaping being eaten in this underwater drama. A bladder wort, the plant running diagonally across the picture, has trapped rotifers in the little hollow green globes hanging from its stems, traps which spring open, suck the prey in, then close and digest it.

Glass model of a radiolarian, magnified 400,000 times. About the size of a grain of sand, it manufactures a skeleton of glass by its own living chemistry, and is used commercially for polishing precious stones.

JOE JONES, St. Louis artist, is a photographer at times, as well as a painter. In addition, as those acquainted with his canvases know, he is a student of the life of the poor and a social critic whose condemnation of conditions fostering poverty and squalor is implicit in the savage starkness of his pictorial statements. Both as sociologist and camera artist he made these photographs of the seamy side of St. Louis.

LEFT HOLLYWOOD FOR LONDON AND A HIT PICTURE

RED-HAIRED, green-eyed Greer Garson is a young English actress who has just made her American film debut as star of a British movie. A good deal of traveling was done by Miss Garson before this came to pass. Spotted in London by an American movie executive, she was brought to this country as a film find, but Hollywood seems to have done nothing about her, and she spent an idle year there. Then she went back to England, and was cast with Robert Donat in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer made in its English studios. The picture began showing in America last month and Miss Garson's stock is soaring.

DEMONSTRATIONS AGAINST BRITAIN IN PALESTINE

THE pictures on this page were the first received of the Jewish riots and demonstrations in Palestine May 18 which followed the announcement of the latest "white paper" by the British Government. The Jews declared the "white paper," limiting Jewish immigration to Palestine, abrogated the Balfour declaration by which they were to be given Palestine as a national home. They demanded complete fulfillment of the declaration.

MASTER OF FUNNY FACES

(By a PICTURES Staff Photographer)

MASS weddings, introduced in China four years ago as part of the New Life movement, chiefly to allow couples to escape the large expense of the usual elaborate Chinese wedding, have been made quite customary by the impoverishment of war.

Families with yearly incomes of $80 used to spend twice that on one son's wedding, and middle-class weddings often cost as much as $8000, with the couple's income mortgaged for years. Weddings costing as little as three cents were possible, but they involved loss of "face," the most important thing to a Chinese of any class. The mass weddings usually cost each couple no more than $20 and manage to preserve much of the lavish ceremony.

CHANGING IN NINE SECONDS

FROM time to time the German newspapers carry comment and pictures on American show girls, stressing the various stages of dress or undress as indicative of the low taste of theatergoers in the United States, and the decadent nature of the stage. German playgoers are no different from those in this country, and equally enjoy a snappy revue with abbreviated costumes, as shown by these photographs of show girls in a Berlin production, going through their rapid change routine between appearances. The stage costumes, as is readily seen, differ little in fashion, are no more modest than those seen in American revues.

ONE of the most striking impersonations in the history of the New York theater has been that of Raymond Massey, the Canadian-born actor, in the title role of Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which has been running since last October. Massey, with his deep-set, brooding eyes and long, lined face, looks remarkably like Lincoln to begin with. Before each performance he spends two hours on his make-up to show Lincoln as a young man. Later he must change to show Lincoln aged about 15 years, but smooth-faced. Finally he must portray the President with a heavy beard, a change which must be accomplished in 45 seconds. These photos show how he does it.

BEST IDEA AT SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE! Some thoughtful friend gave her enough Windex to last for months! Now she can clean windows without hard work . . . without wet, messy cloths. Just spray on Windex . . . and wipe it off. Windows sparkle . . . and stay clean longer. For Windex, unlike some cleaners, leaves no dirt-catching film. No other cleaner is made by the secret Windex formula. Insist on genuine Windex. It's full-strength; a little cleans a lot.

THE GLOSSY IBIS PHOTOGRAPHED ON A RARE VISIT TO MISSOURI

LAST reported seen in Missouri in 1888, nine glossy ibis, rare anywhere in the United States, were seen and eight of them photographed recently by William Holzmark, a student at Washington University, as they flew over a marsh about 10 miles north of St. Charles. Holzmark, accompanied by Wayne Short, president, and two other members of the St. Louis Bird Club, saw and recognized the birds in flight, was able to catch eight of them with a telephoto lens before they were out of sight. Prior to 1888, when the glossy ibis was reported merely seen in Missouri, one was killed in 1880 in the Illinois bottom land not far from St. Louis. The birds are usually found in Mediterranean countries.
